ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 29, 1923.

THE DAY OF THANKSGIVING

The old time Thanksgiving had four features. First, a church service of thankful recognition; Second, a feast of good things to eat; Third, a reunion of kinsfolks; Fourth, kindly provision for the poor and needy.

The modern Thanksgiving observance should include all four of these features. If any of them are lacking, our lives will miss an enriching influence. If our modern folks demand their holiday for rest and pleasure, they can maintain the thankful heart just the same. But human life needs the quiet hour of religious devotion. Unless opportunity is found for that at some time, our natures will lose connection with the deeper springs of inspiration and happiness. Most of us have been happy in the main or could be so if we would live generous and useful lives, and we all owe something of recognition to the universal love that enfolds us.

It is not necessary to urge anyone to provide the second element of feasting. And duty that appeals to the stomach is performed with great enthusiasm.

The third element of family reunion is kept alive fairly well, perhaps as much as can be expected considering how families are scattered over this wide land. The thronged trains on the day before the holiday, and automobile parties filled with jolly bunches of people going back to the old home or meeting relatives elsewhere, tell that side of the story. Family friendships are worth while keeping up. They constitute a binding tie in a day when friendships often change as frequently as styles of clothing.

Don't forget the fourth element of charity. The people who just provide for their own pleasure, and neglect the opportunity for generous acts to those who have a hard time, miss the best experiences of Thanksgiving Day.

The surprising statement was recently made by the chief of the women's division of the Washington, D. C., police, that the boys of the country are becoming better all the time, while girls from 12 to 20 are becoming wayward. It has generally been felt that women and girls had higher moral standards than men and boys, but the above named lady has had a good chance to know the real truth. She finds that the wayward girls come largely from middle class and rich homes, rather than from the poor. If it is really true that boys are improving faster than the girls, one reason may be that in games like football, baseball, basketball, etc., the boys have an outlet for their activity that carries them past some dangerous corners.

So far no success is reported in persuading the young crowd to give up Sunday automobile riding on the theory that it is dangerous.

One quick way of getting a supply of kindling wood and old iron is to try to beat the train with an automobile at the railroad crossing.

Here's hoping the Roseburg Elks put it over those Coos Bay clamdiggers.

Turkey with all the trimmings didn't set so bad today.

This is regular football weather.

Dear Folks:

I 'spose dinner'll soon be here, but gosh! it's tough a-waitin'. Thanksgiving comes but once a year with all its celebratin', and time just drags and pokes along. It's hard a keepin' steady when all the time you're wishin' so, that dinner would be ready.

The turkey's in the kitchen now, a hangin' up and dryin'. The pantry's full of goodies too, I found it out by spyin'. And Grand-ma's helpin' Ma to bake some cakes with nuts and spices. I'm hopin' when tomorrow comes I'll get a dozen slices. My Pa is thinkin' just like me, and Ma says she's supposin' he's going to spoil his appetite, the way he's always moanin' and pokin' into this and that a nibblin' and a tastin'. But Pa says it's a sinful act to have things round a wastin'.

I'm thankful for a heap of things. I'm thankful that I'm livin', I'm thankful for the holidays and mostly for Thanksgiving. I'm thankful God is good to me. I'm thankful for His blessing. I'm thankful nothing's round about that's gloomy or distressin'.

I'm thankful I've an appetite that's good and sound and healthy, that Pa says though he's poor in cash, in other things he's wealthy. But when the time comes around, I'll sit up still and steady, and say a prayer of thankfulness when Ma says, "Dinner's ready."

Throughout the evening they wiggle

Except for the music they'd land in the jug.

A Chicago salesman who had changed to his heavy underwear was making a trip through the South where he found some balmy weather. Accordingly he sent his wife the following telegram: "SOSSVDPDQ."

Being afraid won't hurt anyone but it's acting it out that puts the blink on you.

To every man there comes a time when he wonders how he could have been such a fool.

The prize dumbbell is the man who when a girl asks him, "How old do you really think I am?" tells her.

No wonder the politicians don't understand Coolidge. There are over 100,000 words in the dictionary, and he uses so few of them.

A citizen who maintained a pawnshop took out a fire insurance policy. The same day a blaze broke out that destroyed the building and its contents.

The insurance company tried in vain to find sufficient grounds to refuse payment, and was obliged to content itself with the following letter appended to the check:

"Dear Sir: We note that your policy was issued at ten o'clock on Thursday morning and that the fire did not occur until three-thirty. Why this unseemly delay?"

Hip boots will be given at the football game instead of rally checks, the committee announces.

SONG OF THE SUBSCRIPTION AGENT

Just take this tin sign, mister,
And nail it on your gate
And every kind of trouble
Will miss you from that date.

What have you, toothache? Dandruff? Don't call the doctor in! We'll give you full protection With this tennent piece of tin.

Do you have any worries? Is there anyone you hate? It's all lived in a jiffy. With the tin sign on your gate.

Does someone owe you money? Do you quarrel with your kin? Forget it! All you have to do is buy this piece of tin.

It makes a snorin' racehorse: From the magnificent old skate, it he grazes in a pasture With a tin sign on the gate.

What's the matter with your slipper? It's a darn good excuse to give his wife to keep from goin' out in the woodshed after an armful of wood.

FEATURE ACTS FOR ANNUAL SHOW

In addition to the Elks Purple and White Minstrels to be presented at the Authors theatre December 17 and 18 the famous legion show, "A Night in Gay Paree," with the original cast will be given. This musical comedy which was witnessed by hundreds on Armistice night, is one of the snuggest acts ever witnessed in the city. The director of the minstrels is polishing up the dance steps and songs and it will be given as the grand finale to the performance.

The minstrel committee is presenting a new act this year titled "There's a new band in town." They refuse to divulge the nature of the band, but it promises to be a real musical organization.

The lower floor and balcony will be reserved at one dollar per seat and you'd better get your reservations now, Bill.

The annual Christmas charity show is one of the big features of the year and it is expected that standing room will be at a premium on the two nights.

A NEW ENCLOSED STUDEBAKER MODEL

A light-six five-passenger coupe which admirably combines sedan comfort and roominess with the sociability of the coupe has just been announced as an addition to the Studebaker line.

The five passenger coupe body is mounted on the standard light-six chassis and seats five passengers in perfect comfort. The rear seat extends clear across the full width of the body, providing ample room for three. The driver's seat and auxiliary seat are identical in size and cushioning. The auxiliary seat is of an improved bucket type and can be folded out of the way when not in use, making it easy and convenient for all passengers to enter or leave the car.

The body is of Studebaker construction and in every detail will be found evidence of the highest quality of materials, specifications of ample dimensions and painstaking craftsmanship. Studebaker's 71 years' experience in building highest grade vehicles is reflected throughout this car.

Upholstery is of Chase mohair with top lining, trimming and floor carpets in harmony.

The lighting equipment includes distinctive head lights, attractive coach lamps and rear corner reading lights which are operated from the instrument board. The broad rear side and door windows are raised and lowered by convenient regulators. All hardware is nickel finished.

The doors are extremely wide and are hung on concealed hinges. Disappearing checks keep the doors in place while open.

A luggage rack at the rear with nickel-plated rail and aluminum panel guards add to the utility of the car.

The light six five passenger coupe is also equipped with high quality heater; one-piece, rain-proof windshield with windshield cleaner; built in, glare-proof, glass visor; quick-action cowl ventilator; three-proof transmission lock; wrist-day clock, and other refinements that contribute to the comfort and convenience of passengers.

Lowell Busch and Ray Lenny, from Clarkston, Washington, are recent arrivals here, and expect to stay through the winter.

The extremely fair prices asked for Goodyear Tires year in and year out are shown in the chart above. Goodyear Tires are selling today for 45% less than in 1920; 39% less than in 1914. Despite this, their quality was never so high as now. This is a good time to buy Goodyears.

As Goodyear Service Station Dealers we sell and recommend the new Goodyear Cord with the bonded All-Weather Tread and back them up with standard Goodyear Service.
