ROSEBURG, OREGON, SATURDAY, AUGUST 30, 1924.

LABOR DAY.

The first Labor Day observance occurred in the state of New York in 1882. The day was made a national holiday in 1894. The labor movement has made great progress since that time.

With two holidays coming simultaneously, Sunday and Monday, will give two days of rest to many people who are quite unable to take any vacation at all this year.

Monday is "Labor Day." It is a good day to take an inventory of yourself and determine whether you are giving a real service for the remuneration you receive.

PRUNE PICKIN'S

BY BERT & BATES

GOOD EVENING FOLKS—Ye ed, read the other day Where the scientists Hope to make it possible For us to converse With animals And you know That'll be a wonderful Achievement For when it comes to pass That we can carry on A conversation With the four-legged Beasts we can Take a skunk to One side and whisper: "SAY WOTINELL'S THE BIG IDEE!"

DUMBELL DORA THINKS Labrador is a new kind of a door.

These chilly mornin's make a feller get to work on time.

While out ridin' along the high-way yestiddy eve we saw some tourists parked alongside a prune orchard and they were fillin' up gallon pails of the purple fruit and we wonder what these same folks would think if we had stopped and taken their spare tire and a few spotlights?

They're openin' up a model home over in Laurelwood. Our idea of a model home would be one without mortgages and no water or light meter.

The fliers were due to hop for continental America today and we'll bet the boys are anxious to get back where they can talk to folks without makin' signs.

Now and then ye ed, runs up agin some hard questions. Today a feller asked us how in heck they put the cats out in Venice.

Speakin' of the Rocky mountains, have any of you folks ridden up Douglas street lately?

The home products show oughter be a humdinger if all the backyard gardeners bring in their squashes.

The supply of carrots will always exceed the demand.

You'd better heat the water before takin' the reglar bath to-night.

The watermelon thieves won't strangle on seeds if Justice Jones gets a whack at 'em.

Ho hum! We hate to work. It makes us get dinged tired—We rather loaf and hit the shade And by the boss be fired.

MOTHER TAKES TO SLANG New Mother's talking slang because Throughout the livelong day, She says she hears so much she can't Talk any other way. She said to Dad at dinner time, "Fie off of you for life Because you always gum the works By eating with your knife!"

The preacher called at four o'clock And Mother started in. By being very proper, but Ere long she saw him grin And was it any wonder when She said, "What gets my goat Is having all the hens remark, "That is her last year's coat."

But most of all when sister's beau Called on her after tea, And I thought I would stick around My mother said to me: "My son, I want to put you wise. Your sister's in the mood To hand you one unless you beat it while the beating's good!"

STILL GETTING RESULTS "You used to trade horses." "I'm tradin' flivvers now," said the rural wizard. "Do you get the same excitement out of it?"

"Sure, I swapped flivvers with a feller only yesterday. When he tried to run the car I traded him for a feller only yesterday. When he tried to run the car I traded him for a feller only yesterday. When he tried to run the car I traded him for a feller only yesterday."

Gadge Smith and Earl Burch, a couple gasoline alley guys, were down in a local beanery yestiddy and became so infatuated with the scoundling that they tipped her heavily and when she had finally counted up the amount she had 80 cents, a few nuts, four or five valve caps, a busted headlight globe and other knickknacks too numerous to mention.

"The same feller who gets egg on his chin finds watermelon seeds in his ears."

PROH OFFICER STAGES BATTLE

Bootleggers Put Up Gun Fight When Officer Attempts Arrest.

FIGHT ON MOUNTAIN

Scene of True-to-Life Drama on Top of Siskiyou—Bullets Riddle Car.

MEDFORD, Ore., Aug. 29.—Sam B. Sandefer, county prohibition enforcement officer, gives the following account of the gun battle early Thursday morning on the summit of the Siskiyou mountains, in which members of his party narrowly escaped death from a hail of bullets, and his automobile was riddled.

According to the official one of the alleged bootleggers "got the drop" when he was in the act of putting the pair under arrest, emptied the moonshine, intended for delivery, and escaped in a fusillade of shots.

"I received a tip Wednesday," said Sandefer, "that there was to be a delivery of moonshine and with my daughter Francis, Clay Walker and another man, went to the Siskiyou, near what is known as the 'Dinty Moore' place, and waited. I stationed Clay down the road."

"At a little while a car appeared and stopped. I parked mine nose to nose with it. A conversation followed in which the following sentences were spoken:

"We're a little bit late," and "where is the kid?" I tried to get the two together, and seeing that they were too cute, I flashed my star and said:

"Boys I want your booze and you are under arrest."

"In the meantime, the youngest of the pair, came up behind, and putting a revolver to my head said 'You're not going to pull anything like that.'"

"I replied: 'I guess you are right brother.'"

"He then started to fumble with the two five-gallon kegs in the car and my daughter said: 'Papa they're emptying out the moonshine.' I knew it, I could hear it gurgle and hit the ground, but that did not interest me much. At this juncture the chap who had me covered, ran for his car and I took cover. They started their car and after a short detour through the brush, I reached mine and started to drive towards them.

"I had gone no distance to speak of, when a man bobbed up in front of the car and commanded: 'Halt!' Immediately he opened fire. When it began I shoved my daughter out of the car. One of the bullets passed through the seat and how I ever missed her I cannot understand. I ran to a gravel pit, and told her to stay there until I came for her. I could have opened fire on them from my cover, but I thought what is the use of killing anybody for a little moonshine. The pair then drove away and we hunted for them until 2:15."

Now is the time to repair your roofs. Four kinds of shingles at Page's, Phone 242.

TOURISTS TO BE ADMITTED FREE

The first constructive effort ever made to interest and show the tourists the resources of Southern Oregon and Northern California will be undertaken by the Jackson County Fair Association. They propose to admit free into the fair grounds every tourist passing this way on any one of the four fair days. It is estimated that no less than nine thousand tourists will take advantage of this courtesy, see the fair and go to their respective homes filled with praise of the wonderful products which they saw here, and this year in particular, with many parts of California and Oregon hit by drought, is a good year for them to see the products of the sections represented and to know how a total crop failure is unknown here.

It is proposed to station men at Grants Pass, Ashland and Medford beginning on September ninth the day before the opening of the fair, to stop and interview every tourist and extend to them the courtesy of a free admission ticket to the fair. In the evenings, hotels and camp grounds are to be canvassed for a similar purpose.

The actual count, authorized by the state highway commission, a week ago, showed twenty six hundred cars passed along the Pacific highway in front of the fair grounds entrance gate between the hours of six a. m. and six p. m. At least eight per cent of them were tourists so that the estimate of getting three thousand cars out of the six thousand that will pass, to stop and see the fair is conservative.

At an average of three people to the car some nine thousand tourists will enter the grounds this year and carry with them a vivid impression of a splendid, agricultural and horticultural exhibit and a cordial feeling of hospitality that was extended to them.

John Hampshire of Grants Pass had the low bid of $35,560 for construction of 1.2 miles of the north section of the Coos Bay-Roseburg highway near Myrtle Point, but the contract was held up until the commission hears whether the bonds with which the Coos county authorities expected to raise money for their share of the expense had been voted at an election this week.

WAR ON "DAUGHERTY GANG" IS RENEWED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.) CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—Senator Wheeler of Montana, prosecutor of the Daugherty committee and president today publicly renewed his war on "the Daugherty gang" in public office.

In a formal statement Mr. Wheeler dealt at length with an affidavit said to have been made in Atlanta penitentiary by George Remus, once the Ohio bootleg king, repudiating the sensational testimony he gave last spring before the Daugherty committee.

"Testimony before the investigation," the senator's statement continued, "disclosed that the present warden of Atlanta penitentiary is a close friend and a political associate of Harry M. Daugherty. The incident makes it clear that President Coolidge still has some house cleaning to do."
