Secretary Wallace Urges Government Agency

Objective: Would Be to Secure for Farm Products Exchange Value of Pre-War Period.

(Grange Bulletin.) Establishment of a government agency with broad powers to buy and export not only wheat but pork and other farm products of which this country has a surplus and the prices of which are out of line with the prices of other goods is suggested by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace in his annual report to the President, on the ground that the plan seems practicable and is equitable in view of the fact that government action during the war is in part responsible for the present troubles of agriculture.

On the assumption that it is the national purpose to keep ourselves on a self-sustaining basis agriculturally, wisdom would seem to justify going to some trouble to help farmers bridge over a period of depression caused by an economic cataclysm, says the Secretary. Precisely that, he says, has been done in the case of labor and of some industries. Those who urged that economic laws should now be permitted to have free play with agriculture do not give full consideration, he declares, to what happened during the war and for two years afterward.

TO many of those persons of German extraction who now make their homes in America, Germany is still visualized as a land of plenty, with bountiful food supplies and healthy inhabitants. They are unable to convince themselves of the changes wrought by years of stress. Germany has undergone a metamorphosis terrible to contemplate. Undernourished men and women totter to their daily toil—when there is work to be had—and the children are as those of another and less sturdy race. Blood has gone from young cheeks and the rolicking laughter of childhood has given away to piteous appeals for food.

America has interested herself in the suffering population of Germany. A committee headed by Major General Henry T. Allen is co-operating with the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers) to see that the mouths of Germany's children receive nourishment. And now, the urge of humanity has moved the American people to take further steps to alleviate her distress. General

What God Says about SIMPLICITY

"I fear lest your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ."

And your fears were realized, Brother Paul.

There is nothing evil that is going on in Christian circles today that is so evil as the corruption of the simple faith that is in Christ. And it is the mind that is being attacked, and all sorts of reasonings being set up in the mind. Yes, just as the serpent set up reasonings in the mind of Eve by that one subtle inquiry, "Hath God said?"

Let that get started in a man's mind and it will soon chill his heart. Simple faith in Jesus, Christ is a matter of the heart which heart, simple faith in Jesus, and that settles it; the God who loved us and gave His Son to die for us "Hath said," and that's enough. That sort of talk from the standpoint of the love of God keeps the heart simple and the heart warm, and the mind convinced, in such a way that no challenge can unsettle it.

But let the love fires burn low and disobedience be indulged in and some day the same old serpent will whisper to the mind, "Hath God said?" and then away goes simplicity of faith and authority of God said, and before He knows it a fog will settle down over a testimony, and before He knows it, until he is as helpless as the thousand and one other Christians who crowd our church rolls, but not our church services.

I wish this pen-voice of mine might have the roar of a fog horn to keep men off the rocks of unbelief and start them back to the simplicity of gospel faith in Jesus Christ as a supernatural teacher and Saviour.
