ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, MARCH 6, 1924.

KEEPING CLEAN.

Cleanliness covers the whole field of sanitation. It is the beginning and the end. Uncleanliness is one of the deadliest of removable causes of disease. Filth is dangerous because it may contain the germs of disease. Cleanliness or absence of dirt is not merely an aesthetic adornment, but is above all a sanitary safeguard of importance which has been learned by hard experience. Personal cleanliness is more important than public cleanliness. Avoidance of personal filth is far more necessary than for example cleanliness of streets, back yards, and the like. And yet it must be remembered that public supplies are public dangers. A polluted water supply may infect no matter how scrupulously clean the residents of a city may be with respect to their persons. An adequate water supply is absolutely necessary for the preservation of health. No obstacle should be placed in the way of providing the community with a pure water supply. One of the most important uses of water is probably its cleansing properties. Super-cleanliness is the first step toward efficient disease prevention. Clean bodies and clean clothes are essentials of personal hygiene. Cleanliness is promoted by perspiring prior to bathing. The function of the skin in removing waste matter is not great, but a healthy skin demands frequent bathing. Warm cleansing baths followed by a cold shower or swim stimulate a normal individual and increase his resistance to disease. The importance of washing the hands before meals cannot be too forcibly carried home to every individual. There is an accumulation of filth and infection in almost every type of work and health demands that everything that touches the food supply shall be absolutely clean. The hands, face, and finger nails should be kept clean, especially before meals. Internally; water is valuable in that it promotes elimination. Water is the great solvent and carrier of material from place to place in the body. Blood is nearly all water and carries food and oxygen to the muscles, brain, etc., and waste matter from the kidneys and lungs. Your blood demands a continuous supply of water. If sufficient water is not provided constipation will result. The improvement in individuals who habitually drink little water is often remarkable when they systematically drink water in sufficient amounts. How much water should an average normal person drink in a day? A good rule is six glasses, one on rising, one at each meal, one in the forenoon and one in the afternoon. Larger amounts should of course be taken when freely perspiring. Free water drinking between meals and when the stomach is empty especially before breakfast will do much to prevent constipation and assist in efficient elimination.

MAKE IT PERMANENT.

There is reason to hope that something definitely beneficial for agriculture will come out of the conference called by President Coolidge at Washington—not only for the distressed wheat growers and bankers of the northwest, but for the whole nation. In some degree, the troubles of the Dakotas are national troubles. The immediate crises may be due to lack of credit and bank resources, but the fundamental weakness lies in the one-crop system and the low price of wheat. At another time the distress might well be in the cotton-growing section or in the so-called corn belt. Whatever emergency measures are worked out now for the benefit of the northwest should be made permanently available for the agriculture of the country. We think, in view of the fact that it has been found necessary to extend the activities of the War Finance Corporation for the second time, it is clearly up to congress to provide a permanent corporation to take its place. Perhaps nothing better will be offered than Mr. Wallace export plan, embodied in the McNary-Haugen bill. The Norbeck-Burtness bill, creating a fund to help the wheat growers to diversify their farming, will probably pass at once, and it should be of some ultimate benefit. The fear expressed in some quarters that there might be an over-production of milk if the farmers of the northwest go into dairying would not seem to be justified. The demand for dairy cows would be stronger at once and there should be a consequent increase in price; and, at the rate the milk consumption is growing, it would not seem reasonable to expect a surplus of daily production from the prairies.—Farm Life.

If it is true, as published elsewhere in today's News-Review that a California concern has been flim-flamming the Oregon prune grower, the time is about ripe to show some of that Oregon fighting spirit to protect one of the great industries of the state. At any rate, the allegations made by the Salem paper are worth thorough investigation.

Mr. Mellon, whose duty it has been to formulate a workable income tax exemption to please those of his own financial standing—which is of some magnitude—has a record of doing things on a big scale. But the scales don't always balance on the proper angle for the common herd.

CHAMBER TO MAKE BUSINESS SURVEY

Boy Scouts to Aid Chamber of Commerce in Obtaining Amounts Paid by Business Firms For Labor.

The Chamber of Commerce is making rapid progress on the survey of Roseburg and Douglas county, and everywhere the secretary has found splendid cooperation in this important work of gathering important statistics that tell the story of growth and wealth. There are only several items uncompleted, and the information gained has been a succession of pleasant surprises, and has convinced the new secretary that there is nothing the matter with Roseburg, but that there has been a steady, conservative note of progress all along the line. This is apparent from the increase in the number of electric light, water and telephone users from 1915 to 1924. It is almost apparent perhaps in the greatly increased bank deposits, these deposits more than doubling in the nine year period. There has been a steady increase in the number of miles of county and state and federal aid highway throughout the county, and the livestock has held its own in good shape. There is some room for improvement however, in this last item, for there should be more dairy cows than there are at present.

The only great task left for the secretary in compiling this survey is the number of people employed in the city and the amount of money paid out in wages during the past year. It is known that the Southern Pacific railroad has paid out over $1,000,000 in this city during 1923 for wages and that at least one industry has paid out over $40,000, but it is absolutely necessary that all firms doing business in the city report the number of people employed and the amounts paid in wages before a correct estimate of the buying power of our wage-earners can be learned.

In order to secure this last mentioned information the secretary has enlisted the assistance of the boy scouts of this city, who will shortly after the 15th of this month make a complete canvass of the city to secure this information. A card index will be used, and from the cards when turned in the chamber will have information that will be of great benefit in many ways. This announcement is made at this time so that all who file their income tax statements will remember to make a note of the amount paid to employees during the past year so that the boys will not be delayed in their work. It is hoped that this campaign for information will be completed in one day. The cards will be used in making up the grand totals, and will be kept under lock and key so that the information contained in each instance will be confidential. There is no desire to pry into the business of our merchants, but this data must be secured in order that the survey is complete and of real value. We trust that all people will cooperate fully with the boy scouts when approached on this subject.
