"THIRD PARTY" PLANS SAME TICKET AT ST. PAUL CONVENTION

PAUL, Minn., June 6.—Thirty states have indicated an intention to send delegates to the national Farmer-Labor - Progressive convention in St. Paul on June 17, according to leaders in the "third party" movement here.

The states, according to tentative plans, will give the convention a total strength of 977, apportioned on the basis of the electoral vote cast in the "progressive" campaign of 1922 elections.

Although the convention's voting strength is set at less than 1,000, committee expects several hundred delegates at the convention, each delegate in many cases casting only a fraction of a vote. Arrangements are being made for a crowd from four to five thousand strong.

The states that will be represented, although no announcement here, are Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Alabama, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Missouri, Kansas, Montana, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Wisconsin, Michigan, Washington, Connecticut, New Jersey, Kentucky and Colorado.

The states are to be selected from those in which farmers' organizations, cooperative organizations, Farmer-Labor parties, state federations of labor, international unions, national working class political parties," according to the committee.

Among those named here are on the belief that the convention will name a ticket and nominate a third party national ticket. The temporary chairman of the convention, it is probably will be William Mahl, St. Paul labor leader.

The adoption and work of the credentials committee is expected to occupy most of the first day of the convention, with organization work taking up the second day. Several speakers of nation-wide repute are being sought.

Platform and resolutions committees will be appointed by the convention immediately after the credentials committee has reported. Nomination of a presidential ticket will be the closing business of the convention, under plans of the local committee.

"Some plans will have to be worked out by a committee on organization as to how to cement all the sections of the movement into one national political party," this committee said.

There is only one name mentioned in regard to presidential candidates at convention headquarters here, and that is Senator Robert M. Lafollette of Wisconsin. There have been no public suggestion here as to vice-presidential choice.

Just what plans will be used in working out a national party of the elements that are expected to participate in the convention, are problematical. It has been indicated, however, that some definite state organization, such as the Farmer-Labor party in Minnesota, might be attempted in each state in the belief that voting power could best be accomplished through the state unit basis.

The "third party" movement, as promoted by the forthcoming convention here, had its incipiency in the Nonpartisan league, first organized in North Dakota nine years ago as a political power. In spreading to Minnesota, the league identity was dropped in politics, and the Farmer-Labor party was formed. League and Farmer-Labor party activity has spread in many other states, particularly of the northwest, making itself felt in state elections.

COOLIDGE LAUDS NEGRO PROGRESS

Advancement of Colored Race Marvel of Modern History President Says.

FUTURE IS BRIGHT

Negro Race to Be Preserved for Great and Useful Work President Declares in Address.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

WASHINGTON, June 6.—President Coolidge, delivering the commencement address today at Howard University, an institution partly maintained here by the government for Negroes, declared the American Negro's progress was one "of the marvels of modern history and that his future was in his own hands."

Contrasting the rapid advancement of the colored people in America with the slow and painful upward movement of humanity as a whole, the president advanced the thought that "the black man's probation on this continent was a necessary part in a great plan by which the race was to be saved to the world for a service we now are able to vision."

"The destiny of the great African continent, to be added at length and in a future not now far beyond us—to the realms of the highest civilization has become apparent with a very few decades," the president said. "But for the strange and long inscrutable purpose which in the ordering of human affairs subjected a part of the black race to slavery, that race might have been assigned to the tragic fate which has befallen many aboriginal people when brought into conflict with more advanced communities. Instead, we are able now to be confident that this race is to be preserved for a great and useful work."

The special field of usefulness for educated negro men and women was declared by Mr. Coolidge to be work with their own people needing "help, guidance, leadership and inspiration."

"The Negro community of America has already so far progressed that its members can be assured that their future is in their own hands," he added.

"Racial hostility, ancient tradition and social prejudice are not to be eliminated immediately or easily. But they will be lessened as the colored people by their own efforts and under their own leaders shall prove worthy to the fullest measure of opportunity.

PENDLETON GRAND JURY INDICTS 13

PENDLETON, June 6.—The Umatilla county jury returned its report today having finished deliberations last night. Chief among the 13 true bills returned by the inquisitorial body was the indictment of Edward Garris, farmer on a charge of involuntary manslaughter in connection with the accidental death of Harry LeRoy Pettit, 10, April 4, on the Oregon-Washington highway near Pendleton. The boy was struck by the machine driven by Garris and died within a few minutes. Four of the true bills were withheld as the men named are not yet in custody. Of the eight remaining, five charged liquor sales, two larceny and one non-support.

DELEGATION WILL VOTE FOR M'ADOO

OGDEN, Utah, June 6.—After a bitter fight hinging upon the instruction of delegates which culminated in the resignation of James H. Waters, democratic state chairman, a delegation instructed to vote for William G. McAdoo at the national democratic convention in New York City June 24, was selected by acclamation at the state convention here late yesterday.

Eight delegates at large, with one half vote each and two from each congressional district with one vote each were named.

OREGON MOTHERS HAVE HEALTHY CHILDREN

Salem, Oreg.—"During my first expectant period I was weak, nervous and all run-down. I had severe headaches, suffered with nausea, or sick stomach. I was so weak I could not do my work, but after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription my health gradually improved, I became strong and felt fine. I had comparatively no suffering and my baby was very strong and healthy.

"When my daughter was growing into womanhood she caught cold. I gave her the 'Favorite Prescription' and it built her up in good health and completely regulated her condition so that she had no trouble, but grew naturally into womanhood."—Mrs. Mary Diefendorf, 825 S. 22nd St.

Cressy Says Tanlac Corrected Troubles Two Years Ago and He Is Still Feeling Fine.

"Well, sir, what Tanlac does it certainly does jam up, for it brought me good health with a gain of 26 lbs. in weight two years ago and I am still feeling fine," is the truly remarkable statement of B. Cressy, a well-known electrical engineer, 959 Ellis St., San Francisco, Calif.

"Previous to taking Tanlac I had suffered agonies with my stomach for a year or more. Many a night this indigestion caused me such pain and shortness of breath that I simply had to get out of bed and walk the floor. Constipation added to my misery and I continually lost weight.

"My first bottle of Tanlac made a decided improvement in my appetite and general condition, so I continued the treatment until the good work of bringing me back to normal health was fully completed. In my opinion Tanlac is without an equal.

Finds Song of English Cicada Very Pleasing

If the insects named as our best are rare and local, or at all events not common, what shall we say of our cicada? Can we call him a singer at all? or if he be not silent, as some think, will he ever be more to us than a figure and descriptive passage in a book—a mere cicada of the mind? He is the most local, or has the most limited range, of all, being seldom found out of the New Forest district. He was discovered there about seventy years ago, and Curtis, who gave him the proud name of Cicada anglica, expressed the opinion that he had no song. . . .

At all events, I can say that unless we have some orthopterous insect, of a species unknown to me, which sings in trees, then our cicada does sing, and I have heard it. The sound which I heard, and which was new to me, came from the upper foliage of a large thorn tree in the New Forest, but unfortunately it ceased on my approach, and I failed to find the singer. . . .

Had we, in England, possessed a stridulating mantis, which is capable of a slower, softer sound than any grasshopper, I should have concluded that I was listening to one; but there was not, in this New Forest music, the slightest resemblance to the cicada sounds I had heard in former years. The cicadas may be a "merry people," and they certainly had the prettiest things said of them by the poets of Greece, but I do not like their brain-piercing, everlasting whirr; this sound of the English cicada, assuming that I heard that insect, was distinctly piercing.—W. H. Hudson, in "Hampshire Days."

American Collected Hair of Famous Poets

The lock of Milton's hair which is being offered for sale by a New York rare book dealer for $1,000 is the tress which was successively in the possession of Addison, Doctor Johnson, John Hoole and Leigh Hunt, and was immortalized in verse by the latter, as well as by Keats and Elizabeth Barrett Browning. At last it found its way to America, but the States have long had first-hand knowledge of it. It was in 1857 that Bayard Taylor wrote a letter, which appeared in the New York Tribune, telling of a visit to Leigh Hunt in his modest cottage at Hammersmith. The poet showed him the hair in question.

"Could it really have been shorn from Milton's head?" asked Mr. Taylor.

"Touch it and you will have touched Milton's self," replied Leigh Hunt.

The visitor touched it, murmuring his host's own line—

There is a life in hair, though it be dead.

Leigh Hunt had then a remarkable collection of locks from the heads of poets and others, which Bayard Taylor described at the time. Milton's, he said, was a thin tuft of brown, silky fibers; Shelley's was gold and very soft. That from the head of Keats was bright brown, curling in large Bacchic rings. Doctor Johnson's hair was gray, with a harsh, wiry feel, and Dean Swift's both brown and gray, but finer, denoting a more sensitive organization. The Charles Lamb tress was reddish brown, short and strong.—Manchester Guardian.

Goldbeating Is Most Ancient Art in World

The recent regilding of the railings outside of Buckingham palace reminds one that gold-beating is at once the most ancient and the most modern art in the world. It is believed that the art was introduced into this country by the Romans about 2,000 years ago, says the London Tit-Bits. Probably they got it from the Greeks, who in turn were instructed by the Egyptians.

Although powerful machinery is used for goldbeating, the final process has to be done by hand. Seen in its virgin state, in a crucible just taken from the furnace, the gold glistens like diamonds, and after being poured into a mold and cooled in a special bath a 200-ounce brick of 22-carat quality is worth about £900.

The men who beat gold by hand wield hammers weighing fourteen or twenty-one pounds each. The skill of the workers is such that gold can be beaten to the thinness of 1-282,000th of an inch, and one ounce can be made to cover an area of more than 200 square feet.

A skilled craftsman takes a week to beat two and a half ounces of gold into leaf, and one ounce produces 2,500 gold leaves three and a quarter inches square.—London Tit-Bits.

INDIANA DEMOCRATS HAVE HARD FIGHT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

INDIANAPOLIS, June 6.—Overwhelming the tenacious opposition of a Ku Klux Klan bloc wielding approximately one-fourth of the votes, the democratic state convention here last night re-dedicated the party to the constitutional guarantees of freedom of worship and expression, and nominated for governor, Dr. Carleton B. McCulloch of Indianapolis, who was opposed by the Klan in the recent state primary.

The Hoosier delegation to the national convention, headed by Tom Taggart of French Lick and avowedly favorable to United States Senator Hammill Ralston was uninstructed.

"We condemn all efforts to stir up race and class hatreds and the creation of dissension amongst our people," the plank read.
