SAFEGUARDING THE SCHOOL CHILD.

The opening of school brings with it the problem of protecting the school child from infections which take a jump when school reassembles, says a bulletin issued by State Board of Health. Education has been made compulsory and although the system is not perfect, it is a conceded fact that education is a necessity. By making education compulsory we have thereby assumed the responsibility of keeping the school as free from disease as possible. It is therefore of great importance that all children be given a careful examination to determine whether or not they are disease carriers. Successful control of contagious diseases in schools requires effective cooperation of parents, teachers and children. To do justice to one's own child and to be decently fair to the other parent's children, it is not enough that the child go to school properly and cleanly clad; the parents should make a definite and thorough examination before permitting him to leave the home. He should be kept at home at least for the day, when there is nausea, vomiting, chills, convulsion, dizziness, faintness, unusual pallor, rash of and kind, rise of temperature or suggestion of it through warmth of skin, a discharge from the nose, redness or secretion from the eyes, a sore or inflamed throat, swollen glands in the neck or elsewhere, a new cough, failure to eat breakfast, a seriously disturbed night's rest, or any unexplained or indefinite change from the usual appearance or conduct. If the disturbing sign does not promptly disappear, of course the family physician should be called and only on his assurance that no disease exists or is likely to occur in the very near future, may the child be permitted to go to school or come into contact with other children. Many parents are offended when children are sent home for failing to comply with these reasonable requirements. However, they are even more likely to find fault if their child is exposed to disease through the medium of the school. The protection of children in school can never be greater than the parents help to make it.

WOMEN'S POLITICAL DUTIES.

A thoughtful observer of political life claims that women will never perform their political duties as well as men. His idea is that they are not naturally interested in politics, hence will not, on an average, give the same attention to it that men do. He speaks of business men who come down to their offices on the day after an election and who gossip with their employes about the result of various contests. He claims while the average business man knows pretty well what the results of the various contests are, that he usually finds that his women help are very indifferent and scarcely know that an election has taken place. This gentleman states that he recently made a little inquiry among the business women of his acquaintance, to find why they voted as they did in a certain contest. He learned that many of them were influenced by the fact that one of the candidates had a large family and had started as a poor man, hence they argued that this candidate needed the salary more and should be given the job. They disregarded the fact, as he looked at it, that the other candidate was better fitted for the position, that he would have benefitted the whole community by administering the affairs of the office in a superior way. Believers in woman suffrage might well remark on the great numbers of men voters who used to be lined up in behalf of a certain type of candidate by marching them all up to the bar and providing a round of drinks for the crowd. Millions of men have voted for certain candidates just because they were good handshakers and back slappers. Stupidity is not limited to any one sex, and both women and men need to perform their political duties in the coming election much better than ever before.

WIFE OF DETECTIVE IS BEING SOUGHT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Postal inspectors today sought Mrs. William F. Fahy, who they say has disappeared since the arrest of her husband, known as an "ace" of inspectors here on charges of alleged complicity in the $2,000,000 Rondout, Ill., mail robbery. She is wanted for questioning in connection with the search being made for the loot, which they believe is secreted here.

A woman, thought to have been Mrs. Fahy visited their home yesterday and left with a bundle of papers in company with a man the inspectors say is a government employee.

Fahy in jail at Geneva, Ill., in default of $50,000 bail denies the charge and asserts he is the victim of a conspiracy.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Postmaster General New declared today that information in his possession forced him to the conclusion that post office Inspector William F. Fahy, now held for alleged complicity in the $2,000,000 mail robbery at Rondout, Illinois, last June, was guilty of wrong doing.

This is a Studebaker year.

VIOLENT STORM IS RAGING IN LABRADOR

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

U. S. S. RICHMOND, AT ICE TICKLE, Labrador, Aug. 28.—(By The A. P.)—A fringe of the violent storm which has been traveling northward over the Atlantic for several days, and warnings of which caused further postponement of the American aviator's flight here from Ivigtut, Greenland, struck the Labrador coast here yesterday.

There were heavy winds, accompanied by rain, throughout the afternoon and evening, but the local forecast prepared by an army meterologist indicates clearing weather later in the week, possibly in time to allow the aviators to carry out their desire of leaving Ivigtut tomorrow morning.

ON BOARD U. S. S. RICHMOND, AT ICE TICKLE LABRADOR, Aug. 28.—Postponement of the flight of the American world fliers from Ivigtut, Greenland, to Indian Harbor, Labrador, until Saturday, was definitely decided today because of the continuing stormy weather.

INTERESTING STORY OF RIDDLE FOLKS

Fred Lockley, writing in his "Impressions and Observations" column in the Portland Journal yesterday gives an interesting story concerning several residents of Riddle, Oregon. The story by Mr. Lockley follows:

Mrs. Mary F. Riddle was the first white child born in Cow Creek valley. Recently I spent several hours at her home in Riddle.

"My maiden name was Mary Frances Catching," said Mrs. Riddle. I was born April 5, 1852, at the mouth of Catching creek, where it flows into Cow creek, about four miles from Riddle. My father, John Catching, was a Tennessean, while my mother, Margaret Wilson, was born in Missouri.

"Shortly after my parents settled in Cow Creek valley, by father's brother, James Catching, and my mother's brother, W. L. Wilson took up claims not far from our place. T. B. Nichols had gone to California in 1848 and for the next year or so packed supplies from the Willamette valley to the California mines. In the spring of 1851 he lost his pack mules and a lot of supplies. They were stolen by the Rogue River Indians. I. B. Nichols married Isabel Riddle in the summer of 1852 and they took up a place here. Of the 10 children in our family, six of us are still living—my sister and myself and four brothers.

"My father crossed the plains to Oregon in 1845. He went to the gold mines in California in 1849. In coming back to the Willamette valley he decided to take up a place in Southern Oregon, so he came here in the fall of 1851, just three days after my husband and his father, William H. Riddle, got here.

"W. H. Riddle's son, George W. Riddle now lives at Roseburg. He was superintendent of the Soldier's Home at Roseburg until a few weeks ago. Judge George W. Riddle was born in 1839. You should see him, for he is an authority on the early history of Southern Oregon. My mother's father, Mr. Wilson, as well as my father's father, Mr. Catching died while crossing the plains in 1845. My mother's mother married again after she got to Salem.

° ° °

My father and mother were married at Forest Grove. I never had much schooling, a three months' term each winter was the extent of it. I was married when I was 15 years old. That was in 1867. Rev. Yates, a Baptist preacher, performed the marriage ceremony. The winter before I was married I carded wool, spun it into yarn and knitted 50 pairs of heavy wool socks. I got six bits a pair for them. I did it to earn the money to buy my wedding outfit. Lots of girls today don't even darn their husband's socks, let alone card and spin the wool and knit the socks. I have had seven children. I ran a boarding house here when Riddle was the terminus of the railroad. As the railroad worked south, we went along with it, running a hotel for the railroad men. Siskiyou was as far south as we went. We came back from there to Medford. We ran the first hotel operated in Medford. It is now known as the Nash hotel. In 1887 we quit the hotel business in Medford and built a hotel here at Riddle. I still own it, though it is rented now. We have run it steadily since 1888.

Mrs. B. F. Nichols is a pioneer resident of Riddle. When I visited her recently she said:

"My husband's name is Benjamin Franklin Nichols. My maiden name was Ellen Yarbrough. I am a daughter of George Yarbrough. He came to Oregon in 1844 with his father, John Berry Yarbrough. My father was born in Missouri. My mother's maiden name was Phernia Emmaline Brown. She was born in 1847 on her father's donation land claim one mile west of Forest Grove. Her father, Orrus Brown, was a son of Tabitha Brown, who started Tualatin academy at Forest Grove. It is now known as Pacific university. If you want to know what real pioneering was and the hardships the pioneers suffered, just read about the trip of Tabitha Brown, her son Orrus, and the rest of the family in coming to Oregon.

° ° °

"When my father came here, in 1844, he settled in Linn county. He met mother in Salem and they were married there by a justice of the peace. They started at once for Kerbyville, which, by the modes of travel in vogue in the 60's, made a good long wedding tour. My mother, Phernia E. Brown, was the youngest of Orrus Brown's 12 children. She was married when quite young to Ames Akers and after his death she married my father. She died October 1, 1917, at the age of 70 years. My father died September 16, 1917, just two weeks before mother's death.

° ° °

I was born on a farm one mile from Kerbyville. In the old days Kerbyville was a lively mining camp. Today it is but a memory—one of the ghost cities of the west. When I was 11 years old we moved to Dillard. After 10 years at Dillard my folks moved to Myrtle Creek. I was married January 9, 1896, by Rev. Neal Wilson, the Episcopal rector at Roseburg. We left our farm three and a half years ago and moved to Riddle. If you will go and see Mrs. Jane Willis, she can tell you all about the early history of this part of the country."

MRS. JUDD AND TWO DAUGHTERS HOME

Mrs. J. M. Judd, and two daughters, Misses Eldress and Jessie, returned home last evening after an absence of three months visiting at the home of the former's mother at Stockholm, Wisconsin. They were accompanied on the trip by Victor Plann, brother of Mrs. Judd, and the trip was made by auto. The party also visited friends and relatives at Minneapolis, and during the entire trip of 8,000 miles they saw no country that appealed to them like the old Umpqua valley. On the way east they encountered snow in Yellowstone Park, and on the return trip the night they stopped in that national playground there was about three inches of snow. Sometime during the night a bear prowled around the car in which the ladies were sleeping, leaving his tracks in the fresh snow, and also the marks of his claws on the snow that covered the hood of the car, where he seemed to have investigated the radiator of the machine. They were met at Portland by Mr. Judd who returned here with the family last night.

FORTY KILLED WHEN EXPRESS WRECKED

ODESSA, Aug. 28.—Forty passengers were killed and a large number were injured when the express from Odessa to Moscow was left here last night was derailed 200 miles from here. The accident was caused by a break in the track which apparently had been turned from its bed by unidentified persons.

The train was going at high speed when the accident took place. The engine was hurled onto its side and its boiler exploded, causing a fire which spread rapidly to the coaches. Relief trains were dispatched from the nearest station and from Odessa where word is being awaited of the definite number of victims.

TODAY'S MARKETS

The Latest Summary of Domestic Market Conditions as Issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—The Oregon onion crop is now estimated at 186,000 bushels by R. L. Ringer, local representative of the bureau of agricultural economics. Last year the Oregon crop totalled 192,000 bushels and in 1922 reached 264,000 bushels.

A later canvass of the onion sections shows 620 acres in onions compared to 600 acres last year and 880 acres in 1922.

Growing conditions during the summer were hardly favorable but the crop survived the long dry spell in fairly good shape and the recent rains were highly beneficial.

The butter market is unsettled due to the butterfat war. One local buyer is out with a bid of 44c for fats delivered Portland. Other large houses bidding 39c shippers track. Print prices are unchanged but an advance may be forced.

Prime first cubes half cent lower at 37c. Other grades steady.

Eggs are steady and unchanged. Receipts are light.

Poultry receipts are liberal but supplies are moving out fairly well at current levels.

Country meats are barely steady. Only light receipts prevent a slump in prices. Choice light calves are down to 14 and 14½c; hogs 14½c.

The hay market is steady; prices are unchanged. There is little demand and very little coming in.

A car of pink Malaga grapes arrived in the local market and are being offered at $3 a lug; other grape prices are unchanged.

Demand remains only fair.

No improvement is shown in cantaloupe market and stocks are moving at buyers prices.

Peaches hold steady with Salways bringing $1.35 to $1.40 a box; other varieties $1.25 to $1.50.

Garlic is firm and higher with dealers getting 15 to 20c a pound depending on size of orders. Buyers are out with offers of 12½c a pound.

The potato market continues sluggish with plenty of Oregon stock available at $1.25; best Burbanks selling at $1.50 per hundred wholesale.

Onions are steady at $2.50 to 50. Few Oregons offered yet.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—Cattle about steady; receipts 522.

Hogs, receipts 616 (250 through); weak to 25c lower. Heavyweight (250 to 350 lbs.) medium, good and choice $8@9.75; medium weight (200 to 250 pounds) medium, good and choice $9.50@10.00; light weight (160 to 200 lbs.) common, medium, good and choice $10@10.25; light lights (130 to 160 lbs.) common, medium, good and choice $9.50@10.00; packing hogs, smooth $8@8.75; packing hogs, rough $7@8.00; slaughter pigs (130 lbs. down) medium, good and choice $9@9.50; feeder and stocker pigs (70 to 130 lbs.) common, medium, good and choice $7.50@[illegible]

(Soft or oily hogs and roasting pigs excluded in above quotations.)

Sheep steady; receipts 258.

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 28.—Eggs steady; current receipts 32; pullets 30½c; firsts 32½c; henneries 35@35½c delivered Portland.

Butter steady; extra cubes, city 39c; standards 38½c.
