LOVE-OR FAME?

by
VIOLET DARE

Author of "The Half-Time Wife"

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

DOROTHY LANE goes to New York to visit PERSIS GRANT and try to break into the movies. She meets LAWRENCE FRENCH, a young publicity man, and after a quarrel with PERSIS, goes to a girl's club with SYLVIA STEARNS and lives there. Through French she meets JOHN EDWARD, a famous star, and on independent production that he is making. Seward, known as "the great lover of the screen," falls in love with her. Realizing that she cared more for Lawrence French than for him, she is much upset. Returning from a location trip early one morning, she sees Sylvia and Lawrence driving to the railway station together, and feels sure that they are eloping.

of crying because I was going to marry one of the biggest motion-picture stars in the country. Yet that's just what I was doing! Homesick and unhappy as I was when I got to the club, it looked wonderful to me. I ran up the walk, between the beds of geraniums, and called to the caretaker, who was sweeping the front porch. "Oh, Miss Lane!" she cried. "Back so soon? And Miss Sylvia's just gone away. Did you see her perhaps at the station?" "No—no, I didn't," I answered, wishing that my throat wouldn't feel so choky.

I drove up Fifth Avenue in a taxi.

"Well, she's gone away, and she left a note for you on the bulletin board." I dropped my suit case at the foot of the stairs and crossed the hall to the big bulletin board where we girls always left messages for each other. There were a lot of folded notes there now, addressed to different girls, and several notices.

"Will Miss Hewitt phone Mr. ABC?" I can't tell you his name; he was one of the big theatrical managers—"at ten o'clock. He called up at eight." Oh, I knew what that would mean to Constance Hewitt—a chance to get an engagement at last! "Wardrobe trunk for sale—in excellent condition; only needs new handles and a bit of mending in one tray. I'll let it go cheap." I read that almost mechanically; there, scrawled on the bottom of the notice, was written, "Bought by Sylvia Stearns!" In blue pencil. Oh, what that meant to me!

I found my note from Sylvia, but somehow I didn't dare open it. It would mean unhappiness for me, I was sure, and I wanted to stop a moment and remember how dear Sylvia had been to me before I tore it open.

—All's Well.

XXIV—HOURS HEAVY WITH HEARTACHE

FOR a moment I was perfectly furious at Sylvia and Lawrence. Then, on second thought, I was furious at myself. Why should I have thought Lawrence cared for me, anyway? He'd been awfully nice, of course, about helping me along, but he was the kind of chap who'd do that for any girl. And he'd taken me out a good deal—but then he'd probably have done that for any girl from out of town who was lonely.

He'd told me once that he didn't know many girls in New York; probably that was the reason he'd been nice.

And Sylvia was pretty and awfully attractive—no wonder that he had fallen in love with her. That was all perfectly reasonable, of course. But it made me feel just desperate. I only had a little money, but I signalled a taxi and drove up Fifth Avenue in it, and then home.

And on the way I decided that I might as well marry John Seward. I couldn't help crying. And I couldn't help thinking at the time of how unbelievable I'd have thought that situation not so very many months before. Why, I couldn't have imagined myself having money enough that I'd earned to ride in a taxi—then think their way to Salem with three prisoners. The prisoners are Macario Arroyo, who was sentenced for 20 years on a charge of assault to commit rape; Harry Halener, given one year for obtaining money under false pretenses, and Sam Wirta, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon, who is to spend three years in the pen.

To Visit Parents.—Mrs. Fred G. Smith and son Richard, left this morning for Tacoma, Washington, where they will spend the next month or six weeks visiting with Mrs. Smith's parents.

Undergo Operations.—Kenneth Miller, Rachael Smith and G. B. Tester, underwent minor operations this morning at the Mercy Hospital. Dr. A. C. Seely was in attendance.

Finds Kellogg's Bran "Easy way to avoid constipation" after suffering for years

Constipation is a dangerous disease. It can lead to many others. Twenty years' suffering with constipation undetermined this man's health. Kellogg's Bran restored it—as it has done for thousands. This is what he says:

"Gentlemen: After eating Kellogg's Bran twice a day for one month I find it not only an 'Easy Way to Avoid Constipation,' but an easy and most pleasant way to cure it. I have been troubled with constipation . . . for more than twenty years . . . after adopting the milk and bran diet I find my stomach greatly improved, and find it a specific for constipation. I deem it only justice that you should know what your product has done for me, and what it is capable of doing for others." (The original of this letter is on file at the Kellogg Company, Battle Creek, Mich.)

Kellogg's Bran relieves mild and chronic constipation because it is ALL Bran. It brings sure results. It sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine in nature's own way. Don't experiment. Only ALL Bran can be 100 per cent effective.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to bring permanent relief—or your grocer returns your money. You should eat two table-spoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. The flavor is delicious—nut-like—cooked and krumbled. Enjoy it with milk or cream, sprinkled on other cereals, cooked with hot cereals, or in the delightful recipes on every package. Made in Battle Creek. Sold by grocers everywhere.

ROTARIANS OPEN CONVENTION TODAY

TORONTO, June 17.—Rotary's destiny is the establishment of a world fellowship of business and professional men, united in the Rotary idea of service," said President Guy Gundaker opening the 15th annual Rotary Convention here today.

"A world of fellowship, while necessarily contingent on the extent and successful establishment of Rotary in all the nations of the world, is likewise contingent on the correctness of the standards of business practice of the men privileged to enter that fellowship," he continued.

"Until men meet on the common ground of correct business methods, there can be no world fellowship of business men. The major Rotary activity for the immediate future will be an increasing and unceasing activity for better business methods and their standardization in codes of ethics. In countries where crafts are organized with great national associations, the greatest opportunity for achievement will be found in Rotary's campaign for written codes of correct standards of business practice."

"In my opinion, Rotary's most lasting contribution to the world will be found in the realm of business, in the making of a happier, more contented, more kindly, more cooperative, and more honorable business world. In the achievement of a more honorable business world, you have the solution for all the other betterments sought. With an honorable business world, happiness, contentment, kindness and cooperation must and will prevail."

"With correct business methods, world-wide, the business men of all nations, meeting on this common ground, will establish great international friendships and good will, friendships which will harbor everlasting peace."

"One of the ultimate objects of written codes is to standardize conduct so that all fellow-craftsmen in any line of business can compete with one another on an equality of opportunity. Where men compete on different business standards, there is no equality of opportunity."

"Likewise, competition between men of different standards of business methods is unfair competition. Standardization of right conduct will destroy unfair competition, and written codes of rules of conduct provide the only way for such standardization. When business men compete on a common ground of high business standards, sales will be made on the basis of service, and then that paradox of the imagination—cooperative competition—will be a reality."

"The greatest contribution made by Rotary in its code campaign is the insistence that codes must be made up of rules of conduct expressed as 'shall' or 'shall not.' Those codes written as rules of conduct, not expressed as 'shall' or 'shall not,' fail to accomplish the purpose for which they were written; namely, the standardization of conduct."

"Of the 51 codes adopted since the start of Rotary's campaign for codes, 27 of which are the codes of great national organizations, a careful estimate indicates that 200,000 business men, unassociated with Rotary, are now working under adequate codes which direct them in ethical conduct. This is a great practical demonstration of the results secured by Rotarians as ambassadors to their crafts, and also a conclusive proof of the leavening effect of Rotary upon the whole business world."

"Ethical conduct of business, emphasized and spread throughout the world, will greatly diminish the inclination and disposition on the part of the peoples of the different nations to fight one another. Unscrupulous business methods have been a potent cause of many international misunderstandings, and war has frequently sprung from unethical business manipulations, and desire for monopolistic control. It is an historical fact that nations are born, and great wars have happened through the use of business as a pawn in the world's game of chess. History shows that governments follow the same path as businesses: if business is crooked, governments will be crooked. If business is honest, (which Rotary's campaign for better business ethics aims to make it), it has a corresponding reaction upon the character of government."

"When the Rotary campaign for ethical business conduct spreads and is accepted, and is of world-wide recognition and enforcement, one of the greatest and most serious hidden underlying causes of jealousy and war will have been permanently removed."

PLEASED WITH EDITORIAL

Editor News-Review,
Dear Sir: An editorial in the News-Review concerning the killing of birds on the Elk's Island by boys has come to my attention. We are very much pleased with your attitude in this matter, and feel that much good will come of such comment.

I expect the boys responsible do not realize the value of insectivorous birds to agriculture interests, perhaps their parents do not fully realize the importance of protecting and conserving harmless wild life in general, and have failed to warn their sons against such practice.

Beneficial song birds are protected by both federal and state laws, heavy penalties being provided for persons found guilty of unlawfully killing wild birds, but in the matter referred to I suspect that the parents are as much, or more to blame than the boys.

If the killing of wild birds continues in the vicinity of Roseburg, I expect some of those responsible shall find themselves in serious trouble.

Very Truly Yours,
RAY C. STEELE
U. S. Game Warden.

ART SCHOOL WILL START ON MONDAY

The branch of the National Art School to be conducted in Roseburg under the auspices of the South Methodist church, will start on Monday, June 23, and will continue for a week or ten days. The school will be held in the basement of the church and will be free to the public. Miss Lucille A. Mint, an experienced art instructor will have charge of the school which will have something of interest for art students, as well as beginners who have never had any instruction in this line. The fundamentals will be taught, the use of

CARLOAD OF CHERRIES SHIPPED TO ST. LOUIS

The first carload of fresh cherries to be shipped out of Umpqua Valley, were sent from Roseburg to St. Louis last night by Foster Butner. The cherries were consigned to a dealer who has handled brocoli through Mr. Butner's exchange, and upon the word of Mr. Butner that the cherries were good, the purchaser agreed to advance 8 cents per pound, and will place his final price upon the arrival and inspection of the fruit. The car contained 1412 boxes weighing 16 or 18 pounds each. The express charges to St. Louis will be $1100. Mr. Butner states that he expects to ship two more carloads provided rain does not damage the fruit.
