FORMER BROCKWAY RESIDENT DEAD

Mrs. W. A. Simmons, who formerly resided in Brockway, and who is well-known by some of the older residents of that community, died recently at Fallon, Nevada, where she has been residing while her husband was engaged in work at the government dam being built near there.

The unexpected death of Mrs. W. A. Simmons last Wednesday evening, in this city, caused general sadness in this community, where the lady had resided since the project first started.

There was none of the family at home at the time. Mrs. Simmons left that afternoon for Lake Tahoe on business connected with his official duties, but was delayed and did not reach the dam at the outlet of the lake until 8 o'clock the next morning, when he learned the sad news.

Among the reported pledges to sorority houses from the Oregon Agricultural college this fall are Miss Fern Reymers and Miss Marlan Needham, both Roseburg young ladies, who have pledged the Gamma Phi Beta, one of the oldest and largest national sororities.

W. J. Jones, who has been employed for the summer in forest service at Tiller, has resigned his position as ranger and will leave soon for Crescent City, California, where he will spend his time in developing some of his mine property. His family accompanies him.

attended and the floral tributes by friends were most abundant and beautiful.

Mrs. Simmons was a model wife and mother and always highly respected by her friends and neighbors. She was an active and devoted member of the local Methodist church, having been a member of that denomination when a child in Canada, and had always been true to her Christian faith.

There is a large circle of friends and acquaintances in this community who extend their deepest sympathy to the bereaved family in their sad affliction.

ted with ammonia to her nose and mouth. The woman's body was scarred and the ligaments of her neck were torn, showing that her struggles while the boy was forcing the ammonia fumes into her lungs, were the exertion of a woman realizing she was fighting for her life.

Arthur Covell, according to reports of the confession, admitted his part in the crime, as being the moving spirit. The theory of the prosecution is that Arthur Covell urged the stepson to commit the crime and told him that it could be covered up if the boy followed his instructions.

Alton Covell and Arthur Covell were both indicted by the grand jury last night at ten o'clock, following a visit of the grand jury with Arthur Covell at the county farm near Coquille.

Lucille Covell, the 14 year old step daughter, while supposed to be somewhat conversant with the incidents of the murder, was not implicated, it is said. The girl is now in charge of Juvenile Officer A. T. Morrison, and was among those who gave testimony before the grand jury.

District Attorney Ben S. Fisher gives the principal credit for unravelling the crime to the members of the grand jury, who probed the affair on the theory that with Arthur Covell, Alton Covell and Lucille Covell about the premises, some of them surely had knowledge of what had taken place.

On convening of the jury, the state had practically nothing to offer as the investigation of the case had not developed anything on which to base a case.

The work of the jury, therefore, with the assistance of Detective May and members of the sheriff's force, finally brought out the facts as stated and a crime which it was believed would never be revealed was solved.
