Spectacle Which Is Said to Be Best Yet.

Thousands of people flocked to Laurelwood last evening to witness the school passeant "The History of Oregon presented by the Roseburg

Oregon presented by the Roseburg students under the supervision of Edda Haseline and the Roseburg faculty. The grade schools, high school glee clubs and the high school orchestra combined forces to make the event the most successful of its kind ever staged in this city.

The setting for the pageant was feat, the massive laurel and oak trees forming a beautiful background and the starry skies above providing a canopy for the stage. With the aid of many electric lights the seenic effect was enhanced and those whe wilinessed the production voted it one of the big carnival attention. tractions.

The teachers responsible for the pageant deserve a great deal of credit. The handling of nearly a thousand school children, ranging from the primary grade to the high school, is he small task and the effective manner in which they drilled indicated menths of hard practice.

The manuscript for the pageant had been edited by Prof. J. B. Horner of O. A. C., an authority on Oresson history, and every feature of the pageant was historically correct.

Every member of the cast wore a beautiful coatums to portray his or her part. Oregon roses, Umpqua Valley prunes, broccoil.  berries. wildeats, bugs, frogs, rabbits, sunbams, Indians, fox, raidrops, rainbows, etc. were all there and as each epoch of the pageant passed in review the large crowds cheered and cheered.

SCHOOLS GIVE PROGRAM TODAY

Today was school day at the Straw-berry Carnival. The entire day's program was given by the schools of Roseburg and the surrounding community. One of the striking facts in connection with the celebration was the participation of the rural schools The outside schools were very well represented and their entries were exceptionally well worked out and presented. In fact, they excited much comment by the thoroughness with which they entered into the competition.

During he morning the annual county declamation contest was
