ROSEBURG, OREGON, TUESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1923.

THE CHRISTMAS GIFT SEASON.

It is human nature, when people get hold of a good idea, to warp and twist it more or less out of shape. Thus it is to some extent with the matter of Christmas presents.

Many people at Christmas time take pleasure in doing up their gift parcels in an artistic manner, with pretty bits of colored string and attractive wrapping paper.

Some cities are trying out all year schools, in which the same are in session practically all the year.

Dear Folks: When mother's feelin' sick and mean and when her head is achin', she keeps right on a doin' things, a sweepin' and a bakin'.

I'm a hardened sinner; I've a crush on Nell; Nell is gone on Algermon, And Ainy's fopped for Belle; Belle is after Stephen, Steve is chasing Sue.

Another good intelligence test is a good stretch of road and a car that will do seventy when wide open.

Daughter hasn't time to help mother wash dishes she's too busy singing about bananas.

Do you remember your emotions when you were a little kid and got a tin flute, and a red mosquito-bar bag with three pieces of hard candy from the Sunday school Christmas tree?

Not that we wish to recall bitter memories.

The only spends who are devoting their energies to keeping things, are spenders.

A woman who paints china dishes seldom knows how to wash 'em.

No doubt the underworld would cheerfully consent to a disarmament conference on the understanding that the police were to disarm first.

A man may know the world and be a total stranger to himself.

He—"Your little brother just saw me kid you. What can I give him to keep him from telling?" She—"He generally gets a dollar."

Opportunity comes to us all but it won't wait for you to take a bath and change your clothes.

Keeping man in hot water makes them hard-boiled.

"The University of Missouri band has banned jazz music," notes a Missouri paper, "but anyway we still have about 17,500 radio stations broadcasting jazz every night. Somehow the folks seem to like a little pepper and salt on their muskamelon."

Do your Xmas shopping early and get out of the way for the rest of us.

Myman Wellenberg today exemplified the condition of a man who has just paid his taxes by passing down the main stem with a tattered and torn bumbarsfoot.

INFERNAL REVENUE.

(By Wickes Wamhold.) Fundamentally people achor taxes. Early history seems to record about as many squabbles over that item as over anything else.

There is one way to escape taxes, and that is to eliminate the advantages of civilization. Let the wilderness remain unbroken, the children uneducated, the country unpopulated, the roads unimproved—and perhaps we would have no taxes.

The people of the well taxed states are not the hard-up people. Prosperity begets prosperity. Pass money out freely and it comes back freely if you pass it out constructively.

A state is a great institution. It is an enormous business, if you please. It takes money to run a big business and make it grow.

The Hotline Conservatory invites all its students ten years of age and over to attend a Christmas party, Saturday evening at 8 o'clock.
