scene on the beach. At the palace the princess wrote down the notes and the words, and the melody was later arranged by Henri Berger, master of the royal Italian band. The purchasers of the ranch property will sell it off in residence lots.

KINGDOM OF THE S. C. S. TO CROWN ITS RULERS

BELGRADE, May 17.—Elaborate preparations are being made both here and at Zagreb, the Croatian capitol, for the anointing and crowning of King Alexander and Queen Marie as king and queen of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, which will take place this summer. The monastery of Gitche is being restored for the purpose. The ceremony will follow the Serbian precedents, but several features will be adopted from the ancient coronation of the Croatian kings, before Croatia became an appendage of the house of Hapsburg. The foreign guests at the coronation will be a sharp reminder of the changes in the royal families that have occurred as a result of the world war. But the house of Hohenzollern will be represented through the Sigmaringen branch, which is reigning in Rumania. Queen Marie of Serbia is a daughter of Queen Marie of Rumania. One of the dethroned kings who will attend the ceremony, on the ground of relationship to Queen Marie of Serbia, is ex-King George of Greece, who is married to Queen Elizabeth. Thus the family of Marie of Rumania, called the "Mother-in-Law" of the Balkans, will be represented at the ceremony by two reigning and one deposed king. A Balkan sovereign who will not take part in the festivities will be Boris, king of the Bulgarians. It is extremely unlikely that Boris, reigning over a defeated people, will be asked to mingle with the conquerors, each of whom now holds territory that belonged to Bulgaria before the war. The event will be made all the more notable because it will mark the thousandth anniversary of the first kingdom of Croatia.

New York Song Birds Now Keep Jazz Hours

"In New York even the birds are sophisticated," remarked a visitor from out of town, according to the New York Times. "If any one lives here long enough he becomes stamped, as it were, with the character of the city. In the hotel where I am stopping one of the dining rooms has a variety of song birds. It is a pretty idea, but see how it works in New York. Up my way the birds are the first awake in the morning. The poets have had a lot to say about the lark and a moral lesson has been drawn, something about getting the first worm. Now, in my hotel, one of the largest and most fashionable in town, the birds sing all night. The music sets the pace. All evening and late into the night you hear their voices. The music and the crowd are there until the small hours of the morning, and the birds accommodate. When the music stops and the crowd leaves the birds go to sleep. The dining room is not used until about three in the afternoon and the birds sleep undisturbed. But at the first note of the jazz orchestra they all begin to pipe up. In other words, the early bird has been corrupted in New York so that it sleeps every day till late afternoon. What kind of a worm does he expect to get at that hour?"

Builds Miniature Rail Line on Country Estate

W. Cecil Gage, retired broker, of Fishkill, N. Y., has just completed a two-mile miniature railway system, which he has constructed with his own hands entirely from odds and ends found lying about his estate.

The tracks and switches were made from the floor beams and the cars and locomotive from the partitions of dismantled farm buildings. Ashes from the family furnace served as ballast for the tracks. A gasoline motor to run the locomotive and wheels for locomotive and cars are the only parts of the system that are not homemade. Mr. Gage began constructing his little road five years ago in order to supply himself with an easy way of disposing of ashes. He has been steadily adding to it since then until now he has two miles of track, five passenger cars, two flat cars, a freight car, eight switches, four crossings equipped with warning signs, a turntable, a snowplow and half a dozen stations. At night and during severe weather a long chicken house serves as a "roundhouse" for the protection of the rolling stock.

The road is used to carry farm products, firewood and similar materials about the estate as well as to take the children of Fishkill and the surrounding towns for joyriding. Mr. Gage estimates his yearly mileage as something above 10,000. The tiny cars attain a speed of 20 miles an hour or more on straight runs, and, although several thousand persons have been carried as passengers, there never has been an accident.—Popular Science.

Drinking Toast Dates Back to Pagan Times Just as nutmeg, spices and so on are still—sometimes—put into such a drink as "punch," so in the olden days a common custom was to slip a bite of toasted bread into a glass of ale with the idea that the taste was thereby improved. And so it came about that a drink was called a toast. The custom of drinking to someone really dates from the old pagan days when sacrifices used to be made to the gods. Later on an offering of wine was made instead. Its red color typifying the actual blood of the real sacrifice. Later still men made their offerings not to the gods but in honor of a friend. So our ancestors would drink a glass or toast in honor of someone, and the person honored was as often as not called a toast for short.

Stone-Age Men in Africa

Sir Harry Johnston tells of a tribe in Venya, South Africa, who wander among dense forests and game-haunted wilderness. "The tribe, the Andorob, reproduces in a most striking manner the life which we may suppose to have been led by our far-away ancestors in the earliest Stone Ages," he says. "They lead, in fact, very much the life that the most primitive types of man led in Great Britain and France in the far back days of big animals, possibly before the coming of the glacial periods. They live entirely by the chase, often consuming the flesh of birds and beasts uncooked. Though they commit considerable devastation among the game of the province, they are a picturesque feature when encountered."—Detroit News.

Mystery in Turkey's Name

Tradition has it that the first turkey was brought to England by one of Sebastian Cabot's chief lieutenants. This is supported by the fact that William Strickland, who accompanied Cabot on several of his voyages, adopted a turkey rampant as his crest on being granted arms in 1551. Exactly how the turkey got his name is a mystery. Some authorities suggest that the bird christened itself by constant repetition of a sound that resembles "turk-turk-turk." The bird's succulent meat was so highly esteemed by sixteenth century churchmen, that by Archbishop Cranmer's order, only "one dish of turkey cock" was permitted at feasts and banquets.—Detroit News.

For the Radio Fan

What has radio got to do with foreign trade? When you listen in for news or amusement, speeding from broadcasting stations, remember that you could not listen in, nor broadcasting be, but for six imported materials in radio instruments: mahogany from St. Jago, South America; rubber from Brazil or the Far East; platinum from the Ural mountains, Russia; glass derived from nitrates procured in Chile and Germany; silk from China and Japan; and mica from the mines of India.—National Foreign Trade Council Bulletin.

Broil Electrically

The perfectly broiled steak or chop—crispy brown from without, juicy tender from within—no longer depends on the specialized skill of a cook or on good luck in the cooking—where there's an electric range in the home.

In this locality the experience of hundreds of our range customers has been that the electric range improves the savoriness and flavor of all cooking. The many ways it eases the kitchen routine and saves fuss and muss have long been recognized. But to most people the economy of it comes as a distinct surprise!

The average bill for cooking and lighting together is often as low as the cost of other kinds of fuel alone.

Ask about the special rate for cooking and lighting at our office. See the electric ranges today at your dealer's. You can get one on easy payments to be installed immediately.

"PORTLAND DAY" TO BE BIG FEATURE

"Portland Day" at the strawberry carnival, has been definitely fixed for Saturday, May 24, and it is expected that the Portland delegation which is coming in a big caravan, will provide a number of interesting stunts and features for the various parades and events on that day. The Portland business men are very enthusiastic over the special day at the carnival and have appointed a committee to work up a really representative caravan to appear for Portland in the parades and stunts on that day. The committee in charge of the program has arranged for Portland to be given a special place on the program at the community hour on Saturday evening. Two men to be selected from the Portland crowd will deliver short talks from the band stand during the evenings, and it is also expected that some Portland musicians will participate also. The Roseburg Chamber of Commerce and the Roseburg Country Club are inviting the visitors to remain over Sunday and enjoy a visit here, and go over the local golf links, which are ranked as being among the best in the entire state, and it is expected that a large part of the delegation will accept the city's hospitality.

RIDDLE BANK FILES SUIT TO COLLECT

The Riddle State Bank today filed suit in the circuit court against the American Surety company to recover money alleged to be due. The bank, it is claimed furnished cash to secure a bond to release an attachment on the Glenbrook Farms corporation. The case was tried and consequently the bond was released, but the surety company, it is claimed, failed to return the money expended by the bank and is continuing to hold the sum, which amounts to about $1,800. The bank is represented by Attorneys Rice and Orcutt.

LEGION MAN SEEKS VICE-PRESIDENCY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) KEARNEY, Neb., May 17.—Alvin M. Owsley, attorney of Dallas, Texas, and past national commander of the American Legion will seek the democratic vice-presidential nomination if he is so endorsed by the Texas state convention, according to advices received by the local Legion post today. In a message received here today Mr. Owsley indicates he is not affiliated with any other candidate being prompted to enter the race solely because he has a desire to become a vice-president, because he believes that with the help and aid of the millions of men who "would help me I would make it good."
