ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1923.

HOME BEAUTIFUL WEEK.

From October 8 to 14 has been designated as "Home Beautiful Week" throughout the nation. We are now in the midst of the week set apart to consider the home—the most precious asset of every community and the bulwark of the nation. Whether a gilded palace or the most humble abode, happiness comes through a deep love for the better things of life. In fact, "home is where the heart is," the shrine where faith and love reign supreme. Roseburg, the beautiful city of the Umpqua Valley, prides itself on the spirit of progress prevalent at all times for better homes. In this respect, and while great achievements have been accomplished, it might be well to mention that no better truth of a city's thrift and prosperity can be portrayed than by its well-kept homes—a haven for those you love best. During "Home Beautiful Week" manufacturers are doing much to encourage people to add to the beauty and comfort of their homes. Suggestions are offered for the convenience of the housewife, encouragement and advice is given to make the home more attractive and inviting. It is well that we take advantage, so far as our means will permit, to carry out a program of home beautification, for if there is any one place dear to the hearts of the American people it is the home, and well balanced homes are the very foundation of the nation.

Dear Folks:

Life is so queer, and so you'll find it, for it's full of human folks, who are always queer to others, some are looked upon as jokes. Some wear clothes that make us giggle, some have ways that make us smile. Some go in for silly nonsense just because it is the style.

Some are fair and fat and forty, some are sixty dark and lean. Some have wisdom that is canny, some are always fresh and green. Some are proud and some are humble, some are thrifty with their cash. Some are looking for a fortune, some are waiting for a crash. Some are liars, some are truthful, some are workers, some are drones. Some are servants serving others who are sitting high on thrones.

Some are black and some are yellow, some are white and some are red. Some are always leading others, some are always being led. Some are dancers, some are fighters, some are deaf, and some are blind. Some are always out a hunting for the things they never find. Some are handsome, some are homely, some are short and some are tall, some are neat and some are careless, some are big and some are small.

To themselves, they all are normal, to the others they are queer. For their mirrors never show them how to strangers they appear. To themselves its only human, human folks will look the best.

RADIO UTILIZED FOR ECONOMIC LECTURES

A radio lecture service designed especially for Oregon women will be begun at three o'clock in the afternoon, October 12, by home economics specialists of the agricultural college extension service from station KOW operated by the Portland Oregonian. One lecture will be given each Friday afternoon thereafter at the same hour.

Four lectures by Margery M. Smith, nutrition specialist, dealing with the nutrition of the school child, will be the opening series. Some important factors in Nutrition is the subject of the lecture for October 12.

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—
The r. h. s. fellers
Are goin' down
To Cottage Grove
Tomorrow to
Wallow around
In the mud
With the guys
Of that burg
Which prompts us
To remark
That the football team
Will certainly need
Their bath
Tomorrow night.

DUMBLE DORA THINKS
A toupe is an enclosed car.

ALL THAT'S NECESSARY
My little dimpled school girl
At conversing's so uncouth;
If you say Bernard Shaw is good,
She coos: "Ain't it the truth?"

In speaking of great topics
If a question's at her hurled;
She's capable of one reply,
Which is, "I'll tell the world!"

In chasing o'er philosophy
To ponder she's unable,
Without a thought she springs this wit
"That's me all over, Mabel!"

But when she's decked out in her best
Primped up in fur and fuzz,
Does she crowd all the boys about?
"Does she? I'll say she does!"

"Oo's leky honey bunch is oo?"
She softly coos.

As he lets go his hold on the steering wheel to grasp the opportunity properly, the car lunged into a ditch. Crawling out and digging the mud from his eyes, he gurgled "Ooze!"

Extract from a newspaper account of an accident. "The accident bruised her somewhat and hurt her otherwise."

Famous last words: "Now, madam, I'll show you which of us is boss of this household."

There are some artificial things better than the real—The grass-which instead of a real one, for instance.

If there is anything that we would enjoy breaking up, once in a while, it is one of those country line telephones.

You may argue with a traffic cop and only have to pay a fine, but if you argue with a truck about the right of way, you're lucky if you only have to pay a hospital bill.

"Do motor cars make us lazy?" asked the Literary Digest. Well, not if we're pedestrians.

Two things are certain, grumbles a grouch, taxes when you get property and rheumatism when you get 50.

It's the raft of friends some people have that keep them afloat.

In providence, bo, you can't do more than that.

The rain falls alike on the unjust and the just.

The sun shines alike through the thin and the fat.

The Salem Statesman in a headline strip asks the following question: "Did you know that Salem is and always will be the world's quality prune center?"

In answering we assert: "No we didn't. We have always thought and always will think that Roseburg is."

FOREST SERVICE
NEEDING RANGERS

The Forest Ranger examination is to be given on October 22 to qualified applicants between the ages of 21 and 35 at thirteen offices in Oregon and seven towns in Washington, according to an announcement of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, received at the local office of the United States Forest Service.

The examination is given to fill vacancies in the position of forest ranger in the Forest Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture. For this position young men of good education and those physically able to stand the hardships of field work on the National Forests are especially desired. To such, the work of the Forest Service has in store an attractive and interesting career, provided they are fond of the great outdoors. Forest officers state that the position of forest ranger in many cases has served as a training school for positions outside of the Government service. Many men as a result of the experience gained as rangers have been able to secure responsible positions as managers of live stock companies, lumber companies, and in many other lines. The entrance salary is $1220 per year for the State of Oregon and Washington, and ranges from $1220 to $1620 for Alaska. In addition to this Congress at the present time grants a "bonus" of $240 a year. However, in addition to the basic salary, rangers located on districts where automobiles are necessary in their work are allowed a mileage on personally owned machines, or if saddle and pack animals are required, the necessary forage is furnished by the Government. Moreover, rangers, while absent from their official stations on Government business, are reimbursed for their traveling expenses. In many cases comfortable houses are furnished the men as well as all necessary tools and equipment.

The Government compensation Act also applies to all Forest officers under which, in cases of accidental injuries while on official duty, hospital and doctors fees are paid and in case of death the families are allowed an annuity under certain conditions.

The Government Employees Retirement Act also applies to the position of forest ranger.

A one day written test composed largely of practical questions concerning timber, forest fires, surveying and grazing is given on October 23. Applicants are also given credit for education and experience. The age limits of 21 to 35 do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service.

The examination will be given by the Forest Supervisors at twenty-two locations in Oregon and Washington. Information concerning it and application blanks may be secured from any of these headquarters.

The ladies of St. George's Church will serve a parish supper Friday evening, Oct. 12th, at 6 o'clock, to which all members of the congregation are invited.
