THE BIBLE IN POPULAR LANGUAGE

During recent years a number of scholars and theologians have been offering the public new translations of the Bible, or parts of it. Some of these translations attempt to modernize the Bible by putting it into more colloquial English, with the idea that people will find it easier to read it. There are of course many words and phrases in the old King James version, and even in the more modern revised editions, that seem antiquated and obsolete to many people. Some may think that the Bible seems forbidding on this account. Others like these quaint old ways of expressing thought. It was the testimony during the war, that the ordinary run of American boys found great comfort and satisfaction in reading their Bibles, particularly the New Testament. That would make it seem as if the old fashioned forms of speech did not prevent them from getting the true inspiration of these marvelous thoughts. Human knowledge has advanced tremendously since the King James version was made, and recent discoveries have made clear points that were obscure when the modern revised versions were issued about 1885 and 1900. An up to date translation should be more correct. Yet there is a picturesque, graphic, and majestic style about the famous King James translation, a high range of poetic imagery, some of which would be lost if the text were rendered into ordinary modern English speech. If one were to write a historical novel, it would not seem appropriate to put the saying of the characters into modern every day English. It is a good deal the same in translating the Bible sayings. The versions of the Bible now used have many antiquated forms of expression, but they possess a great power over the human heart.

That 50 per cent of the wild denizens of field and woodland will have paid with their life this year because of the use of the automobile hunting, is the statement of Dr. William T. Hornaday of New York City. That is to say, the modern hunter can easily cover far more territory than could be covered by the hunter who went afoot or covered by the automobile hunter. The distinguished director of the New York Zoological Garden thinks that our wild game is doomed unless protective measures are adopted. In addition to protective legislation, Dr. Hornaday would call on the good sportsmanship of the hunter. Let the hunter go slow and take a reasonable tool, recognizing the new peril to wild life. He appeals to the sentiment of self-interest. Otherwise legislation will not be able to preserve the birds of the air and beasts of the field that have so long made this country of ours a hunter's paradise. The pump gun is accountable for much useless slaughter of birds.

Making New Year resolutions was once a matter taken seriously by many people. It was considered a very favorable time for people to swear off from indulgence in both great and little vices. While the majority of folks who tried to abandon bad habits at that time, may have yielded to them again in a few weeks, yet there always have been some who through such resolves have been able to attain mastery of their own lives. It is a great thing when a man's mind and conscience are the complete rulers of his life, and he is able to make his habits take their place as the servants of his spirit. The folks whose habits rule their mentality are like a team of runaway horses. They may be able to tear along the road without smashing anything, but a man's brain and will power are unhappy passengers behind such unruly beasts.

Dear Folks: The rich man often fails to see the way the poor man lives. He only knows the poor man takes, while he's the one who gives. He doesn't see the stress of want the poor man has to bear, and often-times because of this, the rich man doesn't care. The rich man doesn't see the bills the poor man has to pay. He doesn't see the creditors that drive his joy away. He doesn't see the misery that goes with lack of cash. He doesn't see the bitterness when things go all to smash.

The poor man often fails to see the way the rich man works. He doesn't seem to understand the rich man never shirks. He doesn't see the heavy loads the rich man has to bear, and often-times because of this, the poor man doesn't care. The poor man doesn't see the bills the rich man has to pay. He doesn't see the reasons why the rich man's hair is gray. The big responsibilities that sag the rich man's knees, are things the poor man overlooks and mighty seldom sees.

If both could see each other's lives and live them for a while, they might not pass upon the street without a smile. Instead perhaps, they'd stop to chat and shake each other's hand. While each might say, "Cheer up old man. You bet I understand."

On acct. of so many of the village loafers congregating on the corner of Cass and Jackson streets on Saturday p. m. the city council is considering installing several cupids on the intersection to take care of the overflow.

The legion aggregation turkeyed last night and Rudy's gang provided the trimmings which were plentiful enough had there not been so many gluttons present. Personally, our appetite was never better.

Mary Pickford arrived in the village this week but as yet we have not located her at any of the local hotels for an interview.

It was the witching hour when all was hushed and dark. Suddenly the midnight stillness was broken by a crash from upstairs. "G-g-g-good Lord, what was that, dud-dud-dud-dud!" exclaimed the timid young Adonis. "Merely father dropping a hint," she replied, snuggling closer.

An old girl who lacks the necessary nerve to bob her hair, consoles herself thusly: "Soon I'll be one of the few women left who have long hair, and perhaps some men will say to himself, 'There's a sensible girl for me.' Splendid plan with just one flaw in it. Men don't like 'em sensible."

No wonder a metropolis laughs at a village. A village thinks a barn fire is more important news than a divorce.

Another popular bedtime story just now is "Say, we ought to have more covers."

ANY LEAD IS FOLLOWED "You look sweet enough to eat," He whispered soft and low, "I do?" the fair one answered, "Where do you want to go?"

Even to the exaggerated ego there comes a period of deflation.

Character is what takes you to Heaven; reputation is the thing you cash at the paying teller's window here and now.

It begins to look like we will not commit the sin of dying rich.

HE DIDN'T KNOW "How is your car running?" asked one motorist of another. "That's what puzzles me," replied the other.

The country girls are vanishing from rural parts, and a magazine writer is much worried, and asks where they have gone. Boy, they have gone into the movies. If you don't believe it, go and look at some of the movies.

FOOLISH QUESTIONS "Have you ever been cross examined?" asked the attorney. "Should say I have," replied the client. "I am a married man."

On next Fri. eve the Eugene basketballers will drop down for a little visit and the r. h. s. hoopsters plan to give them a warm reception.

The small town flappers are gradually being placed in the background on acct. of all the girls lookin' like 'em.

The st. cleaning dept. has had nothing to do of late and it is expected that surplus pep will run them over into the summer months.

PUBLISHER ASKED TO MAKE STATEMENT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—After considerable argument the senate public lands committee voted today to ask Edward B. McLean, the Washington publisher, for a sworn statement regarding the $100,000 loaned to Albert B. Fall, former secretary of interior, whose financial affairs have come under review in the Tea Pot Dome investigation in the senate.

Recently Mr. McLean's attorney, A. Mitchell Palmer, made a statement regarding the loan, but Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, insisted today that the publisher be called for personal examination.

A physician's certificate was filed saying Mr. McLean's health demanded that he remain at Palm Beach, Florida.

EPISCOPAL DIOCESE MOVED TO PENDLETON

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) BAKER, Ore., Jan. 5.—Bishop W. P. Remington has announced his decision to make Pendleton his headquarters for the Eastern Oregon Episcopal diocese and will remove his temporary headquarters from Baker the first of February. Pendleton, La Grande and Baker have been competing for the Episcopal headquarters for some months and the final decision was influenced by the geographic location which Pendleton occupies as the center of the eastern Oregon districts from which the various parishes which come under the bishop's supervision may be reached.

DOG OWNERS, NOTICE

You will please take notice that all dog licenses must be paid to the City Treasurer before January 15th, and if not paid by that time the dog may be impounded and the owners are subject to fine.

I. S. KETCH, Chief of Police.

HOWLING, BITING WIND IN PORTLAND

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, Jan. 5.—A howling, biting east wind, which was officially registered in the heart of the city at 28 miles an hour, but which exceeded that velocity in outlying sections gave Portland a severe night with minimum temperature of 22 degrees. Moderation during the next 24 hours was forecast. The two inches of snow which fell earlier in the week remain on the ground.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas A new oil lamp that gives amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94% air and 6% common kerosene (coal oil). The inventor, V. M. Johnson, 161 North Union Ave., Portland, Ore., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.

WORK ON BAKER PROJECT IS URGED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—An Oregon congressional delegation, accompanied by a group of business men, urged Secretary Work today to hasten construction work on the Baker reclamation project, already authorized by congress and to extend further relief to Oregon water users through the building of an additional plant in that state.

WARMER WEATHER IN SOUTHERN OREGON

SENIOR BOYS TO GIVE VAUDEVILLE

The senior boys of the local high school are working on a vaudeville which they hope will out-class any comedy play ever given by the high school. Following up the idea suggested by the girls' vod-vill, they will endeavor to raise funds to be applied on the lawn or other improvements. Several one-act plays have been started as well as a number of skits, dialogues and funny features. Many musical numbers and a lot of surprise stunts are also being worked up. The date for the performance has not been definitely set, but the show will be given probably some time this month.
