The Williamsburg bridge comes next, with a length of 7,308 feet and a record maximum span of 1,600 feet. The Manhattan Bridge is 6,855 feet long and the Brooklyn Bridge, although more famous than the others, is only 6,016 feet long. The Manhattan bridge was the most expensive to build, costing $31,084,705. These four bridges cost a total of $97,959,133.

While these tunnels and bridges, considered as a unit, are one of the wonders of the modern world, engineers say that it will be necessary constantly to add to them if the city is to expend normally and achieve a natural growth. The taxpayers of New York no doubt often regret that their famous wonderland is entirely surrounded by water.

WASHOUT TO BE SPANNED WITHIN A FEW DAYS

MARSHFIELD, Dec. 13.—There is a possibility that rush freight may be gotten across the bridge at Austa Thursday according to unofficial word today. The idea is to push the emergency freight across on the false work and then take out the damaged span and replace it with a new one. This will mean a second delay.

Chief Dispatcher Harden of the Southern Pacific said there were no advices officially and that Thursday was the date originally set for the first crossing of trains there.

Today's train from the north will arrive about 8 o'clock, the same as last night.

WILLIAMS WINS IN BALL LEAGUE FIGHT

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 13.—Harry Williams is the legally elected president of the Pacific Coast baseball league, the board of arbitration of big nad little baseball moguls decided last night.

With the Pacific coast league presidency squabble out of the way, the annual meeting of the big and little moguls of baseball swung int oits final and major phase today.

As the American and National leagues went into joint session it was a moot question whether the talk of a fight on Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball, would bear fruit. Landis had the comfort of knowing that the National league is with him because last evening the club owners of the senior circuit adopted a resolution commending him for his "conscientious devotion to duty, the impartial and fearless decisions rendered and the firm and uncompromising determination to hold to and preserve the best traditions of professional baseball."

Landis Given Support.

The owners pledged their "hearty and loyal support" to the commissioner.

What effect this action will have on Ban B. Johnson's rumored decision to attempt to curb the powers of Landis is problematical. Report has it that seven of the American league club woners have pledged their support to Johnson for any actino he may take on the commissioner.

Harry Williams is th elegally elected president of the coast league, the board of arbitration decided. It also censured William Wrigley, Jr., chewing gum king and owner of the Cubs and Los Angeles club, Wade Killefer, former manager of the Los Angeles clubs and Charles Lockard, formerly employee of Wrigley, for Wrigley's connection with the transaction that turned the Seattle club over to Killefer nad Lockard nad precipitated the fight between William McCarthy and Williams for the presidency. McCarthy held that the Seattle club was not entitled to a vote but even without this vote, the clubs stood four to three for seating Williams.

Conference Near Close.

A joint meeting of the two major leagues this afternoon brought the annual baseball conference near its close.

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, supreme commissioner of organized baseball and usually distinguished by his untiring efforts for peace and harmony, appeared out of patience with wrangling factions in the major and minor leagues.

"I am just wondering whether all this muddle is worth a grown man's time," he remarked to a newspaperman as he went into the joint big league session over which he presided.

Smouldering insurrection against Landis has been reported in many sections of the conference.

Bitter Contest.

As the session continued it was evident that a bitter contest was being waged. Although the magnates met behind closed doors, hundreds of followers of the sport congregated outside could hear members in heated debate.

Above the tumult, the heavy voice of Landis could be heard. Landis made a speech lasting 20 minutes, which was followed by shouting of approval and cries of antagonism.

"Take it or leave it," Landis shouted in response to an objection raised from one quarter of the convention room.

"We can't go nay farther, gentlemen," he declared at another time. The crowd outside was uncertain of the subject fo the argument, but it was believed it concerned illegal trades.

Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, made a short talk in which he urged "clean baseball." He was cheered tremendously.

BAZAAR AT CAMAS VALLEY IS GREAT SUCCESS

The bazaar given by the ladies of the Neighborhood club Dec. 7, proved to be very successful.

The needle work booth was presided over by Mrs. Parrott and every article sold. The "kitchen" was in charge of Mrs. Edmonds, Mrs. Russell and Alice Scranton, who dispensed pies, cakes, sandwiches, coffee and cocoa to the hungry public.

Two great attractions of the evening were the fish pond under the supervision of Mrs. Beloit, and the grab bag, presided over by some of the high school girls. The high school also had a booth for their display of candy and fancy work, which was entirely disposed of.

The amount made by the ladies' club was $50, and by the high school, $26.
