BAD ACCIDENT NEAR SUTHERLIN

The small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Moch, of San Francisco, was quite badly cut about the face and head, and Mr. Moch's big Franklin sedan, was badly wrecked yesterday evening, when the machine, in which they were traveling south, collided with the Douglas Fire Patrol truck, a short distance south of Sutherlin yesterday evening. The accident happened on a curve just after the truck had passed another car going in the same direction. The two machines collided with great force, almost demolishing the body of the Franklin. The little girl was cut from broken glass, as practically all of the glass was broken from the machine. The truck was also badly damaged.

Within 3 hours you can now fly over to Bandon by the Sea.

PAVILION WILL BE RECONSTRUCTED

PORTLAND, July 30.—The people of the northwest were dismayed Wednesday afternoon, July 23, when they heard of the disaster which had overtaken the great Pacific International Live Stock Exposition. Its magnificent building in North Portland, Oregon, caught fire from a burning shingle mill, and is a half hour was reduced to ashes.

This splendid plant, the largest and most conveniently arranged and equipped structure of its kind in the world, covered over 19 acres of land. It cost approximately $500,000. However, it was insured for about $250,000, and General Manager O. M. Plummer states positively that the Exposition will be held November 1 to 8, inclusive, without fail, and that adequate assurances are coming from every quarter of the compass of aid and entries of livestock. He says:

"The exposition will be bigger and better than ever. Naturally, all our plans have not been completed, but we expect to rebuild and work will be commenced at once. The Pacific International Live Stock Exposition is so solidly founded and so important an institution that even a great blow such as this cannot halt its growth and progress."

The new building which will take the place of the one just destroyed will follow the same plan, so admirable did that plan prove to be. The amphitheatre probably will be made somewhat larger, but the general construction will be the same as before. It seems that it cannot be bettered.

SAYS NORWEGIANS DISCOVERED AMERICA

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
SPOKANE, Wash., July 29.—That a party of Norse explorers explored the American continent and settled in the Pacific northwest in 1010 A. D. is stated in a series of articles, the publication of which was started by the Spokane Chronicle today, detailing discoveries declared to have been made by Olaf Larsson Opjorn, a Norwegian scientist, who is visiting here.

Mr. Opjorn declares that he has discovered hundreds of carved stone tablets in various parts of the northern United States consisting of Runic letters peculiar to the Nordic writings and other Norse characters that disproves that an earlier discovery than that made by the Italians.

Zodiac and other astronomical figures, the year and in some cases the month and the day are shown, he said. These indicate, according to Mr. Opjorn's deductions that a party of Norsemen under a leader named Lippun settled first on both sides of Puget Sound in 1010, and after battles with Indians in which the superior weapons of the invaders usually rendered them victorious, they went to the Rogue river valley of Oregon.

Some three hundred years later in 1362 a second expedition under a man named Nielsavon came to the Pacific northwest, he says, and tells of a stone sign he discovered in the state of Washington bearing that information.

LOVE-OR FAME?

by VIOLET DARE
Author of "The Half-Time Wife"

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

DOROTHY LANE goes to New York to visit a friend and try to break into the movie business. She soon gets started, and through the friendship of

LAWRENCE FRENCH, a young publicity man, gets an engagement with JOHN SEWARD, "the great lover of the screen," who falls in love with her, and asks her to marry him. However, she cares more for French, but is not sure that he cares for her. She has an unfortunate experience with

EIKHORN, one of the big producers, and decides to go back home and give up her career, when French sets her a part in a picture being made in the country by CARL BANNING. French follows her to the country and proposes to her. Banning persuades them not to be married at once, and French goes back to New York. The star of the production.

CRYSTAL MAY, does all that she can to make things unpleasant for Dorothy. Crystal refuses to do a dangerous leap, and Banning gives that scene to Dorothy. Dorothy realizes that it will mean a great deal to her career if she does it, and goes through with it, though she is much frightened. Later she learns that Crystal has insisted on having that scene cut out. Dorothy receives word from Lawrence that he is leaving for California as publicity man for a famous actress. She is desolate. She returns to New York, expecting to be quite alone there. But Lawrence French meets her at the station. They are married at once. They go with John Seward to a projection room to see the picture which Dorothy made with him. She is afraid to have Lawrence see the love scene between her and the other man.

LX—"DO YOU WANT TO BE A STAR?"

SO we went home, Larry had taken a suite at a hotel that afternoon—a darling place overlooking the park. Our rooms were up very high, so that we could see clear out over the city, and though there were just a few of them—only two bedrooms, a living room, and a bath—they were so pretty and comfortable that they seemed like home to me at once.

Larry pulled a big chair up to the living room window—a window so large that you almost forgot that you were in a room at all. And when he sat in it, and I curled up in his lap, and for a little while we didn't say anything at all.

Finally he spoke. "I had a few words with Seward while you were saying good night to Sylvia," he told me. "He says that Lenstreet will offer to star you on the strength of this picture, that's unusual, of course, but he's picked one or two big winners in just this way, and he claims that he always knows them. John says you're a sure bet; that Carl Banning sent Lenstreet, who's a great friend of his, some film that showed you making a jump over the falls up there at Taughanook—honey, why on earth did you ever do such a wild stunt? You might have been killed—and that Lenstreet went wild over that. Seward says he's never seen him more enthusiastic, if he dared tell himself so."

"Then—that means that he's likely to make me a really big offer?" I asked.

"Seward says he'll star you," he answered, and his arms tightened around me. "But—well, do you want that, dear?"

"I want this," I told him, sitting up straight and thrusting his arms tenderly, truthfully, now you felt tonight when you saw me playing those love scenes with John Seward. Did you like it? Did you feel that an actress looks on such things just as part of the day's work, and that

"Longstreet can keep his old contract," I told him.

that's all they are? Or did you— But I couldn't go on.

"I hated it," I answered emphatically. "I wasn't going to say anything about it, because you did wonderful work in that picture, and I didn't want to make you unhappy. I don't want to stand in your way, either. But—well, it's up to you, honey."

"Then Longstreet can keep his old contract," I told him, curling up in his arms again. "I don't want to be a star."

"I couldn't get out of it so easily. To please John Seward, and because he had been so nice to me. I went with him to see Mr. Lenstreet the next day. I hadn't much time, for Larry and I were to start in a few days for the Coast on that trip he was to make, and I hadn't any troupeau at all, of course; Sylvia and I were rushing around, buying it."

Mr. Longstreet was very persuasive.

"This is just because you've just been married," he told me. "You think there's nothing in the world but love and kisses. But you wait. When the realization comes that you could have a career—that you could act, first on the screen, and then perhaps on the stage—then will you want to be shut inside four walls while your husband is out in the world, seeing new people all the time. Will you?"

"Think it over, Dorothy," John Seward advised me, as I insisted that I wouldn't ever go back to the screen. "Things sometimes happen that we haven't expected. And you've got one chance in a million. Think it over till you get back from the Coast, at least."

And so I said I would, and went away, down Fifth Avenue, with Longstreet's contract in my pocket.

I walked along, as I so often had, watching the beautiful cars roll by and looking at the wonderfully dressed women in them. Once I had said to myself some day I would have a car like one of those, and would wear gorgeous frocks and be pointed out as a celebrity.

And now I had the chance. I could have all those things within the next few months if I chose.

But then I came to the public library, where I was to meet Lawrence. He was standing on the bottom step, waiting for me. And as I saw how his face lighted up when he saw me, and felt the thrill that went straight to my heart when his eyes met mine, I felt sure that my only appearance as a star would be when I was costarred in that one picture with John Seward.

And yet, as he said—something may happen. When we get back from the Coast things may be different. I can't tell.

But I hope they won't. I have had all I want from the motion-picture game. I have become a star. But, also, I have love—and I don't believe that you can mix love and the movies.

THE END

in a beneficiaries of the reduced prices, while a second attack centered against the Prussian State Commerce Minister Siering. The Nationalists accused him of appointing as head of the factory a Dr. Schneider, who, they said, not only made special prices but was not expert in conducting the business.

It was explained that special prices were offered some time ago to all permanent customers of the factory, and that the ministers benefited in this bargain sale, without, however, transgressing any state or moral laws.

The nationalists' onslaught is intended to disrupt the existing Prussian state government so that the Nationalists can come to power in the state again, as they have long desired to do.

ASKING RELEASE OF PORTLAND MANAGER

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
PORTLAND, July 30.—That active negotiations have already been entered with the Fort Worth, Texas, baseball club for the release of Jimmy Middleton, manager of the Portland baseball team of the Pacific coast last year, and that Middleton will succeed Manager Bill Kenworthy, who resigned late yesterday, if Fort Worth's terms are anywhere within reason, is the feature of the baseball situation here today on authority of officials of the Portland club.

In the meanwhile the Beavers will be in charge of Franks Brazil, captain and third baseman.

GERMAN MUSICIANS FIND FOREIGN MARKETS CLOSED

BERLIN, July 30.—Composers of light opera complain that foreign markets are closing to their products.

A few months ago, they declare, and America and even France offered a good market for their products, and they even had to put in overtime to supply the needs.

More recently, a change became noticeable. However, the composers hoped that it would be one of the passing vicissitudes happening in all the markets. They know better now. They fully perceive that these countries have gone back to the good old "homemade goods" and don't show the least intention of buying German music.

German composers attribute this fact not so much to their own high prices but to the habit of converting Beethoven into jazz or Wagner's Walkyrie into a fox-trot which they claim, developed recently, especially in America.

RANCHER AT 84 LIKE YOUNG MAN

STRENGTH OF YOUNGER YEARS RESTORED BY KOREX COMPOUND.

"I felt myself growing old so fast," says J. L. Rowell, 84 year old rancher of Kaw City, Oklahoma, "that I had no appetite and hardly felt like living. After taking korex compound I am as young and vigorous as at 30 and feel better all the time. I can now walk with a firm, elastic step and can get out and do a man's work with any of them."

The effect of using korex compound is healthful, natural and lasting says many who have used it. Thousands have tested it the world over for premature old age, weakness after the flu, poor circulation, lack of appetite and aching limbs. Those feeling the need of such an invigorator will be interested in learning that the American distributors of korex compound have arranged for korex compound to be sold in Roseburg, Oregon at Lloyd Crocker's Pioneer Drug Store, 211 North Jackson street. Just ask for korex.

SALE OF THOUSANDS IN OIL QUESTIONED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LOS ANGELES, July 30.—The alleged sale of a $100,000 oil well in the Whittier field near here for $110 to satisfy the county's claim to $110 in personal taxes was being investigated by the district attorney's office today.

Mrs. M. E. Hamlin, owner of the well, reported to the sheriff that a deputy county assessor had appeared on the property and had accepted without delay the $110 bid of a purchaser whom he had brought along. The latter then mobilized a fleet of trucks to carry away about $20,000 in machinery, she said. Pending the result of the district attorney's investigation the supreme court has issued a restraining order preventing the purchaser from carrying off his bargain.
