LOVE-OR FAME?

by
VIOLET DARE

Author of "The Half-Time Wife"

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

DOROTHY LANE goes to New York to visit PERSIS GRANT and try to break into the movies. She meets

LAWRENCE FRENCH, a young publicity man, and after a quarrel with Persis, goes to a girl's club with

SYLVIA STEARNS and lives there. Through French she meets

JOHN SEWARD, a famous star, and is engaged as his leading lady in an independent production that he is making. Seward, known as "the great lover of the screen," falls in love with her. Realizing that she cared more for Lawrence French than for him, she is much upset. Returning from a location trip early one morning, she sees Sylvia and Lawrence driving to the railway station together, and feels sure that they are eloping. But a note from Sylvia explains that she has an engagement with a stock company out of town and is leaving to fill it. An agent phones her, asking her to see him concerning work. There she meets a movie magnate, EKHORN, who offers her an engagement, and wants her to dine with him. Having an engagement with French, she refuses.

XXXIII—A MOMENT OF ROMANCE

I THINK most any girl would have been happy to be with Lawrence that evening. But he was wearing a white flannel trousers and a dark blue coat, and looked wonderful in them. I saw a girl at the next table look at him, and then turn and speak to the girl and the two men who were with her, and I didn't feel at all surprised; I was so proud of him myself that I wouldn't have felt amazed if everybody there had turned around to look at him.

"There's a girl over there who's awfully interested in you, Larry," I said, and he laughed and turned to look over at her. And then he excused himself to me, quite excitedly, saying, "It's a girl I used to know," and rushed over to their table.

It was silly, but I felt hurt. He couldn't have done anything else, if he was polite, of course—and yet I hated having him jump up and leave me that way.

"She lived next door to me when we were just kids," he told me when he came back, a few moments later. "We played around together for years, and when I was in college she went to boarding school not far away, and used to come down to proms and things with me. Pretty, isn't she?"

She was pretty—I think maybe that was one reason why I'd sort of hated having him leave me to speak to her. And she was dressed beautifully—nobody would wear clothes like that if they had to pay their own laundry bills, I decided.

Lawrence and I passed their table when we went up to the dance floor, and he introduced us. Her name was Priscilla Graves, but Lawrence called her Pussy.

I have never known anybody else who danced as Lawrence does. And I've never liked so well to dance with any one else. It's sort of as if something quite outside of you swept you along, and you aren't conscious of really dancing at all—the music carries you.

It was wonderful that night, with the music throbbing and singing as if it had been my heart, somehow, and the rose lights on the little tables dimmed by the beauty of the moonlight outside, and the harbor lights twinkling there below us. I felt as if I were in fairyland. And I was Priscilla Graves, but Lawrence called her Pussy.

IRRIGATION LEADERS TO MEET

PORTLAND, Ore., June 27.—(United Press)—Irrigation leaders of Oregon will meet at Klamath Falls September 7, 8 and 9 to adopt a definite unified state-wide program for reclamation development, according to plans made here by the executive committee of the Irrigation congress.

James Kyle, of Stanfield, president of the congress, declared Oregon should profit by the experiences of Idaho in irrigation matters. In that state, he said, various irrigation experts have pulled together for particular projects, and obtained government support; while in Oregon, he pointed out, unified action is being met with corresponding lack of effort.

At the Klamath Falls congress, definite proposition favoring development of certain projects by government aid and same time the construction of north unit, Jefferson Waterway district as a state project the interest guaranty plan be presented for consideration endorsement by the congress.
