

STAR THE 27 FEATURE CAR

Taking the "Guess" Out of Automobile Buying

In the past most cars have been bought blindfolded.

Paint, sidewalk reputation and glib salesmanship sold cars—and sold in the word—as many a motorist secretly acknowledges.

Today the man who buys a car wants facts—definite facts, comparative facts, proven facts—and he is entitled to them.

Proof?—Walk into any Star Dealer and just say: "27 feature reasons," and you will be in for the most instructive and profitable half hour you ever spent.

Facts? Yes—27 and more, and every one of vital interest to the man whose motor purchase has heretofore been largely a matter of guess work.

Built to this ideal—the Lowest Priced High Grade Car in the world—The Star Car—with its characteristic handsome lines, its distinctive radiator design—plus its 27 feature reasons—is the logical buy for the man of modest income, whose motor investment must pay satisfaction dividends.

Today—step into a Star Show Room—and a Star dealer will quickly show you how most of the "guess" in automobile buying is eliminated in purchasing a Star Car.

NEW CHARGES OF CROOKEDNESS IN DAUGHERTY CASE

Senator Jones, republican, Washington, remonstrated. "I mean everybody in the whiskey ring, Will Orr, Tom Feider, John Gorlin," said Means.

Senator Wheeler then brought up the subject of his own indictment in Montana.

"Mr. Daugherty says he had nothing to do with my indictment," he observed.

"Oh, Burns told me he had advised Daugherty against getting that indictment weeks ago," Means said. "The attorney-general went ahead with it against his advice."

"Do you know anything of searches of senate offices during the tariff fight?"

"We had the whole tariff commission under surveillance. We followed up all the experts and gave reports on it to the chairman of the commission and to Mr. Fordney over in the house. I had four or five men helping."

"What did the department want to find out?" asked Senator Jones.

"One thing, some Japanese importers wanted a special rate and one of the commission experts was actually employed by a Japanese concern. Another expert was dealing with the sugar crowd."

"Then it wasn't the tariff commission, it was their experts," Senator Jones said.

"That's right," Means replied. He was excused for the time being and the committee recessed its hearing until tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Plans to compel the attendance of Howard Mannington of Columbus, Ohio, former occupant of the "little green house on K street," were before the senate Daugherty investigating committee today.

When today's session began, Chairman Brookhart called the name of Mannington—"the same Mannington who wanted to testify when he was in Paris," there was no answer, and George Y. Storck, department of justice accountant was called to the stand.

Senator Wheeler, however, insisted that George Chamberlain, counsel for H. M. Daugherty, "produce Mannington, who is standing in the back of the room."

"I also ask if it is not true," continued the committee prosecutor, "that Mr. Mannington was indicted in New York just before he went to Europe, in connection with the issuance of liquor permits. I ask also what were the facts as to what became of that indictment?"

"You'll have to get that from the district attorney in New York," Mr. Chamberlain responded.

Senator Wheeler consented to drop the subject for the moment and proceed with the testimony of Storck, who declared that Martin E. Kern, purchaser of the Bosch Magneto property from the alien property custodian, had paid Joseph P. Guffey, a democratic leader in Pennsylvania, and former director of sales of the alien property custodian, the sum of $10,000 "to influence the release of liquor."

The witness produced a letter from Kern's attorney in Allentown, Pa., referring to a $10,000 payment in 1920 as a "loan which was not returned by Guffey."

The correspondence did not indicate that Kern ever obtained the whiskey release permits he sought. Storck testified that since he had been a witness before the committee his brief case containing his papers had been "cut open" in his hotel room and his locked cabinet at the department of justice "had been jimmed." None of his papers had been abstracted from the brief case he said, adding that another department of justice agent had been similarly visited "last Sunday."

The witness said he had "reported the facts to Mr. Burns."

His own work in the investigation of Kern, Guffey and the Bosch case.

The Ideal Radio Set for Hikers

Henry Farkouh, a Brooklyn amateur, is the designer and builder of a novel radio set that should prove ideal for the hiker. It is a three-tube receiver, operating on small batteries and is complete in all details. The instruments are fastened to a canvas web belt, and each tube has its own rheostat; a potentiometer is also provided. The set has sufficient power to operate a loud speaker, and it is said that stations as far away as Chicago have been heard on it. The antenna consists of fine wire sewn between two canvas sheets so that it may be carried under the shirt, or in a pocket.

Monkey's Bites Test Money

Owing to the spread of counterfeit coins in Siam, monkeys are being employed in the banks to test the spurious currency, it is reported. Installed behind the counters, the monkeys test the coins between their teeth. If good, no marks are left on the metal, and the coins are thrown into a box at the animal's side. Should the coins be bad, the metal bears visible marks and is thrown on the floor, later to be swept up and destroyed.

Strange Animal Being Sought in Heart of Jungle

Deep in the depths of East African jungles, the "Nandi bear," depicted by natives as a ferocious species of man-eating hyena with striped skin, is being sought by scientists. The tales of frightened villagers and fragmentary reports from hunters indicate that the animal is taller and much more powerful than the ordinary hyena. In the last ten years, extensive explorations have resulted in the discovery of many new animals, among which the okapi, a large zebra-like creature, is regarded as the most important. Smaller animals are constantly being found and the old Roman adage, "Out of Africa, always something new," is almost daily proved true. Scientists believe, however, that there are few of the larger species that have escaped identification.

Auto Death in U. S. Every Thirty-Five Minutes

Every time the clock recorded thirty-five minutes during the last year, a person was killed on the highways of the country, and each minute, approximately three persons were injured, delegates to the convention of the American road builders were told. In twelve months highway accidents claimed a total of 15,000 lives and caused 1,700,000 injuries, according to the figures given. Uniform traffic regulations, established by all states, strict enforcement of these laws, systematic maintenance of roads and safety education in schools were urged to curb the ever mounting number of fatalities. In Wisconsin, a survey of accidents during the past two years was said to have proved that most of them occurred on straight roads, largely due to attempts of drivers to pass one another. Railway grade crossings, however, were declared to be the most dangerous.

In the Bank of England the "grand balance" or scale used is so sensitive that the weight of a postage stamp moves the index six inches.

Radio Beacon Guides Aviator on Hundred-Mile Flight

Guided only by signals spoken over a radio beacon, an aviator recently flew from Dayton, Ohio, to a point one hundred miles distant, arriving there without mishap and without losing his course at any point. In his receiver he heard the letters A and T (— —) repeated over and over. As he flew along the correct course, both letters were equally loud, but the moment he got off the course to one side or the other, one letter became noticeably louder than the other and showed him which way to turn to get back.

Cottage Built on Auto Gives Tourists Home Comforts

Fitted upon the chassis of a small touring car, a miniature cottage supplies an Iowa contractor, his wife, and two children with luxurious quarters while on motor tours. Electric lighted throughout, the house provides ample protection from dust and rain, there is space for a cradle for the baby and other comforts of home. The front window in the roof gives the driver a full view of the road ahead and glass in the rear makes it possible to see behind. Entrance is provided by a side door and one at the rear. The radiator fills the screened-in "porch" which has one side on hinges so that the engine can be reached easily. The cottage weighs but little more than the enclosed body of standard type and proves an effective advertising device.
