SAY DAVIS ASKED SUPPORT GOMPERS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 ATLANTIC CITY, Aug. 7.—Members of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor predicted today a nationwide interest in the publication last night of correspondence which showed that John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, recently had sought a conference with Samuel Gompers and explaining why the counsel refused to defer endorsement of the La Follette-Wheeler candidacy until after Mr. Davis' acceptance address.

The correspondence passed between Mr. Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and William B. Wilson, former secretary of labor and of the United Mine Workers of America, and present member of the staff of the democratic national committee at Washington.

It consisted of a telegram directed by Mr. Wilson to Mr. Gompers, asking that he have the executive council defer endorsement of La Follette; of a letter from Mr. Wilson received after the endorsement was announced; and of a letter Mr. Gompers dispatched today in behalf of the executive council explaining to Mr. Wilson, why the endorsement was made when and as it was, and referring to the post-convention correspondence between Mr. Davis and Mr. Gompers.

The correspondence set forth that Mr. Davis had, last July 17, begun negotiation with Mr. Gompers for a conference, that conflicting engagements kept them apart until Mr. Davis suggested that Mr. Gompers give him "a statement of questions in which labor is chiefly interested."

It set forth that Mr. Gompers, professing a willingness to confer with Mr. Davis, declined this last request, saying "I cannot submit questions to you which would not be equally submitted to other candidates for the presidency."

The Luxury of Love
 by VIOLET DARE
 AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "Love or Fame?" ETC.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

MARY HAYWARD, a famous beauty, arrives at the country home of CAMILLA WAITE with two men, BRUCE GILLIAN and STEWART O'BRIEN. Camilla warns Mary that she is in love with Bruce and that there is to be no poaching on her matrimonial preserves. Camilla realizes that Bruce is much interested in Mary, and plots with O'Brien to prevent his proposing to her. Camilla keeps Bruce from Mary's side at the dance that evening, but late that night Mary goes into the garden for a breath of air, and unexpectedly meets him. He tells her he loves her, asks her to elope with him at once. But O'Brien intervenes.

VIII—DRIVEN OUT OF PARADISE

IN her own room again, Mary paced the floor restlessly. She dared not go downstairs to the drive to meet Bruce Gillian. O'Brien would be sure to there; although she had met him for the first time that day, she knew that he would not hesitate to make it impossible for her to elope with the other man if he possibly could.

On the other hand, she snatched up a purple wrap and hurried into the hall; she had reached the head of the stairs when she saw O'Brien below, glancing through one of the magazines that lay on a table. He was standing guard then, to be sure that she did not slip out.

"Oh, I'll go anyway; I don't care!" she cried bitterly. But she knew even as she spoke that she would not go. In those few golden moments with Gillian it had seemed as if she might be free of the moorings through which she had stumbled all this last year. Now it was sucking her down again.

"I'll explain to Bruce in the morning," she promised herself, trying to fight off the tears that threatened to be too much for her. "He'll understand surely. He may even see a way out. He must know that I love him."

Yet she could not reassure herself. And many of the girls who had envied beautiful Mary Hayward when they saw her photograph in the photographs sections of the newspapers, and read of the court that was being made her at Newport or Palm Beach or Southampton, would have pitied her instead, as she threw herself down on the bed and cried heartily.

She slept late in the morning; it was nearly eleven when she crossed the terrace where the others sat smoking and looking through the papers.

"Mary, Dee Lewis is marrying the little Welsh girl," announced Camilla with a laugh; then, to the two men, "Dee was a beau of Mary's all winter, but you know how it is—suddenly a man wants to get married, and then—"

"He's angry because I didn't come downstairs," Mary told herself wretchedly. "But when I tell him less the Germans once again employ that unlimited capacity they seem to have of committing blunders at critical moments."

WILSON CONFIDENT LOOKS FOR SUCCESS
 (Associated Press Leased Wire.)
 PARIS, Aug. 8.—Colonel E. M. House, confidant of the late Woodrow Wilson, is quoted by the Petit Parisien as saying: "I consider the London conference the most important since the peace conference, and I am convinced that it will result in success, not only because it must but because M. Herriot and Mr. MacDonald, (the French and British premiers) understand each other having the same ideas, and it is impossible that they shall not come to an agreement."

LOVE AFFAIRS OF ACTRESS BARED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—Alleged love affair of Ann Luther, actress, who is suing Jack White, wealthy mining man, for what she says was breach of an agreement to star her in motion pictures, were expected to undergo further dissection and analysis by defense counsel cross-examining the plaintiff today.

The names of numerous stage and screen actors, bankers, brokers and other business men were brought out in yesterday's testimony as counsel for White questioned Miss Luther intimately and persistently concerning her relations with various male acquaintances. Copies of telegrams purporting to have been sent to White by Miss Luther and containing terms of endorsement mingled with requests for money, were also introduced and read to the jury.
