MUCH INTEREST IN ESSAY CONTEST

PORTLAND, March 24.—State-wide interest is being aroused in the American Legion essay contest, according to state department headquarters in Portland. In many instances special county or post prizes have been offered to increase competition for the generous state prizes of $200, $100 and $50. The largest county awards which have yet been announced are offered in Columbia county where the legion posts have pledged prizes of $50, $20, and $10, for the three county winners, in addition to which merchants of Seaside, St. Helens, Rainier and Clatskanie are offering local trophies. Frank T. Wrichman of Salem, Grand Deputy exalted Ruler of the Elks, is offering a $50 prize for Marion county competitors. Dallas and Independence posts are putting up $25 each for Polk county prizes. Creek county post at Prineville donated $25 for the county. The Rotary Club of Pendleton is giving $25 and the local post $15. Fred E. Kiddle of Island City, legion state commander is offering $25 as Union county prize. Ontario has given $30 in prizes and Madras $18. Springfield post has offered three prizes of $10, $5 and $2.50 in cooperation with other prizes being offered by posts in Lane county to put stimulus in the contest. The contest is now on and does not close until May 31. All high school students in the state are eligible to compete. The essay subject chosen is "Peace-Time Patriotism" and editorial comment holds it a splendid theme. "Any citizen who fails to attend the polls and give intelligent expression to the dictates of his civic conscience, or who refuses to serve his state when his services are demanded, is a peace-time slacker," point out Cassius R. Peck, chairmen of the Department of Americanism committee, in expounding what is demanded of peace-time patriotism. State Judges of the contest are Federal Judge Robert S. Dean, State Superintendent of Public Instruction J. A. Churchill, and W. B. Ayer, chairman of the Library Association of Multnomah county.

FARM NEWS ASSOCIATION PREPARES FOR MOHAIR SEASON

Preparations are being made by the Pacific Co-operative Wool Growers to handle the largest accumulation of mohair in their history. Many new mohair growers are joining the Association from California and Oregon as a result of the satisfactory prices received by members. Last year the association sold a carload of mohair for 95c per pound which is the highest price received in Oregon for many years. Over three hundred members shared in the high priced carload. Estimates by growers and dealers place the average price paid outside of the Association for 1923 clip of Oregon mohair at a trifle less than 50c per pound straight through. The entire Association pool for 1923 brought a gross price of 56c and netted the growers 52c. Over 50 per cent of the pool brought 60c per pound gross and 12 per cent of the pool brought 95c. The total cost of a pound for sorting, insuring, warehousing, selling, and shipping mohair is considered very low and is less than the customary cost for this service. Until the Association commenced selling mohair on grade and at its actual value, most mohair growers never knew that there was a vast difference in value between the fine and coarse hair. For years they had been selling their mohair at a flat price, although frequently the kid hair was worth very near double what adult hair was worth. Pacific Co-operative Wool Growers is the first organization to commercially classify mohair into mill grades while the hair is still the property of the growers. The sales are made directly to the larger mohair mills of America which shorten the distribution route between grower and ultimate consumer. The educational value of the Association's work has been worth a great deal to the mohair industry of Western Oregon. Growers are learning the relative value of the various commercial sorts and are thus able to improve their breeding so as to produce the most desirable type of mohair. The association is composed of twenty-seven hundred wool growers, some four hundred of which are also producers of mohair. It is strictly cooperative and is conducted entirely by the growers. The directors from the mohair districts elected by the members are Fred W. Martin, Ashland, Oregon; V. L. Ankerly, Dixon, Oregon; Scott Henry, Oakland, Oregon; E. A. McCornack, Eugene, Oregon; J. B. Cornett, Shedd, Oregon; and J. W. Smith, Astoria, Oregon. Plans for meeting will be set. Get out copies before buying. Denn Gerretsen Co.
