MARKET REPORT

BOSTON, Feb. 29.—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: The market has been quiet on the surface during the past week, but there has been some business for mill account, involving one or two sizable lots and at fully recent prices. In the west contracting has spread out into several new states, mainly at 40 to 42 cents for both medium and fine clips. Openings of women's wear this week by the American Woolen company indicate the intention of the company to secure volume production if possible. Prices are about on last year's levels and worried about are lower.

The foreign markets are strong and Bradford has marked up tops again to the extent of two pence per pound on medium qualities. Wests and Nolls are very strong.

Mohair is in light supply abroad and very firm everywhere.

The Commercial Bulletin will publish the following wool quotations tomorrow:

Scoured basis:
 Oregon, Eastern number 1 staple $1.35@1.40; fine and fine medium, $1.30@1.35; eastern clothing $1.15@1.20; valley, number 1, $1.20@1.25

Mohair, best combing, 78@83c; best carding 70@75c.

PALMER DENIES ILLEGAL ACTION

Adoo, son of William G. McAdoo, had conferred with him regarding the statement he presented to the committee on behalf of McLean. The former attorney-general said his law firm did not represent any oil companies but he stated that he had "tried some oil cases in Oklahoma."

He described his services for McLean and various interviews he conducted with Chairman Lenroot and Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana about Mr. McLean's unwillingness to appear.

Senator Dill asked why Major had given the impression that Palmer and other were getting Sen. Underwood and other prominent people to help keep McLean off the witness stand.

"I don't know," the witness said, "except that there is a tendency for employes to try to show the boss they are very active."

Mr. Palmer then was asked about the Southern Pacific land grant case handled while he was Attorney-General. He said President Wilson approved the decision of the department of justice not to appeal the case. This matter was taken up with the president, the witness said, after Gifford Pinchot had attacked the department for its failure to act. All the officials in the department handling the case recommended against an appeal, he testified, and "solicitor-general King told me he would be ashamed to argue the case in the supreme court."

"When the announcement was made that the government wouldn't appeal that case," Senator Dill went on, "the stock of the Southern Pacific company jumped 16 per cent didn't it?"

"I never read stock reports," Senator Dill suggested that the value of the land concerned was $421,000,000 odd and that a government appeal wouldn't have cost much.

"Not much," said Palmer, "just a few thousand dollars, but we had to bring home proof as to the knowledge of the Southern Pacific company that these lands were mineral. That's my recollection after a matter of years."

"Returning to the conversation you had with Zevlev," said Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, "tell us about the obligation you thought Fall and Sinclair were under to answer our questions."

"It was the question as to whether Fall would have to tell where he got certain money," Mr. Palmer explained. "I think Zevlev said that money came from McLean. I told him I thought he would have to answer."

Senator Walsh then subjected Palmer to a rigorous cross examination on the failure of the department of justice to appeal the Southern Pacific case. The senator described the government had won a similar case against the railroad on the same set of laws and facts but Palmer disagreed with him.

Senator Dill asked if Mr. Palmer had worked with Wilton J. Lambert, another McLean attorney.

"Major's telegrams are wrong again if they say that," Mr. Palmer resumed. "I had no earthly reason to doubt the truth of Mr. McLean's statement to me that he had advanced $100,000 to Fall and in passing it on to this committee I was not seeking in any way to deceive the committee. It wasn't my word; I didn't know the facts."

Palmer said he had turned over McLean's telegram about the $100,000 advance to the committee almost without change.

"I put in 'so called' before Mr. McLean's mention of the 'oil crowd' to soften it," he said.

Senator Dill asked that the committee procure a record of messages sent over McLean's leased wire between Palm Meach and the Washington Post. Chairman Lenroot said the step would be taken, although it was said no law required the keeping of records of private messages transmitted by leased wire.

The committee adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—Karl C. Schuyler, a Denver lawyer, said before the oil committee today that the claim of Leo Stack which he pressed with Harry F. Sinclair, was based on the theory of a conspiracy between Sinclair and the Pioneer Oil company.

"There at least was a prima facie case," he said, "that the Pioneer had joined with Sinclair in helping him to get the lease."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 29.—The senate today asked that the income tax returns of a number of individuals and corporations prominently connected with the oil inquiry be thrown open to inspection by the oil committee.

Those named include Harry F. Sinclair and the oil companies with which he is connected, E. L. Doherty and E. L. Doherty Jr., and the Doherty Oil Corporations, Albert B. Fall; former secretary of the Interior and the Security Investment company.

The resolution on the subject offered by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tenn., and adopted without debate, "respectfully requests" President Coolidge to exercise the authority given under the revenue law to him to turn the reports over to the committee.

What God Says about - THE AUTHOR OF THE SECOND GOSPEL

"But Paul thought not good to take him (John Mark) with them, who departed from them, and went not with them to the work."

In other words, John Mark was a quitter. And yet, John Mark was the author—no, it isn't accurate to call him the author of the second gospel, for the Holy Spirit wrote it, using John Mark's pen and his personal characteristics—his individuality. But Paul found him a coward, or lazy, or something of that sort, and he didn't want such an alleged helper on the difficult missionary journey he knew was ahead of him.

Yet John Mark became a soldier, and he wrote the soldier's gospel. He wrote for the Roman, who was the soldier of the world of that time, and even Paul afterwards asked to have Mark come to him in his imprisonment, for, said he, "He is profitable to me." That was a rightabout, wasn't it? It shows what a new man Mark must have become.

But that is what God always does with poor material which is unreservedly put into His hand. Cowards are made brave, foolish people are made truly wise; and there is no education in the world that can hold a candle to the education in the school of the Holy Spirit, and no training in soldierly qualities that compare with the training that endures hardness like a good soldier of Jesus Christ.

So it was not at all remarkable that a coward who showed the white feather on the first missionary journey of Paul and Barnabas, should finally be used to write the story of the Captain of our Salvation. Let's read Mark's gospel and see if God won't put us in training to be good soldiers of Jesus Christ.

Caustic Editorial Hits Flapper of Century Ago

Do the flappers of 1923 cause our editors to shake their heads and wonder to what the race is coming? Listen to the editor of the Boston Repository, September 20, 1804, when he delivers a lengthy opinion on women's fashions, says the New Republic, and especially that of appearing "clad in transparent muslin when clad at all."

"With regard to dancing vulgarity has proved equally successful. The Scotch step, the Irish shuffle and the partridge waddle have triumphed over the graceful minuet and elegant cotillon. A strange rage for imitating low life seems the epidemic malady of the age, a compliment which democracy has extorted from us, or else it must be one of those unaccountable freaks which fashion sometimes plays."

Chinese Easy to Learn

Chinese in its spoken form is a simpler language than even English. There are none of the terrors of conjugation, declension or the inflections that mark European languages. Western children born in China with equal opportunities of hearing Chinese and English spoken in the home learn Chinese first because it is easier. In a year of earnest study a good foundation can be laid. Knowledge of the new Chinese alphabet enables the beginner to use the characters without the aid of oral instruction. It is thus possible for the student to carry on his own study after a start has been made with an instructor.

Sure of a Fine Funeral

A Baltimore business man asked an Irishman in his employ whether he was saving any of his money.

"Sure, I am," answered the Celt. "I've got $500 hid away in a safe place."

"But it isn't public-spirited policy to hoard money," remarked the employer, thinking to quiz the Irishman. "You ought to deposit it in a good bank, so as to keep it in circulation."

"Sure, it'll all go into circulation the second day after I am dead, sor," said Pat, proudly.—Philadelphia Ledger.

International Bible Students Assn. Study at the Moose Hall every Sunday at 10:30 a. m.

Studies in the "Harp of God and the Atonement." All dominion rightly belongs to Jehovah. He had given man dominion over the things of earth. Lucifer observed Adam and Eve, the Perfect Ones, in Eden, and knowing that they were endowed with authority from Jehovah to multiply and fill the earth, he conceived the thought in his own heart or mind that he should have a dominion of his own, and that he could have this by separating man from God and by inducing him to come under his (Satan's) dominion. The Prophet Isaiah gives us some light upon this subject, Isaiah 14:12-15. The Atonement study will be an examination of scripture regarding immortality. Come and study with us.
