SIDELIGHTS ON DAUGHERTY RULE

Alien Property Custodian Gives Committee Interesting Data on Regime.

KNOW OF MANNINGTON

Says He Had Heard He Received Payments in Connection With Liquor Permits.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, May 15.—Thomson W. Miller, the alien property custodian gave the senate Daugherty investigating committee today some interesting sidelights on the conduct of the department of justice under H. M. Daugherty.

Howard Mannington, he said, was introduced to him "as one of the big men" influencing the department. Mannington has been many times mentioned as receiver of payments in connection with liquor permits.

He also knew Jess W. Smith, Col. Miller said, and met Alfred Urion, John Todd and other persons previously mentioned in testimony as close to Mr. Daugherty. His own official duties and responsibilities brought him into touch with the department, he said, and the attorney general's legal rulings governed him in administration.

"You know Jess Smith occupied an office at the department of justice?" Senator Wheeler asked. "I so considered it," Miller replied. He testified that he had "located Smith at the department of justice in telephone calls and personal visits. Mannington he only saw at the department of justice on one occasion."

"Mannington came to my department once early in 1921," Miller said, "representing a claimant." "You knew Mannington wasn't a lawyer and had no license to practice before departments?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I did not; I've learned more about Mannington since your hearings than before."

"Didn't Jess Smith come to you many times and tell you what the attorney-general wanted done?" "I won't deny that he told me on many occasions that Mr. Daugherty or perhaps other people wanted something done, but I did not take orders from Jess Smith in any matter on how to run my office."

Miller testified that he had complained in 1922 to President Harding about the appearance at his office of Jess Smith, Alfred Urion and other associates of Mr. Daugherty.

FLIGHT DELAYED BY BAD WEATHER

(By Associated Press.) CORDOVA, Alaska, May 15.—Delayed yesterday by rain and inclement weather, three United States army aviators, headed by Lieutenant Lowell H. Smith, at Attu Island, the most western tip of the Aleutian Islands, were hoping they would be able to hop off today for Paramashiru Island in the Kurile group on the next 878 mile jump of their world encircling trip.

NOTED SURGEON DIES IN THE EAST TODAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Dr. Ernest La Place, noted surgeon and well known in French circles here and in Europe died today from heart disease.

Dr. La Place contributed much to the advancement of surgery and medicine and was the inventor of the first forceps for intestinal anastomosis. He was the author of numerous articles on surgery of the brain and the intestines, and on anastomosis and was the recipient of high academic recognition for achievements. He was born in New Orleans in 1851. Dr. La Place was the possessor of one of a number of small flasks containing a few ounces of veal broth heated seventy-six years ago by Pasteur to prove the theory that there can be no decomposition without germ growth, and no germ growth without contamination.

GRASSHOPPERS ARE DEVOURING ALFALFA

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) OLYMPIA, Wash., May 15.—State aid in fighting a plague of grasshoppers which are reported to have devoured the alfalfa crop of Okanogan county was asked in telegrams received by the department of agriculture here today from S. P. Scott, district horticultural inspector and W. G. De Marsh secretary of the Okanogan agricultural traffic association. "The grasshopper situation in Okanogan county is the most serious ever known," Mr. De Marsh declared in a telegram to the state department.

"We are confronted with probably a loss of the apple crop as they have already consumed the alfalfa and are devouring the orchards. It is impossible for your man in the district to handle the situation. Funds and men are needed immediately. Will you help?"

OPPOSES CHANGE IN OREGON DEER SEASON

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) SALEM, May 15.—W. C. Winslow has filed a second suit in circuit court against changing the dates of the closed season on deer. The suit is virtually similar to one which he won in circuit court and was upheld in the supreme court.

The game commission, however, has gone ahead and issued another order and this time an effort will be made to test out the situation. Winslow contends that the statutory provisions covering the closing of the deer season should prevail and that the commission has no authority to change such dates by order.

M'NARY-HAUGEN BILL IN HOUSE TUESDAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) WASHINGTON, May 15.—The McNary-Haugen farm relief bill will be taken up by the house next week, probably Tuesday, under the government schedule worked out today by the rules committee.

After that bill is out of the way, priority will be given the postal salary increase measure and the McFadden bill to amend the national bank and federal reserve acts. The house vote on all three proposals is expected before the end of the session.

The McNary-Haugen bill which would create a corporation with $200,000,000 capital to sell a surplus farm products abroad, will have right of way as soon as a number of miscellaneous measures are disposed of. Among them the bill to appropriate $5,500,000 for additional hospital facilities for war veterans.

APPOINT RECEIVER FOR GRANT DIMICK

PORTLAND, May 15.—H. W. Sitton of Portland was appointed receiver of the properties of Grant B. Dimick, fugitive lawyer and banker of Oregon, who was indicted Tuesday by a grand jury on charges of using the mails to defraud by federal Judge Wolverton.

Dimick's estate was thrown into the bankruptcy court after his disappearance had led to disclosures on which forgery and mail charges were brought. According to officials, Dimick's properties are not expected to have a value exceeding $150,000. Sitton's appointment followed the refusal of E. C. Caulfield of Oregon City to accept the position.

MONTANA FIRE SPREADS

MISSOULA, Mont., May 15.—Driven by high winds, a fire on Pilgrim Creek in the cabinet National forest south of Noxon, Montana, was spreading rapidly today in a heavily forested section, according to information received at Forest Service Headquarters here. It has already covered 600 acres and is the largest fire in western Montana. Sixteen fires, fanned by high winds are burning in the Kootenai forest with 114 men combating their advance. Settlers in the lightning creek region in Idaho have been forced from their homes and one prospector narrowly escaped when he was awakened by forestry patrols after the flames had almost surrounded his cabin.

Ellingson, chairman progressive political league; W. T. Miller, district attorney of Josephine county.

INQUIRY NEARS END

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PORTLAND, May 15.—Indications point to the early completion by the special grand jury of its inquiry into the letting of the Willamette river bridge contracts, possibly late this afternoon, according to close observers of the controversy over county affairs. The jury today was delving into circumstances surrounding the letting of the contracts with Lloyd Bates, head of the Columbia digger company, on the stand. His firm was reported to have quoted prices on sand and gravel to prospective bidders on the bridge contract.

Mrs. George Cutsforth and son Irvin of Riddle were in Roseburg for several hours this afternoon shopping and visiting with friends.
