LOVE-OR FAME?

by VIOLET DARE

Author of "The Half-Time Wife"

The story thus far: DOROTHY LANE goes to New York to visit PERSIS GRANT, and gets a chance to act in a motion picture as double for a famous star. She meets

LAWRENCE FRENCH, a young publicity man. A producer, named HOPSON, invites the girls to go to a theatre and dance club with him and some friends. French wants Dorothy not to have anything to do with the Hopson crowd, and as a result she and Persis quarrel and she decides to live alone.

XII—IN AN AGENT'S OFFICE

I COULDN'T say anything back to Persis, of course. But I stayed home that night, in spite of her protests, and the next morning I got up early, while she was still asleep, and slipped out of the house. I had decided that I'd go to that agent Lawrence French had told me about, and see if I couldn't get into some pictures as an extra.

place to live. The thought of starting out in New York all alone frightened me a little; I'd heard so many tales of girls getting into the wrong sort of boarding house or hotel that I knew I'd have to be careful. I decided to go to the Y. W. C. A. and get a list of places to live in.

So I started from the agent's office, with not much money, and very little knowledge of New York, but more determined than ever to succeed in getting into motion pictures. And I stumbled right into the nicest place I could possibly have wanted.

I went straight to the agent's office, because work seemed more important than anything else to me that morning. I thought I'd just go in and register, and then start out to look for a room.

The agent's office was a dingy little place, up a short flight of stairs from the street, and it was simply jammed with people. They overpowered it and filled the little stairway—I had to push my way through men, women, and children.

Most of them were sort of theatrical-looking people; the women had on a good deal of paint, and the men wore the awfully massaged-looking kind—that's the only way I can describe them. Even the children had a stagey look and as I edged my way up the stairs I heard scraps of conversation like, "Well, I simply told him right there that it was too small a part for me; I couldn't afford to consider it," and "Nerna Talmadge herself asked that I be included in the cast, so I heard, but, of course, the director had a friend who wanted the part, and—"

"I want to see him now," I insisted.

Upstairs there was a low, wooden railing separating the main waiting room from the entrance to an inner office; behind it an office boy stood, telling people that Mr. Little was very busy, and calling them in one by one a somebody from an inner room called to him. I managed to make my way through the crowd, and told the boy that Lawrence French had sent me to see Mr. Little.

"He's pretty busy right now, casting a big picture," the boy told me, with sort of an insolent look. "You'd better come back later."

"I want to see him now," I insisted. "It's extremely important."

The girl next me giggled, and I could feel my cheeks getting hot. I found out afterwards that all these people had extremely important business with Mr. Little whenever they were looking for a job. Any I don't suppose I'd ever have reached the inner office if just then Mr. Little himself hadn't come into the outer office, with two other men, and climbed up on a chair.

THEATRES

Liberty Theatre

Finis Fox, whose latest screen play, "Bag and Baggage," is scheduled for a two days' run at the Liberty theatre today and tomorrow, is literally an independent producer. He writes his own story just as he wants it; then he directs it exactly as he pleases with no one to tell him what or what not to do.

"What kind of play would Belasco stage if some one supervised his work and told him what play to put on, what artists to engage and how they should act?" queried Finis.

"Victor Hugo wrote the great dramas that were in his soul as he saw and felt them," continued Finis. "His work was never supervised. Can any one imagine the Greeks calling on Homer and laying down the plot for the Iliad? Not much!"

Antlers Theatre

"Deaire," a special Metro production, is the feature picture at the Antlers theatre. It is a society drama of the highest type and embodies engaging entertaining qualities along with tense dramatic action.

The story deals with two wealthy young people of the best families about to be married. At the altar they realize that they are not in love with each other and flee. Later the young woman marries her chauffeur, separates from her family and eventually finishes her life in great unhappiness. The young man, disconsolate, meets a charming girl and the tragedy in his life dies to give place to a great love.

"Deaire" is a poignant story calculated to stir the sluggish blood of any

Kellogg's Bran did more in two weeks than medicine taken in 20 years

Out of regard for your own health, read this letter:

Gentlemen: Your "Krumbled Bran," used by me as a cereal, has done more for me in two weeks than the hundreds of dollars' worth of medicine I have taken in last twenty years for constipation. It is wonderful, and it is so simple. Yours truly, Arlington H. Carman, Patchogue, N. Y.

Mr. Carman's experience has been duplicated in thousands of homes. Why does Kellogg's Bran succeed when drugs and pills fail? The answer is simple. Drugs have an unnatural effect upon the bowels. They irritate the intestines. The more they are used, the more one has to use. Finally, they have no effect at all.

Kellogg's Bran STIMULATES the intestines. It cleans, sweeps and purifies them. It acts exactly as nature acts. And it is never necessary to increase the amount eaten. If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran is guaranteed to bring permanent relief to the most chronic cases of constipation, or your grocer returns your money. For Kellogg's Bran is ALL Bran. Nothing but ALL Bran can be so effective. That is why doctors recommend Kellogg's.

The wonderful, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran is exclusive. It is delicious—totally unlike ordinary bran. Eat two table-spoons daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek. Sold by all grocers.
