ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1924.

THE SCHOOL PUPILS.

While the success of the public schools depends in large measure on efficiency and inspiration on the part of the teachers, and liberal support and encouragement from the parents, the biggest factor of all is the school pupils themselves. An ambitious young person will learn, even if the school building is antiquated, or the teacher is poorly prepared. We rely on our teachers to wake up dull pupils and inspire them with determination to learn. We must all cooperate to that end, and the entire influence of the community should be brought to bear on these young people, to induce them to make the best of the splendid opportunities that are offered them. Students who go through the schools in a half hearted way, repent bitterly afterward that they had not appreciated their chances. It is a source of lasting regret to them, and they realize a little later that opportunities misused in youth can never be enjoyed again. These young people ought to realize how much is being done for them. The taxes for schools are very heavy. In most places, more is spent for this purpose than for any other object for which taxes are raised. Parents deny themselves luxuries and comforts, so that they can give their children a better opportunity than they had. These days will quickly pass, and before they know it these students will be out in the world-struggling for self support. They will have little energy left for self improvement. The time to fit themselves for success is now. If these opportunities slip by, and they fail to make a favorable start, it will be extremely difficult for them to recover the lost ground. The best wishes of the News-Review go out to our school pupils, with the hope that they are going to throw themselves into their work with greater determination than ever before.

The followin' sign was plastered Folks! Mid pleasures and palaces though I may mend, I find the home merchant a much valued friend. The mail order catalogue wool me in vain, for to pay without seeing brings me a pain. The home merchant credits 'till pay day arrives, he knows all the whims of his friends and their wives. His overalls wear like the buckskin of old, his buttons ain't brass if he tells you they're gold.

Of every community he is a part, and even the kids know the pat-to his heart; he boosts for the chapel, the lodge and the school, community uplift is ever his rule.
And even the football and basketball team look kindly on him in their athletic dream. I'd rather have him at my elbow each day than to deal with some one far longer away. Let's make the thing mutual, and stand by our friends; there's no place like home for the money we spend!

STATE PRESS COMMENT

A Great Country

It is hard to realize what a great country America is. We not only export liberally but we import in great quantities. The American people want everything sold but enough people in America want them to enter them in the category of necessities.

Last year we imported 1,129-742,855 pounds of coffee valued at $207,948,491. In 1920 the entire amount of imports of every nature whatever was $282,168, 254. It will thus be seen that our coffee bill last year was about the size of all our imports for every year. Not only have we become wealthier, but we have contracted or developed appetite for all the delicacies that can be found anywhere. No man can produce anything in the world so rich in the way of food but what some Americans can afford to eat it.

It is mighty wholesome to remember this at a time when calumny charging politicians are trying their best to spread the concept of discontent. Some people are poor but not in the sense they were 44 years ago. The average run of American citizens is as well off now as the favored few were in 1880. The present-day government has only the faintest understanding of the changes that have come to the American people within the last 40 or 50 years.
Products of every foreign land beneath the sun are brought in ships to our shores and carried with swift dispatch to the interior. The consumption of luxur-
