TEAPOT DOME CASE BE AT STANDSTILL

(Associated Press Licensed Wire.) WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The senate Teapot dome investigation which inspired a sensational speech on the senate floor yesterday by Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, probably will remain at a standstill for several days.

Meantime members of the public lands committee in charge of the inquiry, will canvass the situation to determine whether it would be advisable again to summon Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, accused by Senator Caraway of having "sold" the navy's oil reserve for a "corrupt consideration," and of having told a "wilful and deliberate falsehood," to the committee when it sought to determine the source of certain funds he obtained to purchase ranch property in New Mexico.

Chairman Lenroot left Washington last night and until he returns next week there will be no meeting of the committee. When a meeting is called Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, will make a report on his recent trip to Florida to examine Edward B. McLean, the Washington newspaper publisher, from whom Mr. Fall said he borrowed $100,000. Senator Walsh said today he would not ask the committee to recall Mr. Fall.

CASTE RULES INDIA SCHOOLS

"Untouchable" Children Are Not Permitted to Mingle With Their "Better" There.

The public school as we know it is hardly a possibility in India, because the children of India are not permitted to enjoy anything that remotely resembles free association.

There are a great many such schools, to be sure; but the children who attend them are either caste equals or they are held to the strict observance of caste regulations.

The children of the depressed classes are not allowed to enter anywhere, says Eleanor F. Eger in the Saturday Evening Post, and I myself have seen numbers of them in groups—eager, intelligent and sadly conscious of their disabilities—squatting on schoolhouse verandas, absorbing such instruction as they could get through open windows and schoolhouse doors. None could by any chance cross a schoolroom threshold.

Yet in one way, and as far as the advantages go, the depressed classes enjoy better educational advantages than any class in India, because it is to them that the Christian missionaries devote their particular attention.

It is to be understood, of course, that the communities and castes are all mixed up in the general population, and are not, except in occasional instances, domiciled en masse in separate areas. A Hindu and a Mohammedan may live in adjoining houses; but it is just that they may not borrow each other's frying pans, so to speak.

The castes and the communities may all enjoy a certain measure of social intercourse; they may meet together and talk and argue and do—the British raj in union if they are so minded—and this is what they have been doing to an increasing extent during the past few years—but it must all be in the open places of public assembly.

It is the habitation that is inviolable; the person that must be guarded against pollution.

MAKING PAPER FROM ASPENS

Industry Suggested for Utah, Which Has About 100,000 Acres of Those Trees.

In Utah the manufacture of paper from aspens is no new idea, as some of the pioneers in that state produced a fair grade of paper from wood pulp and rags suitable for news print. From time to time the shortage of paper supply has brought attention to the possibilities of employing the quaking aspen trees of Utah for reduction to pulp for paper manufacture.

Now there are approximately 100,000 acres of the slopes in northern and central Utah. Their usefulness consists of serving as a cover for young evergreens, and to a certain extent they aid in controlling the flow of streams, and for that reason are conserved by foresters. The timber is soft and not of value commercially, and without denuding the aspen areas, the mature trees, it is averred, would furnish sufficient annual paper supply for the entire West. The trees grow rapidly, maturing at twenty to forty years of age on the gentler slopes and in flat regions, where they could be easily and cheaply gathered for the pulp mills. Only trees three inches or more in diameter would be taken.

Not Interested.

"It says in the paper here," began Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading, "that an airplane traveling at the rate of two hundred miles an hour would take fifty-three years to go from the earth to the sun."

"What's that?" returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, aroused from a doze.

"You wasn't listening, torment it! It would take an airplane going at two hundred miles an hour fifty-three years to reach the sun."

"What's the difference? You ain't aiming to go there, are you?"—Kansas City Star.

Wouldn't Commit Himself.

Numerous ladies now study law, are admitted to practice and become ornaments of the bar. A Supreme court judge met one of the youngest in the corridor of a public building. He bowed and paused to remark: "You are the prettiest lawyer I ever saw, and I may add, one of the best."

She thanked him and passed on.

"Which compliment did you prefer?" asked a friend who had overheard.

But the lady, being a good lawyer as well as a pretty girl, refused to commit herself.

Hatchonchotel Rebuilt.

Hatchonchotel, one of the most picturesque villages in France, held by the Germans for four years, and later captured by American troops, has been rebuilt by Miss Belle Skinner, a wealthy resident of Holyoke, Mass. The place has a new town hall, with a school, a new library and a thing unknown before in the long history of the village—a water supply system, as well as a monument to the war dead.

New Crop Diseases.

Fifteen new diseases of field and vegetable crops were reported in the United States during 1922. Twelve crops were affected. They were carrot, radish, Swiss chard, lettuce, potato, radish, Chinese cabbage, bean, watermelon, sweet potato, tomato and tobacco. Most of the new diseases appeared in very restricted areas, seeming to be the result of abnormal climatic and similar conditions.

NOW HE KNOWS.

Slam, bang, crash! Thus was shattered the silence of the night. After that final crash came a pause that was portentous. A faint stir was heard.

"Mother whispered: 'Dear me, father didn't know we moved the hat-rack.'"

"Well, he knows now," muttered grandma.

Expensive.

Frederick O'Brien, author of South Sea Island adventures, was entertaining friends at his Glendale home with some of his experiences. He chanced to remark that on one of the islands a wife could be bought for the equivalent of $5. "How perfectly awful!" exclaimed one of the ladies present. "Oh, I don't know," reflected her husband. "I suppose prices are high there, just the same as everywhere else."

Rare White-Tailed Squirrel.

A peculiar animal which is engaging the attention of the government biological survey is the white-tailed squirrel, known as the Kaibab squirrel. Almost nothing is known about it because of its limited range—one of the smallest covered by any North American animal. It is found only in Kaibab plateau in northern Arizona. The creature seems to have been cut off from all migration by the great canyon to the south and by the impassable deserts on every other side. Forest rangers throughout the Southwest have been instructed to watch for specimens outside this region, but thus far have reported no success. One variety of squirrel, with slight traces of white on its tail is prevalent throughout the South and Southwest, and has been mistaken frequently for the Kaibab.

Curious Custom.

It was once a curious custom in England to carry wax effigies of the dead—if they were distinguished enough—in their funeral processions. It was also customary to leave the effigies near the grave for some time thereafter, and the mourning friends of the deceased used to compose elegiac, rhymed laments and similar productions, which they would write out on paper and pin to the clothing of the effigy.

A number of the quaint old effigies are still preserved at Westminster abbey, where they are stored in the last chapel, and one at least, that of Frances, duchess of Richmond, is still to be seen beside her grave in Henry VII's chapel.
