GERMAN EMIGRANTS ARE DISSATISFIED IN ADOPTED COUNTRIES

(Associated Press.)
LEIPZIG, Dec. 12.—Germany's enforced emigration apparently results in many persons getting into lands where they are not contented. German papers abound in letters from emigrants who are dissatisfied with their new homes and warn their fellow-countrymen to exercise greater care in choosing a land for adoption.

Most of the complaints are clearly from men of the middle class who have had experience as clerks, salesmen, teachers and accountants. Artisans and farm workers are not numerous among the grumblers.

In fact, most of the letters urge that only artisans and men experienced as farmers try their hands in South America, Canada and the United States, and Germans are warned to select a land where they will not have to compete with negro labor whose living standards are below those of Germans.

Brazil is commended by many correspondents to the German press as a place where emigrants can soon earn enough on coffee plantations to buy land of their own. Argentina is less favorably mentioned because of the keen competition of the Italian farm workers who are satisfied with a lower wage than a German can live on in the style he desires.

One correspondent writing from Mexico warns his countrymen not to be fooled by rosy pictures of that country. An artisan writing from Chile says it is hard for German mechanics to compete in that country with artisans from Spain, Portugal, Italy, Dalmatia and Syria who are contented with very low wages. But these communications from disillusioned emigrants who clearly expected to find sudden wealth and an easy lot beyond the sea do not discourage thousands of others in Germany from making preparations to leave the fatherland. They will go nearly anywhere. Half the population of Germany wants to go to the United States. It stands to them as symbolical of the dollar. But the farces Americanward are beyond their reach.
