LOVE-OR FAME?

by
VIOLET DARE

Author of "The Half-Time Wife"

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

DOROTHY LANE goes to New York to visit

PHILIP GRANT and try to break into the movie. She meets

LAWRENCE FRENCH, a young publicity agent, and through him gets an engagement with JOHN SEWARD, "the great lover of the screen." Seward falls in love with her and asks her to marry him, but she refuses. She quarrels with Lawrence, whom she loves, and accepts the attentions of EIKHORN, a big producer, until they become obnoxious. A reporter comes to see her late one night after she has abruptly left Eikhorn, to tell her that Eikhorn has been boasting of having been her escort, and that John Seward has beaten him in public. He asks why Seward should defend her, and she, touched by Seward's chivalry, replies that she is engaged to him.

I felt as if I were in a horrible nightmare. It seemed incredible that such a thing could have happened.

"I'm not going to play in the picture; I told Mr. Eikhorn tonight that I couldn't because I didn't approve of the story." I told the reporter, "And Mr. Eikhorn didn't bring me home; he and I left the hotel in Brooklyn where I had been dining."

"With him?" the reporter cut in eagerly.

"No, with—some one else." I'd rather have died than drag Lawrence French into this horrible

"I'm engaged to John Seward," I said.

mess. "I came only part way home in Mr. Eikhorn's car. I went on, and then I left it and came the rest of the way in a taxi alone."

"Why did you do that?" the reporter interrupted again.

"Because he had an engagement," I answered.

"All right—now about John Seward."

"I've been working in a picture with Mr. Seward," I said, and then hesitated. John Seward's wonderful chivalry, his kindness, his thoughtfulness for me, came to me suddenly. There came, too, a clear realization of how people would talk about us both, and of what harm it would do.

There was only one way out of the situation, as I saw it. For a moment I felt that I could not take it; that such a step could not be asked of me. But I couldn't plan. I couldn't seem to find any other way.

The reporter was questioning me again, asking "With whom I'd dated, why I'd left Eikhorn on the way home, why he should have said such things about me. I felt bewildered, willing to do almost anything to make him stop talking and go away."

"Finally I turned to him frantically."

"John Seward defended my name because I'm engaged to be married to him," I told him, clenching my hands to keep myself from pounding on the stairs and screaming.

"Now go away—don't ask me anything more—go away!" And I put my head down on Jenny's shoulder and sobbed wildly.

THEATRE'S

Antlers Theatre

An exceptional film event is offered local patrons of the silver screen in the announcement of the coming of "Tiger Rose" at the Antlers theatre for 2 days, beginning Thursday, as the feature attraction.

Patterned after the Belasco play that scored the most successful run of any play on Broadway, starring Lenore Ulric, the actress who created the title role on the stage, and who achieved such fame and popularity in her latest hit, "Kiki"; backed by David Belasco, whose endorsement it bears; produced by Warner Brothers, and directed by Sidney Franklin, the photoplay presents a combination hard to equal anywhere.

The acquisition of David Belasco, his play and all it stands for in the realm of drama, is a guarantee of high dramatic quality.

The story of "Tiger Rose," set in the far northwest, in the region where men and wild beasts rove at large, killing and being killed, impelled by instincts of hunger, love and fear, is one chock-full of the dramatic and soul-stirring. As a result, the picture is said to move and tingle with human interest.

Liberty Theatre

George Larkin and Billie Dove are starred in the story which has to do with the adventures of a wealthy young American who goes to the sunny shores of Seville, and takes an active part in this tropic country's fiery revolution.

"Yankee Madness" opens with a fascinating bit of action showing a daring automobile rescue. George Larkin, as Richard Morton, leaping from a fast moving car into another to rescue Billie Dove, as Dolores, daughter of the president of Seville. From here on the action moves swiftly and in an interesting manner to the very end.

Others in the cast besides George Larkin and Billie Dove who are distinguished by their good work are: Walter Long, Earl Schenck, Manuel Camero, Ollie Kirby, Arthur Miller, and Jean Gauden. At the Liberty theatre tomorrow and Saturday.

NOTICE

No meals will be served at the Dearborn Hotel at Oakland, July 4th or 5th.
