REVENUE BILL BEFORE HOUSE

the higher, though the percentage of reduction, of course, is much larger in the higher brackets than in the lower.

Explaining the reductions in the maximum surtax from 50 to 55 per cent Mr. Green referred to Secretary Mellon's argument that this rate "should be considered the point at which they (the surtaxes) could be applied effectively or the point of maximum productivity." He added, however, that it is impossible to accurately determine at what rate of tax this point is reached, but it seems to be generally conceded that a 50 per cent surtax has a constantly increasing effect in creating evasions and that it is inadvisable for other reasons.

Referring to the provision for a 25 per cent reduction in tax on earned incomes, the chairman said:

"The definition that at least $5,000 of the taxpayers' income shall in all cases be considered earned amply provides for the small taxpayer, such as the farmer and the merchant whose income is derived in part from capital, and approaches exact justice as near as it is possible without making the law unworkable and impossible of administration.

The following changes were recited so as to prevent the advance in income:

"The existing law provides that the amount by which the tax is increased on account of the gain from the sale of capital assets shall not exceed 12 1/2 per cent of the gain and in the proposed bill it is provided that the amount by which the tax is reduced on account of losses from the sale of capital assets shall not exceed 12 1/2 per cent of the loss.

"The provisions of the reorganization sections have been re-written to prevent the use of the section to escape proper taxation by increasing the basis for depreciation or depletion or by increasing the basis for determining gain or loss from the sale of assets transferred in connection with a reorganization or by distributing a capital gain what are in effect district out of earnings.

"Where the grantor of a trust retains the power of revocation the income of the trust is to be taxed to him.

"The penalty imposed by section 220 upon corporations availed of to avoid the imposition of surtaxes on the stockholders is now based upon all the income of the corporation which would be taxed in the hands of an individual and the presumption is created that any investment company is availed of for the purpose of avoiding the imposition of surtaxes on stockholders.

"The deduction for interest paid on indebted (other than interest paid or incurred in connection with the trade or business of the taxpayers) ## and the deduction for non-business losses are allowed only to the extent of the taxpayer."

The report of the 11 republicans of the committee was the same as Chairman Green's except for considerable additional argument defending the cut in surtaxes to a maximum of 25 per cent. It pointed out that the high rates were becoming increasingly unproductive citing that incomes of over $100,000 constituted 29.5 per cent of the total income reported in 1916 and 5.4 per cent and 4.5 per cent, respectively in 1920 and 1921.

"The only way that the income tax as applied to large incomes can be made an actuality," the report said, "is by reducing the rate of tax to a sound level and thus lessening the incentive to tax payors to avoid the tax."

The democratic report called for a reduction in the normal taxes to two per cent on net incomes up to $5,000; four per cent on incomes between $5,000 and $8,000 and six per cent above that amount.

Representative Garner's original plan called for a four per cent tax on incomes between $5,000 and $10,000; and the reduction to $8,000 was explained as necessary to keep down the loss in revenue which the treasury would sustain under the plan.

The surtax rates proposed by the democrats would start with one per cent at $12,000 and increase to 44 per cent on income of $92,000 and over. These rates, the report said, would result in losses of revenue, under treasury estimates, of $186,257,386 in the normal taxes compared with $77,104,854 under the Mellon rates adopted by the committee and $139,892,395 in the surtaxes compared to $209,352,243 under the Mellon surtaxes. The figures were based on 1921 revenue returns.

Citing Secretary Mellon's declaration that Representative Garner, ranking democrat of the committee "was playing politics in offering this tax revision plan," the report declared his expression was an "unheard of performance, as insolent as it is imprudent, and in the worst of bad faith toward progressive income taxation."

In addition to asking different income rates, the democrats proposed higher estate tax and enactment of a gift tax together with the repeal of a number of the miscellaneous taxes in addition to those already revised by the committee.

The report explained that all features of the bill were considered by the whole committee until the committee rates were reached, when the democrats were excluded.

Many sections of the measure, other than the income rates are praised, particular on the provisions relating to stopping loop holes in the administration of the law by which many large tax payers escape their just taxes, but the report added that the majority bill still leaves large discretionary powers with the treasury department in tax matters.

The warrant for Pace's arrest was sworn out by S. Glen Young, dry worker and paid employe of the Ku Klux Klan, who has set up a de facto municipal government since the arrival of the state troops, who were sent here as a result of the near riot Friday night between "wets" and "drys."

HEALTH OFFICERS FILE COMPLAINTS

State health officers today filed two complaints in the local justice court against two business organizations operating under improper, unclean and unsanitary conditions. The first of these complaints was against Boyer Brothers, who conduct the North Side meat market. When they appeared to answer the charge against them they were fined fifty dollars and costs after pleading guilty. Justice Jones gave the defendants the right to secure an attorney and contest the charges, but no defense was made and the fine was paid.

The second complaint was against J. H. Campbell and E. A. Mathews, and charged the operation of the White Front restaurant on Sheridan street under unsanitary conditions. Mr. Campbell appeared for the defendants in this case and pled guilty. A fine of thirty dollars and costs was imposed in this case. It was further stated by the health officers that the building now occupied by that restaurant would be closed for use at the end of the present month on account of the condition of the structure generally.
