New Mexico Boasts Four Stages of Civilization

Four stages of civilization have existed in New Mexico. The present or American; back of this the Spanish, which came with the Spaniards in 1540. When they came they found the civilization of the Pueblo Indian, with at least seventy villages, cultivated fields and extensive irrigation. Co-existent with them were a prehistoric race, living in well-built cities, with houses of stone, some of them four stories high, and they were cultivating irrigated fields. Their ditches and irrigated works were as well laid out as if run by modern engineers. They have entirely disappeared and we know only that they were here for an unknown period, beginning at least 1,000 years ago.

All that remains are the mighty ruins, some are in cities down on the plains and others are cliff dwellings, where houses are built on the cliffs, and some were cave dwellings. One building at Pueblo Bonito, which is one of the earliest apartment houses, had four stories and covered a greater area than the capitol at Washington. Today, remarks Adventure magazine, the traveler can see at one time the nomadic Indian, the pueblo dweller, the Spanish occupation and the present Anglo-American development.

Middle Ages Heroine Had Practical Mind

One of several fortresses formerly owned by Lord Castletown's ancestors at Morett castle, now a ruin, but at one time a place of immense strength. Concerning this his lordship tells a grim story in his book, "Ego." The castle was besieged by the Irish, and the owner was unluckily captured in a sortie. He was brought up by his captors outside the walls and a parley demanded. His wife came on the battlements, and the enemy herald announced that unless the fortress was surrendered within an hour her husband would be hanged. "Give me time to think it over," requested the lady. "One hour," said the Irish. "One hour will do," replied the lady. At the appointed time both sides returned, the lady on the battlements, the prisoner with a cord round his neck and surrounded by his guard. "I have decided," she said. "I can always get another husband, but never another Morett. You can hang your prisoner." Which they promptly did.

First Divorce Court

The first divorce court in England was instituted in 1538. The court consisted of three judges. At the first sitting five marriages were dissolved, and in the first year of the court's operation 38 divorces were granted out of 288 petitions. From the time of the Reformation up to 1858 there had been but 317 divorces in England, granted by acts of parliament. Until the passing of the divorce act in 1858 the theory in English law regarding divorce was the same as that of the Roman Catholic church, although in practice this rule was not strictly adhered to, and wealthy and influential persons, through parliament, secured freedom from galling ties. The divorce act provided that the wronged husband could be released from his obligation to an unfaithful wife, but gave no such recourse to an injured wife, unless the husband's offense in this direction was aggravated by other offenses.

Forethought

The small boy entered the shoemaker's shop, and unwrapping a small parcel, produced a size 11 shoe, very much the worse for wear. The shoemaker took it from him, and after looking at it, asked: "Well, what do you want me to do with this? It doesn't want mending, does it?"

"Yes," said the boy: "that's father's slipper, and there's a nail sticking up in it. I want you to put it right before he notices it."

"You're a kind little boy," said the old man, beaming. "You must be fond of your father."

"Tain't that quite," replied the small boy calmly. "You see, the nail's sticking right through the sole, and this is the slipper father spansks me with."

Tracing Surnames

Surnames offer a most convenient method of recalling forgotten trades. Who would guess that Thacker or Thackeray was the man who thatched the roof with straw; that Tyler was the one who tiled it, or Slater, he who roofed with slate? A few other names, as Collier, the charcoal burner; Chandler, the candle maker, and Fuller, the cloth cleaner, will show how numerous were the ancient crafts. Blacksmith has no equivalent among English names, unless it be the abbreviated Smith, though in German there is Klingsmith, the "clanging smith." But the horseshoer was a farrier, dropped in our dictionaries but retained in the dictionaries.

Our Wills

Our wills are queer things. They are like plaster of Paris; for after they have been melted into liquid form they tend to "set." They do thus preserve the contour of that about which they have been molded. If it is a good cast, well enough; we make a cast for a permanent possession. Here it is—fixed and final! Is the lethargy of a standard pattern, no matter how excellent it may have been at one time, to prevent any future change and growth?—The Living Church.

BORAH WILL NOT ACCEPT HE SAYS

after Senator Borah. The New York delegation had voted down a resolution to cast its 31 votes for Representative Sanders of Indiana, after Senator Wadsworth had said that the Indiana delegation had steadfastly refused to place Mr. Sanders in nomination.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senators Borah arrived at the White House late in the morning and went into conference with the president. "My position in respect to the nomination is irrevocable," Senator Borah said. "It has not changed and it will not change."

Senator Borah said he had sent a telegram to former Senator Beveridge of Indiana to be read in the convention if by any chance the name was placed in nomination. This telegram he said would definitely end all consideration of the selection. The Idaho senator said that federal Judge William B. Kenyon of Iowa, and Governor Hyde of Missouri, had the best chances for the place.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—Nomination of Judge Wm. Kenyon, as the republican candidate for vice-president became a strong possibility today after noon with the announcement by William M. Butler, President Coolidge's manager, that Kenyon would be acceptable.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—Consolidation of the Kenyon strength was met by gathering together of the forces opposed to the Iowa man, indications of what was understood to be the arrangement to develop.

The arrangement to recess the convention until night was abandoned in favor of the earlier arrangement for an hour and a half's recess. The inauguration in determined manner of the Kenyon boom followed by Senator Borah of Idaho after a conference in Washington with President Coolidge that he could not and would not accept the nomination and after Mr. Butler had been in communication with the White House.

One group opposed to Judge Kenyon, consisting of Senators Lodge, Mass., Reed, of Penn., and Wadsworth of New York and Secretary Mellon, held what was understood to have been a protest meeting in a committee room in the basement of the convention hall.

ST. PAUL, June 12.—Federal Judge W. S. Kenyon, sitting in the circuit court of appeals here, declared this afternoon that he was not and never had been a candidate for the republican vice-presidential nomination. His judicial position, Kenyon declared, made it impossible for him even to discuss what his probable action would be, should the Cleveland convention nominate him as President Coolidge's running mate. He said, however, he was confident he would not be nominated. Judge Kenyon said he was very fond of his work and he felt sure "his friends would not want to take him out of it."

Asked if he could or would not accept the nomination if nominated, Mr. Kenyon said: "I can not even discuss the question."

The former Iowa senator said that aside from newspaper accounts he had not kept intimate touch with the Cleveland convention. He said Iowa had already one vice-presidential candidate, Congressman Dickinson and "Iowa is for him."

CLEVELAND, June 12.—Immediately after the convention recessed a group of party leaders went into conference on the vice-presidential situation. The name of Representative Sanders of Indiana was coupled in the discussion with those of Judge Kenyon of Iowa and Senator Curtis of Kansas.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—The Pennsylvania delegation today voted to support Senator Curtis "until further notice" for the vice-presidential nomination. The vote was taken after Senator Reed had told the delegation that Senator Curtis was "the best available candidate" in view of the refusal of Senator Borah to accept the nomination.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—While the balloting on the presidential nomination was in progress, Secretary Mellon and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania got into communication by telephone with President Coolidge with a desire to halt the Kenyon move. Mr. Butler also talked to the president, but on returning to the convention hall, made no endeavor to record his previous statement that Kenyon was acceptable.

Caucuses of the New York and Pennsylvania delegations were called to meet during the convention recess to discuss possible endorsement of Representative Sanders of Indiana. The majority of the Indiana delegation despite entreaties from New York and Pennsylvania leaders stood firm for Senator Watson.

Leaders representing the powerful states of Pennsylvania and New York declined to follow William Butler and James Good, the Coolidge managers in opposing the candidacy of Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa and declared they would fight it out on the floor.

The boom for Representative Sanders of Indiana was being pushed by his friends who declared that setting would be easy for him if Senator James E. Watson would remove his delegates and remove himself from consideration.

Just as the convention was assembling, Senator Watson declared he had no idea of doing such a thing. Delegations began caucusing as they arrived on the floor and it was reported that the Ohio delegation would cast its first ballot for Dr. Marion Lahey Burton, and after the first ballot for Charles G. Dawes of Chicago. The hall was flooded with handbills, posters, cards and other advertising for the flock of vice-presidential candidates. The Watson boosters marched to the hall with a brass band.

Iowa delegates who have been supporting Representative Dickinson were released by him and turned over to the Kenyon forces. The recess of an hour and a half was calculated to give time for the 12,000 delegates, alternates and spectators to get luncheon in anticipation of a prolonged session. A good many probably came back hungry or with indignation.

While the delegates were assembling the Coolidge home town boys took the platform and sang their song "Keep Cool with Coolidge."

While they were singing the word was passed around that former Representative Jaffries, would nominate Charles G. Dawes.

Fred W. Upham, retiring treasurer of the national committee and its new member from Illinois was asked where Illinois stood on the vice-presidency. He replied: "Illinois is for Dawes." The candidacy of Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas it became known was to be placed formally before the convention by Representative Tischer of that state. William M. Butler had a hurried conference with Governor Cox of the Massachusetts delegation, but its purpose was not disclosed.

Some of the large delegation spaces were still empty 20 minutes after the convention was supposed to resume. It was five minutes to four when chairman Mondell began pounding with the gavel in an attempt to quiet the floor and galleries and start up business.

World's Smallest Book in Library of Congress

Some of the interesting curiosities at the Library of Congress in Washington are: the smallest book in the world, the longest printed work in the world and the largest book in America. The smallest book is a copy of the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam. The longest work is the Tu Shu Chinese encyclopedia, while the largest book in America is James Audubon's "Birds of America."

The midjet Rubaiyat is only three-eighths of an inch wide and one-eighth of an inch thick. Letters in the book, even on the title page, are so small that they can be read only with the aid of a powerful magnifying glass. Its 48 pages of Japan paper are daintily stitched and bound in green paper. The printing of the mammoth Tu Shu Chinese encyclopedia has been called the "greatest topographical feat in the world." Three years were required to print its 5,250 volumes with their 890,000 pages. The table of contents alone is forty volumes. A copy of this voluminous work printed at Shanghai was given to the United States by the emperor of China in 1908. Audubon's "Birds of America," the giant American book, is forty inches long, twenty-six and one-half inches wide and two and one-fourth inches thick. So large are its pages that one of them a turkey is produced in life-size. The set comprises four volumes. They are bound in red horsehide and were presented to the library by Audubon himself in 1827.—Detroit News.

"What do you do with all these heaps?" he asked.

"Burn them," was the reply.

COMEDIAN KEEPS COURT IN UPROAR

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

NEW YORK, June 12.—"Broadway is on trial," was the comment of Magistrate Levine in west side court in holding Frank Tinney, blackface comedian, in $2500 bail for the grand jury on charges of assault brought by Imogene Wilson, "Follies" star. Tinney kept the court room in an uproar all afternoon with an account of his difficulties with "Hubbies" as he called Miss Wilson. The actress, who also has filed a suit for $100,000 civil damages against the defendant, charges him with severely beating her in her apartment on May 27 last. "It was not Miss Wilson's apartment," Tinney said in court. "That was my apartment. 'Hubbies' kicked down the door and moved in her trunk."

He charged the "Follies" star with threatening his life on several occasions and gravely exhibited to the crowded court room a pair of bruised shins.

The comedian testified that he went to see Miss Wilson on the day in question to remonstrate with her for staging a "fake suicide party" and to tell her that he wanted no publicity of that sort.

In regard to the alleged assault, he testified that he used only what force was necessary to keep the actress from using an ice pick on him.

DERN DEFEATS McCARROLL

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) PENDINGTON, June 12.—Ira Dorn of Salt Lake City last night defeated Ray McCarroll of Pendleton in a speedy wrestling match, winning two out of three falls. Both wrestlers worked for nothing at the site. Dorn took the first fall in 35 minutes with a hold of his own invention, a combination leg split, top cradle and arm lock. McCarroll got the second fall in 22 minutes with a pivot leg hold, while Dorn took the deciding tangle after 21 minutes when he picked McCarroll up and forced his shoulders to the mat from a standing position with what the Salt Lake flash termed a "pile driver."
