DR. NICHOLAS BUTLER IS FIGHTING PROHIB

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
NEW YORK, May 2.—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of the Columbia University will carry his fight on prohibition into the republican national convention to which he is a district delegate.

While he would make no direct statement yesterday, he announced that he was "ready to go to the bat" on the question and declared that "politicians are in terror when the subject comes up, but no matter what is in the platform, prohibition will be the first thing in the mind of the public."

"The eighteenth amendment will be repealed inside of five years," Dr. Butler said. "It is a failure the country over."

Dr. Butler declared that telegrams and letters of congratulation and approval had been pouring in upon him from many parts of the nation since he made an address defending the wet position, before the dinner of the Missouri Society Tuesday night. Some of the letters came from Texas, and others from the Pacific coast and the middlewest.

CHOICE OF BOSTON MAN IS PARTY AID

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, May 2.—Republican leaders in Washington saw today in President Coolidge's designation of William T. Butler of Boston as his choice for the republican national chairmanship an opportunity to give a running start to the party's presidential campaign.

Close political advisers of the President said this was the motive which actuated him in making the announcement last night that Mr. Butler was his choice for the chairmanship in view of the indicated desire of John T. Adams, of Iowa, the present chairman to retire.

The President has indicated to many of those who have discussed politics with him in the last week that he regards his nomination as assured and accordingly sees no reason why there should be any delay in getting the campaign ready for its prompt inauguration immediately after the convention.

Mr. Butler likewise regards Mr. Coolidge's nomination as assured and although he is interested in the primaries, yet to be held in several states, including California, he feels his pre-convention work is practically at an end. The convention will elect the permanent chairman from among its membership but indications were given by party leaders today that the choice probably would be Senator Wadsworth of New York.

Another matter being considered by the president and his advisers is selection of a man to place the name of Mr. Coolidge before the convention.

No decision has been reported but some of the president's advisers would not be surprised if Senator Borah of Idaho were asked to make the nominating speech.

THE HALF-TIME WIFE By VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY

SUZANNE ATWOOD, the young wife of a prominent business man, GEOFFREY ATWOOD, is faced by the fact that his secretary, LINDA VALE, is trying to come between them. Geoffrey refuses to explain various unusual circumstances which lead to that suspicion. An old beau of Suzanne's, LIEUTENANT DUNCAN HALE, tries to persuade her to leave Geoffrey, who is much older than she, get a divorce, and marry Mrs. Geoffrey's nephew.

DICK LEIGH, is taken sick with scarlet fever, and the house is quarantined. Suzanne goes to a hotel to stay, determined to leave Geoffrey, but he follows her and engages one suite for them both.

husband's face as he listened, but he said nothing, and a few moments later they went to dinner.

Mrs. Vale was seated at another table, for which Suzanne was thankful, although she wondered uneasily what her husband's secretary might be saying to her neighbors. That afternoon she had thought that she could never again be concerned about Geoffrey Atwood's affairs, and now she was much disturbed for fear that Mrs. Vale, annoyed by his refusal, might, under the guise of being a foolish, talkative woman, let fall things that he would have preferred to keep secret.

XXXII—EXPLANATIONS BEGIN.

"O H, my dear!" Linda Vale ran forward and threw her arms around Suzanne's neck. "I'm so glad to see you! And you too, Geoff!" still clinging to Suzanne with her right hand, she gave Geoffrey her left one. "I had the most dreadful experience this afternoon. I was locked into your house—really locked in!"

VIOLET DARE

Vale had chosen a less public spot.

"Yes, I want to see you—had something I really had to tell you at once—and no sooner did I arrive—and your nice Lieutenant Hale was there, too—than those men appeared and told us the houses were quarantined. You must have left just in time! And it was so distressing—and I—"

Suzanne did not know just how Geoffrey managed to stem that tirade; stem it he did, and a moment later Suzanne saw Mrs. Vale's back retreating down the room, while Geoff, murmuring "idiot!" turned to a man at his other side. Suzanne smiled contentedly. Mrs. Vale had finally made Geoff see what absurdities she was capable of, her reign would not last long.

"I'd like to know what happened to Hale," Geoffrey commented to Suzanne, when he could do so without being overheard. "And how do you suppose she got out, and where's the girl?"

"She's probably told half the people here all about it by this time," Geoffrey groaned.

"What in the deuce she went to the house for in the first place?" he exclaimed irritably.

"Oh, that's nothing unusual," Suzanne answered. "Didn't I tell you about her coming out one morning to get some papers out of your safe, and staying to luncheon with me?"

"What! What's that?" Suzanne repeated what she had said. She was at a loss to understand the expression that crossed her Lolita and Dick were on the porch.

Mrs. Vale left before the dinner was over. Suzanne hurried after her to the dressing room, but had only a word with her before others intruded on their privacy.

"Oh, I did want to see you this afternoon!" Linda Vale exclaimed as she donned her cloak. "My news for you was this—Lolita, the girl you know just as a little chorus girl, is my daughter. And she and Geoffrey Atwood's nephew Dick eloped during the Christmas holidays!"

"But—why didn't Dick tell me?" demanded Suzanne.

"Because—well, no doubt Geoffrey will explain to you later; I really can't speak until he does!" And Linda Vale was gone.

Suzanne's mind summed up past events. Geoff's trip out of town, when he got back before he said that he would; his luncheon with Mrs. Vale, that was an insult to her; her feelings toward him swung back to their former point. She scribbled a note to him: "You'd better stay at the club tonight after all," and hurried away before it could be delivered.

Early the next morning she drove past the Atwood home. Lolita and Dick were on the upper porch. She wondered if this marriage of theirs was going to lead to each bitter unhappiness as hers had.

"Oh, it can't!" she told herself, turning her face away so that they would not recognize her. "They're both young and they love each other. I'm not bright and clever enough for Geoff—it takes a woman who's a genius to marry a man like him!"

(United Press.)
WASHINGTON, May 2.—"What will the women of the United States do about the movie censorship?" promises to be a live subject at the coming biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs at Los Angeles, June 2-14.

The Federation has endorsed State censorship, but not Federal censorship—but has not pushed the subject.

The women have on their Los Angeles program a visit to Hollywood and the studios. Certain movie stars "of spotless reputations" will appear on the program, and certain hospitalities will be tendered the ladies, none of which will be of the character featured in the daily paper crime columns.

At the Hot Springs biennial convention in 1918 a resolution, introduced by Mrs. A. H. Finn of Detroit, was adopted and has never been rescinded. It reads:

"That the General Federation recommend that women in the various States use all possible effort toward extending the area which is protected by law from the influence of harmful films, inducing the Legislatures of States aside from Pennsylv-
