ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1923.

BREAKING THE LAW.

The predicted heat wave failed to wilt any collars around this village.

Many people entertain the theory, relative to the prohibition law, that a lot of people violate this statute just because they enjoy law, that a lot of people violate this statute just because they enjoy bracking a law. They claim that many people are drinking now who never drank before, and are incided to do it because they enjoy of the place can be preserved and the statute just because they enjoy of the place can be preserved and the statute just because they enjoy of the place can be preserved and the gapara, so that the beauty of the place can be preserved and the gapara, so that the beauty of the place can be preserved and showing their laws much in the whole city get the beauty of the place can be preserved and showing their laws and a statute just because they enjoy who get a job to do not give society and the states are not modifying their motor laws on this account the statute is at since you will be a dead nigger in the statute are not modifying their motor laws on this account to law the state is at since you will be a dead nigger in the states are not modifying their motor laws on this account to law the state is at since you have get a job to do not give up trying to enforce a good law simply because some people persist in making a joke of it. In the European countries, it is said, there is more of a tendency to obey laws. In this country, there is more of a tendency to obey laws. In the state of the state is at since you will be a dead nigger in the state of the state of the state of the state in the state of the state in the state of the state in the state in the state of the state in the state of the state in the state of the s the whole city get the benefit of it, half the people will tramp or fire and we are wondering what it across it as if they never saw it, almost as if they took pleasure in showing their defiance of the powers that be. Yet that sign to the average person. was erected for a good purpose, and the people should obey it. Breaking little laws encourages people to go on to something more and break big laws the next time. J. G. Holland said: "Laws Pierce'll be able to locate anyone in are the very bulwarks of liberty. They define every man's rights, martyr. and stand between and defend the individual liberties of all men.' The man who breaks a law, even a small one, invites people to break the laws that protect his own rights,

The calendar makes the new year begin January 1, but there is no special reason why it should commence then. It would have been more rational, according to the customs of modern life, if the year began either in early fall, or early spring. Spring is the time when agriculture starts and all nature begins its year of activity. There would be appropriateness in having a new year ing. begin sometime in March or April. In many ways, however, the year of achievement begins in September. The heat of summer has naturally made it a vacation period for schools and business. All kinds of civic and community effort begin in the fall when vacations are over. The fall and winter months are most favorable to community efforts. It is at that time that almost all organizations lay out and plan programs of work for the coming season. Let us hope it will be a year of real achievement among

The success that airplane bombers are having in dropping explosives on warships, would seem to indicate that the power of great battleships is likely to be much limited before many years. They may become obsolete in the near future. When five the power after your aggregation to select a brand new bunch of yells this season and give the populace a rest from the time-worn shouts we've been forced to swallow through our ear-drums during your serpentines down the main planes can drop bombs weighing over a ton each directly. years. They may become obsolete in the near future. When five planes can drop bombs weighing over a ton each directly on a warship, as was done at Cape Hatters a few days ago, it would seem as if a very powerful form of attack on such craft had been developed. The leading powers have done well to halt construction of these sea monsters whose future fighting efficiency is problematical. The effort to limit the squandering of money in warships ought to go on by agreement of all nations, If all the warships ought to go on by agreement of all nations. If all the leading countries would agree to stop naval expansion, they would be just as well off, and an enormous amount of money and taxes would be saved.

This is said to be a hard and cruel world. Yet when sorrows and misfortune come, something noble and generous in human nature bursts the bonds of selfishness. So it is proving in the matter of the relief of the terrible disaster in Japan. The Amermatter of the relief of the terrible disaster in Japan. The Amermatter of the relief of the terrible disaster in Japan. The American people responded with remarkable promptness to the news confessed to us that he was a regitar of this terrible catastrophe. The newspapers of Sunday morning, sometime? September 2, gave brief accounts of the disaster, and the full extem of it was hardly realized by the people until the next day, The first relief ship from this country sailed two days later, carrying 60,000 pounds of rice and other supplies, and this was only the beginning of the vast contribution that will be made. Everyone who can possibly spare a gift should want to have a share in this blessed charity.

Of course, the reason for punishment is not so much for punishment's sake as to retard crime and reform criminals. Retribution of that type is ideal retribution, but it takes thought, wisdom, and patience to work it out.

A negro by the name of Scooter was employed as a porter in a small Southern hotel. He was an excellent porter, obliging and courteous. His one falling was that he would drink up things the guests had in their rooms. Anything that smelled of alcohol might just as well be poured down the drain pipe as left where Scooter could get at it.

Some fow people are wilfully criminal, but most crimes are due to lack of understanding.

To make the punishment fit the crime is a fine achievement, for it adrives home the lesson of the punishment and the significance of the offense.

It is a pitiful thenght, this thought of homeless ones. Out where Markery is there are others like her, only a little older; some of 6, 7, 8 and so on, all without that usual home where there are parents and caressained protection and warmth and cheef. And where is the child that isn't looking and yearning and hungering for the towch, the caress, the affection and the love light in the eyes of a parent? And if children are cented these things and are buffeted debied these things and are buffeted around by the currents and cross-currents of neglect in a busy workaday world, what can be expected of them?
