OFFICIAL EXECUTIONER SUICIDE LEFT COMFORTABLE FORTUNE

BRESLAU, April 4.-Paul Spaethe

BRESLAU, April 4.—Paul Spacine the executioner who recently shot himself in this city, left a considerable estate and attracted attention to the excellent pay which executioners get. Before the war 500 marks, or $125, and traveling expenses was the fee paid for each execution, and it has now returned to about the same amount.

Spacthe had guillotined 45 persons

That was emphasized by his lighting 45 candles, one to each of his vic-tims, before he shot himself. He in-vested his earnings in a restaurant and in real estate which enhanced in alue, so his heirs are well provided

A century ago the executioners in Europe were a much higher class of men that at present. They were re-quired to be educated in surgery, and practiced medicine. They were state officials and received a fixed salary.

They shook hands, and Suzanne edged around her, politicly, but determinedly. "I thought I'd just run down and see if I couldn't see my husband for a moment before he left," she explained.

"Well, Geoffrey's frightfully busy, as I told you on the telephone; it's too bad to interrupt him." Mrs. Vale replied "I'll just go in and tell him."

"No, I'll go." Suxanne hurriedly took the few steps that lay between her and her husband's door. "Geoffrey"—Mrs. Vale called him by his first name, then! Industrial accidents reported by Hincis, Indiana, Wisconsin, Massa-chusettes, Newl Jersey, Delaware, Washington, Oregon and Pennsyl-vania totalled more than 1,500,000. Oregon reposted 30,227 accidents, of which 178 were fatal; and Wash-ington 24,745 with 366 fatalities.

ACCIDENTS SHOW

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY.

DUNCAN HALE, a young army officer, returns from the Philippines to find that SUZANNE, with whom he is in love, has married GEOFFREY ATWOOD, a prominent man fatch older than she. Hale tries to persuade her to leave her husband, get a divorce and marry him, feeling sure that she still cares for him. Suzanne is troubled by this, and by the report that there is a love affair between DICK LEIGH Geoffrey's nephew, and a chorus girl.

"I'll need some money," she told,

She found Geoffrer at his desk, talking to a man whom she hardly saw, although she acknowledged Geoffrey's introduction of him politicly enough. Her mind was focused so completely on her husband that nothing else could find a way into it.

The man departed abortly afterward, and Geoffrey turned to her, smilling.

"I tried to get you on the phone a little while ago, but the line was busy," be told her, drawing her down to a seat on the hurrow arm of his chair. "And before I tried again Mrs. Vale told me that she had given you the message. Did you meet her as you came in?"

"Yes; she introduced herself," Suzanne replied quieffy. It would never do to let Geoff know how she felt about Mrs. Vale. "She said that you were frightfully busy."

"I am, but not too busy to see you, ever," he nawered, turning to the man who had just come in. "He'll mail you a check—put it on my personal account, Abbott. Now how she felt about Mrs. Vale. "She said that you were frightfully busy."

"They hurried through the outer office so rapidly that Suzanne had only a glimpse of Mrs. Vale, who was talking with one of the stenotone of the city's business streets. Ifked his big orderly cask, on which
