ORDER WEED CLEAN-UP

Marshal Gets Instructions From Council to See That City Property is Free From Weeds

Further steps to abate the weed nuisance in this city was ordered at the special session of the city council last night. Weeds are again becoming bad in the city it was reported, in spite of the campaign made this spring and it was thought best to start proceedings again to force residents to clean up their property. Because of the fact that many of the vacant lots are owned by non-residents, the task is difficult but if no other method will serve the city will hire a man to do the work and take a lien against the property.

Council to Make Effort to Do Away With Ruts Near the Sidewalks in Business District

Protecting the edges of the pavement in the business district with concrete aprons jutting out from the sidewalks is a plan proposed by the city council to prevent the streets in the business district from becoming any more rutted than at present. The pavements are in bad condition along the curbs. Automobiles standing parked have cut deep holes in the surface, and these hold water and dirt making a very unsightly appearance. It has been proposed that a layer of concrete be laid over the pavement to prevent any further cutting and to provide a better drain along the curbs. The street committee was instructed to investigate the proposition and report at the next regular meeting of the council.
