CALIFORNIA TAKES THE CHAMPIONSHIP

(Associated Press Licensed Wire.) OAKLAND, Calif., March 7.—

After repelling invading basketballers from the University of Washington in two of the most spectacular and bitterly contested cage clashes ever witnessed here, the University of California today wears the championship crown of the Pacific Coast conference in basketball.

The Bears emerged from the quelling affray of the season last night with a 28 to 25 victory, after administering a 22 to 21 defeat to the Huskies Tuesday evening. So evenly matched were the two quintets, however, that an extra five minutes of play was necessary to decide the winner of both contests, and so furious was the work of the players that both teams were fagged and worn at the conclusion of the melee.

Behind their scoring acres, Frayne and Hesketh, Washington presented a formidable defensive play that forced the Californians to their limit. Washington led during most of the first half of last night's contest, but the heavier Bears crept forward into a tie, with a slashing onslaught in the final period and raced to victory with two baskets in the extra session of play.

Close team work, speed on the floor and careful guarding marked the play of both teams. As the quintets battled for a slight advantage in the final score often stood at a tie and the outcome was in doubt until the crack of the final gun.

AUTO CARAVAN GOING TO MEXICO

Hawley Will Attempt to Cross Untracked Desert to Mexico City.

FIRST STOP TO BE HERE

Caravan Will Leave Portland Saturday Morning and Will Spend First Night of Trip in Roseburg.

Someone in El Paso, Texas, recently told Willard P. Hawley, Jr., wealthy young paper manufacturer, that it would be impossible to drive an automobile from the United States into Mexico City, over thousands of miles of desert wastes where no automobile has ever traveled successfully, and where rebel bands might beset the way with hazards.

To test the issue Mr. Hawley, who is vice-president and general manager of the Hawley Pulp & Paper Co., of Oregon City, is leaving Portland next Saturday morning, properly surrounded by able bodied companions and elaborately outfitted for Mexico City. The party will travel in two machines, one of them Mr. Hawley's own pleasure car and the other a "desert rat" rebuilt with the special idea in mind of making good on Mr. Hawley's boast that "it can be done."

The personnel of the Willard P. Hawley Jr. All-Oregon Motor Expedition to Mexico City and Return will include the head of the party and Earl C. Brownlee, former Portland newspaper man and now co-publisher of the Banner-Courier; Bud Straicht, chief electrician for the Hawley Pulp & Paper company, and R. H. Brownell, well known Portland motion picture cameraman.

Whatever the element of "impossibility" may be seems to have been taken into account by Mr. Hawley, who flatly declares that he is going to drive to Mexico City and to drive back to the United States and stay on rubber tires all the way. He offers no qualifications, desert sands and bandits notwithstanding, and his companions on the jaunt heartily agree. The cars have been equipped to climb anything upon which they can retain their equilibrium and under no condition will converted wheels for travel on rails be employed, nor any other such scheme. In spite of the conditions the travelers have put upon themselves and the fact that through Mexico there will be no trail broken for them, they allow themselves only 21 days between Portland and the Mexican capital. Enroute to Mexico City and on a return journey the party will make a complete motion picture and still picture record, as well as a written chronicle of the adventure. They are equipped with 30,000 feet of motion picture negative and 500 still picture negatives. They will attempt to expose where quaint life of the republic is found, beyond the reach of the traveler on trains, yet in the very heart of the picturesque parts of Mexico. Mr. Brownlee for several years made his home in Mexico and hopes to direct the tour off the route of the rails, despite the fact that such a route would lend the easiest going.

The equipment for the expedition is built with the intention of making the travel as easy and as sure as possible and barriers will be done if all present preparations prove effective. The trip will be in the nature of an outing, but some of circumstances, for there will be stretches of hundreds of miles over sand where water, food and gasoline are not available.

Mr. Hawley has obtained credentials from Secretary of State Hughes, Senators at Washington, Governor Flores and Mayor Baker and will present them to corresponding officials in Mexico. The only stops in the United States will be at San Francisco, Los Angeles and El Paso, going in and at San Antonio, Texas, coming out. At Los Angeles the party will be received by friends among the motion picture and newspaper people.

The journey into Mexico will be made by way of El Paso, down through Chihuahua, Torreon, Aguascalientes, Guanajuato, Queretaro to Mexico City. Coming back, after making side trips to see ancient centers of Indian civilization, natural wonders and interesting places otherwise, the tour will reach San Luis Potosi, Zacatecas, Monterey, Nuevo Laredo and interesting points en route, coming back into the United States at Laredo and out through San Antonio. The whole trip will take approximately two months of nearly steady traveling.

Automobile tires and outfitting equipment for the adventure were made and furnished by Portland manufacturers. The caravan will make its first stop on the long trip in Roseburg. It will reach this city on the evening of Saturday, and will remain over night leaving the following morning with Redding scheduled for the next stop. It is planned to cross the Mexican border on the 22nd. Plans are being formulated for the entertainment of the party at the halt to be made here. Mayor George L. Baker and wife of Portland, and W. B. Merry, and wife of Detroit, will give the party an official "send-off" on Sunday morning. Mayor Baker and Mr. Merry, the latter of prominent realty broker and building operator in Detroit, are going to Coos Bay to attend the Hoo-Hoo and Lumbermen's convention on Friday and will come to Roseburg by stage on Saturday and will spend the night here. On Sunday morning a public ceremonial will be held at which time Mayor Baker will place his official approval upon the caravan.

COTTAGES FOR THE AUTO TOURIST CAMP

A. J. Young, proprietor of the auto tourist camp ground on the highway at the Deer Creek bridge, is making some substantial improvements in the grounds preparatory to the spring rush that is expected will begin soon. Mr. Young is just completing ten small houses, each 10x12 feet, and equipped with oil stoves, which will make splendid quarters for tourists. These are in addition to the other buildings and tent houses that were used last season. The new cottages are grouped together near the rest room and office building, and are neatly constructed and painted. In addition to these improvements new and adequate toilet facilities are being built at a cost of more than $500. Another feature of the improvements is the cutting out of three of the big cottonwood trees that have stood on the banks of the creek for so many years. Although these giant cottonwoods have weathered the storms of 60 to 70 years, and were beautiful specimens of their kind, safety to life of campers compelled Mr. Young to have them cut down. This work was not ordered until after Mr. Young had made every effort to save the trees, but although he had tried to save them, some huge limbs, after that job was accomplished, broke loose and crashed in among the camps, destroying one tent and injuring others, besides jeopardizing life. Following the pruning process the foliage grew so heavy that the limbs were unable to hold their own weight, and for this reason they had to be taken out. One big tree fell of its own weight during the winter, so that altogether four trees have been removed. This does not in any way detract from the desirability of the camping grounds, as there are a lot more trees left along the creek. Quite a number of tourists are already beginning to come, and in fact travel has kept up all winter. Mr. Young maintains an open camp to accommodate those people. He expects this year's travel to exceed that of last season, so is making preparations to care for all autoists who want to stop over a day or so in Roseburg.
