Gen. Patrick's report is a gloomy picture of the state of the air service. He says that the present peace time organization of the air service affords no foundation upon which a war time organization could be built.

TURKEYS PLENTIFUL FOR THANKSGIVING

(Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—There will be no scarcity of turkey for Thanksgiving this year according to the report today showing that in addition to the copious stocks of five million pounds carried over from last year, the new crop is exceptionally heavy in Texas and large in Maryland and Virginia, while turkeys are being raised in first-class numbers for the first time in many northern sections.

GOOD FOOTBALL GAME EXPECTED

Roseburg and Coos Bay Team to Meet in This City on Thanksgiving Day.

TEAM WORKING HARD

Going Through Signal Practice Regularly to Develop Speed and Accuracy for Coming Contest.

The Roseburg Elks football team is working hard in getting into shape for the game on Thanksgiving with the Coos Bay All Stars. The Roseburg team was defeated last Sunday at North Bend, but expects to reverse things next Thanksgiving in the game here. The Roseburg team did not play up to its usual standard last Sunday, having had a game on Armistice Day which left two of its best players crippled and stiffened up other members of the team. The rest until Thanksgiving, however, is expected to give them an opportunity to get back into shape and they are confident that they can defeat the Coos county team, which is an exceptionally heavy and fast eleven.

Okey Targert who was injured in last Sunday's game, is recovering rapidly and will undoubtedly be back in his place at end on Thanksgiving Day. Carl Black, the line plunging fullback is probably out of the game for the balance of the season, and his place for the balance of the season, as his injury prevent him from participating in any kind of athletics for several months. The team is working hard to develop its other line plungers to take his place in the event he is not able to play. Several heavy men are working out at fullback and although Black's place is hard to fill it is believed that the Roseburg team will be able to hit the Marshall field line in good shape.

The boys are going through a stiff workout every day. Three days each week are being put in on the field and going through signal practice and scrimmages. Heavier scrimmages will be put on the last of the week and next week the team will be given largely signal work to increase speed and accuracy. Gymnasium work is also being done two nights each week to develop wind and speed, so that the team should be in excellent condition at the time of the coming game.

Roseburg is going to have a hard battle with the Coos Bay players, although they are confident of victory. The visiting team is composed of men who are experienced in the game and who have been practicing hard. They fully equal to the local boys in weight and the Roseburg players are going to have no easy time.

In the game at Coos Bay, Roseburg played entirely on the defensive after it was found that the team had little chance to win. Glen Smith, the heady Roseburg quarter, kept his team on the defensive as much as possible, cutting down chances for further injuries, keeping in mind the fact that the locals have another chance with the All Stars on Thanksgiving. As a result of these tactics Roseburg knows just about what to expect of the Marshall field team in the way of offensive plays, while the All Stars know little of the brilliant fighting tactics of the Roseburg team. With Targert back in good shape, so that he can get away with forward passes, Roseburg should have a much better opportunity for victory and the contest will be well worth seeing.

GERMAN CREW WILL BRING ZEPPELIN

FRIEDRICHAFEN, Germany, Nov. 22.—(A. P.)—Among the Germans who opposed as impractical the idea of Zepplin, when his dirigible airship plans were announced some 20 years ago, was Dr. Hugo Eckener, now one of the chiefs of the Zepplin company here which is building the ZR-3 for the United States navy. According to the present schedule Dr. Eckener, it appears, will act as the pilot of ZR-3 when the big ship starts her trans-Atlantic flight next spring. He will have under him a German crew of about 24 men, all expert in their respective lines, and including several officers who saw much Zepplin service during the war.

The Zepplin company will have the responsibility of delivery of the ship to American officials. As soon as the ZR-3 will be turned over formally to Captain G. W. Steele, who is now here to inspect the ship in the various stages of her construction. Captain Steele was designated by Secretary Denby some months ago as commander of the ZR-3 when she lands in the United States.

Dr. Eckener, tall and dignified, has more the appearance of a college professor than the builder of huge airships. He speaks English, is wrapped up in his work, and smokes an English pipe when off duty outside the Zepplin sheds.

TURKEY MARKET OPENS TODAY

Price of 27 Cents Per Pound Prevails Throughout the Greater Part of Day.

BUYERS FEAR A DROP

Indications This Afternoon Pointed to a Weakening Market, According to Cash Purchasers.

The turkey market opened today at 27 cents and remained practically level throughout the day. Except for slight flurries there was no change and at the close of buying this evening indications pointed to a weak market. A few choice birds sold for 27 1/2 cents, and a few extra fancy brought even higher prices, but for the market the price stood at 27 cents during the entire day and was the amount paid by the buyers.

Receipts were heavy in spite of the fact that the growers are holding back the bulk of the birds for the Christmas trade. Many of the turkeys failed to fatten up in time for the Thanksgiving market, and consequently will be held until the holidays. The price was also a factor, as many growers preferred to take a chance on better prices at Christmas time rather than sell for the low price paid today.

The price paid today was the lowest for many years, in fact, since the war, and growers felt rather reluctant to sell at the prices set. However, all indications point to a weak market, and late this afternoon the buyers were pessimistic concerning the future. It was reported before the market closed, that the big houses represented by local buyers had placed a limit on the number of birds to be received, indicating that they do not look forward to any upward tendencies.

Cash buyers in Roseburg today received a heavier per centage of turkeys than for the last few seasons. Although the pool was well patronized, a large number of growers sold for cash and the independent buyers were kept busy handling the birds brought in.

George Kohlhaugen had the largest number of birds of the Roseburg buyers. Mr. Kohlhaugen was only slightly behind the pool in the number of turkeys received. The Peoples Supply company, also had liberal receipts, and their large warehouse contained many fine looking fowls.

Louis Kohlhaugen also had a number of birds on hand. Harry Hanson, of the Roseburg Poultry Market drew out of the market early this morning and refused to buy. He was one of the heaviest buyers last year. O. J. Lindsay bought a few birds for cash here, but purchased a large number in other towns.

The pool operated by the Farm Bureau Exchange, received more birds than any of the local buyers, but not in proportion to last season, judging from appearances.

In the northern part of the county, however, it is reported that the pool is receiving the bulk of the turkeys, and that not so many of the growers are selling for cash as in Roseburg. At Sutherlin and Oakland the receipts were heavy and the pool there will be quite large.

Swift and company, and I. W. Ringer, were both represented in the northern market, as well as in Roseburg, and O. J. Lindsay of this city, buying for a San Francisco firm, also was receiving there, taking in a large number of birds, particularly at Wilbur. Conditions were the same in the southern section of the county where quite a large number of turkeys were received.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Wench of Sutherlin, motored over today and spent a few hours in Roseburg visiting and looking after business interests.
