Prune Prospect Looks Brighter

Speaking of the outlook for disposing of the prunes in the northwest, Mr. C. J. Hurd, Marketing Specialist of the Oregon Agricultural College, and former county agent of Douglas County stated that the prospect at the present time looked much brighter than it did only a few weeks ago.

There were some inquiries being made by western buyers; while there were not very many sales being made for the reason that the prices quoted by the Northwest packers was higher than the buyers were ready to buy.

Mr. Hurd stated that he expected to see a very good price for the larger sized prunes as California's crop would be mostly small sizes and that the price weather in Oregon would affect the sizes of the Oregon crop to some extent.

Mr. Hurd stated that the one thing that prevented free movement of the prunes in the northwest was the practice of price cutting. Eastern buyers being afraid to take hold for fear that their competitors would secure a better price than they did and thus be enabled to under sell them in the market.

Mr. Hurd stated that on a recent trip to principal cities of the east, including Pittsburgh, New York and Boston that he interviewed a large number of brokers handling northwestern prunes and they were unanimous in the opinion that unless the price could be stabilized and a trade guaranteed violent fluctuations that Oregon would always be at a disadvantage compared with California where the industry was better organized.

Mr. Hurd spoke very highly of the prospects of the new North Pacific Cooperative Prune Exchange. He stated that it was being organized by men experienced in handling prunes. Since no effort was being made to extend the organization beyond those units that were organized or in process of organization, that he expected to see the exchange pass through its first year with a creditable showing and that following this that it would receive the support of the growers to the point that it would eventually be a controlling factor in the market.

able of the number of acres thus far burned over. The necessity for haste in fighting the blaze in places where it was immediately endangering property postponed an estimate of damage done in the other districts.

MEDFORD, Ore., July 24—A forest fire east of Bute Falls, on state land is being combated by the forest fire service and men from the Oregon-Owens lumber company this morning and is reported under control, except on the west side, where the energies of the fire fighters are being centered.

A small fire which broke out in the Sardinia creek district Wednesday afternoon is under control this morning, after burning all night.

SALEM, Ore., July 24—A special dispatch from Dallas to the Capital Journal says that four men who were assisting in the fighting of forest fires in the Paulding Logging Company holdings on Bald Mountain about ten miles southeast of Falls City and 20 miles southwest from here, were reported to have been cut off by the advancing blaze and fears are felt for their safety, according to meagre reports received here today from the scene of the spreading fire. A check of the fire fighters showed four to be unaccounted for. Their names were not learned.

The fire yesterday, fanned by a strong north wind, progressed about six miles, but was not traveling as fast today because of the lighter wind, according to W. V. Fuller, county fire warden.

A number of families living within a short distance of the fire were moved out last evening. The fire was reported to have been about 200 feet from the Simpson Logging camp. Men were also stationed along the railroad line to extinguish fires which started on some of the trestles from flying embers. A report that one of the large trestles on the logging road had been burned out was found to be unfounded.

Between 300 and 400 men from Valdez, Falls City, Independence and Dallas were fighting the progress of the fire.

Another fire which broke out last evening in the Block Rock district was going but little real damage, it was said, as the timber for the most part had been logged off a number of years ago and has but a small second growth of trees at present. The train crew found it impossible to go from here to Falls City because of the dense smoke in proximity to the track. Little danger was felt that the fire would spread enough to get into the big timber as the wind was in the wrong direction.

The flames from the fire could be seen from Fairmount hill in Salem with ease, it was said.

Three trestles on the Inezing company railway spur line to Simpson camp on Bald Mountain about 24 miles southwest of here, were burned out this morning by the spreading forest fire in that district. The fire crossed the valley and Hills railway and has traveled to mountain ridges south of Bald Mountain.

Deputy Fire Warden Colwell, stationed at a lookout station at the peak of Bald Mountain reported this morning that two fires could be seen in other counties, one to the south near St. Mary's peak in Benton county and the other to the northwest near Mt. Hebo in Tillamook county.

CAMP MEETING AT COTTAGE GROVE

At the State Methodist Camp ground at Cottage Grove is being held a ten days camp meeting under the auspices of the Oregon Methodist Conference. Dr. S. A. Danford of Eugene in charge. Dr. J. W. Hargrett of Kansas City, Mo., pastor of a downtown city church preaches, with great power, twice a day. Rev. G. S. Brown of Sutherlin, is the song leader. The new tabernacle is large, airy and commodious with a platform that has seating capacity for 30 ministers and will accommodate a choir of fifty voices, the piano and organ. The tabernacle is located on an estate with long frontage on the Pacific highway and which adjoins Cottage Grove, that has recently been purchased by the Oregon Methodist Conference. The tabernacle will be dedicated on Friday evening of this week, Bishop Wm. O. Shepard D. D., of the Northwest Area of the Methodist Episcopal church will preach the dedication sermon. The attendance is representative and larger than anticipated, because only a few tents were in readiness, many persons have rooms in private families and the hotel is taxed to capacity with Methodists and tourists. From Roseburg those in attendance are Rev. and Mrs. Joseph Knotts, and son Ross, Rev. and Mrs. Jenkins and grand daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Webster, Mrs. Dalton, Mrs. R. L. Gile, and mother, Mrs. Curran, Mrs. A. C. Maisters and her house guests, Mrs. Felix, T. McWhirter and grand daughter, Ethel, Mary Ostrom of Indiantown.

HEAT AT SALEM REACHES 95 MARK

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SALEM, Ore., July 24—With the temperature resting at the 95 degree mark at 1 o'clock this afternoon and slowly rising, Salem is experiencing the second hottest day of the year. The record heat of the year is 98, reported on June 29, which was the hottest June day in Salem for the past 20 years. A slight breeze provided some relief from the heat. The humidity was lower than usual, which made the heat less oppressive. Yesterday's maximum temperature was 84 degrees. With warmer weather forecast for Friday it is likely that a new heat record for the year will be established.

The prolonged drought and the high temperatures of the past few weeks have parched every inflammable object so that it is an easy prey to fire once started. Flying embers from a burning barn near Hubbard yesterday ignited a straw stack nearly a quarter of a mile distant.

Aside from the bitter part of June when the city faced a serious water shortage no restrictions have been placed upon those who desire water for irrigation purposes.

EVERY MAN MUST FACE HIS RECORD

"The great Judgment day will condemn every sinner, justify all the righteous, and vindicate the character of God," said Elder F. S. Bunch at the Rose St. tent last night.

"Every act of God in His dealings with saint and sinner will be open to the scrutiny of men and of all the host of heaven. The records, kept not by God Himself, but by angels, are open to the knowledge of all, and when the great work is finished all the universe will unite in one great anthem, ascribing praise and honor and glory to the God of heaven, or His goodness and righteousness. There will never again, throughout all eternity, be any doubt."
