CHAMP TEAM IS GIVEN WELCOME

throwing their whole being into it, raise it to the level of an art.

"The training," he continued, "the energy, the intelligence which these men lavish upon their profession ought to be an inspiration for a like effort in every walk of life. They are a great band, these armored knights of the bat and ball.

"They are held up to a high standard of honor on the field, which they have seldom betrayed while baseball remains our national game, our national tastes will be on a high level and our national ideals on a firm foundation.

"It may be that some time in the past a baseball pennant has gone to as widely popular a winner as your team is today. If so it was in some year when I was not watching a score by innings. Aside from two or three groups of earnest young men who were willing to accept the championship, the whole country seems agreed that precisely the right thing has happened. That is a real compliment to the fine spirit, the clean play, the good sportsmanship that brought your victory. These have always been characteristics of the work of the Washington team."

MINSTREL SHOW AT ANTLERS TONIGHT

Sam Griffin's All-Star, All White Minstrel company will make its initial appearance tonight at the Antlers theatre, and will uphold the high standard they have established by giving an excellent show. The comedians are funny, the singing pleasing, and in several cases artistic, the olio varied and entertaining, and the after piece a clever skit of the political situation.

The six endmen are a great bunch of funmakers. In Benway and Queen, Griffin has two great minstrel stars. Their work is easy and taking, their mirth contagious. The other endmen are equally good. The company has a wonderful basso in Harry Leahy. His singing of "The Billowy Sea" is a gem and equally delightful is Jack Baird's rendition of "Lonesome, That's All." Some splendid dancing will be given by Francis, Carney, and Reynolds. Tom Queen, formerly of Evans' "Honey Boy Minstrels" has charge of the dancing features of the show and the results show the direction of a master hand.

The performance starts at 8:15 sharp, and the doors are open at 7:30.

SISSON HAS FIRE

SISSON, Calif., Oct. 1.—The warehouse and other buildings of the Pioneer Box company, west of Sisson, burned Monday. The blaze which destroyed the buildings caught from a brush fire. Traffic on the Southern Pacific was tied up several hours by the fire.

SEATTLE, Oct. 1.—Five University of Washington football players were on the sick list and Coach Enoch Bagshaw declared that it was probable that they would not appear against Willamette University here Saturday.

Teereau, fullback, has not yet recovered from his tonsil operation. Guttormsen, speeder, Everett player and Kirk may command the purple and gold in the first northwest conference football conference. Lee Sherman's foot may force him from the field for the season. Dubois and Westrom, ends, have suffered slight injuries and are to be on the bench.

Injuries and reports of unexpected strength from Willamette forced cancellation of a scheduled second game Saturday, Darwin Meanest, graduate manager announced.

ALL ELKS NOTICE

Be on hand at Thursday night's lodge meeting. A live-ly time is in store. This is the opening of the winter's festivities and the Bills are assured of some real pep. INDIANS PLAN FRONTIER SHOW

Roseburg Offered Privilege of Underwriting "Indians' Last Stand."

COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Hundreds of Indians From All Parts of Northwest Will Participate in Event.

Some time ago it was understood that the Indians of the northwest would hold a monster meeting to discuss the matter of claims against the government for lands taken over, and committees from various tribes have been going over the details of this work. This meeting will be held next year, and the effort is now up to Roseburg to bring the assemblage to Douglas county. This meeting, which has come to be known as the "Indians' Last Stand," will be the biggest event of its kind ever held in the west. It means that Indians from eastern Oregon, eastern Washington, as well as from the west of the Cascades, and from northern California, will participate. These tribesmen from the Spokanes, the Colville Reservation, the Yakimas, the Umatillas, the Cayuse and Snakes, and the Klamaths, who formerly roamed unrestricted over that vast area extending from the British line to northern California and from the foot of the Rocky mountains to the Pacific, will meet in this conclave. These tribes, altogether the younger generation has been brought under the influences of the white man's civilization, still hold their traditions and glory in the former splendor of their ancestors. They are the remnant of a royal race of people who owned the country we now live in and boast about. They are able to put on the only real show of the early tribal days that will ever be seen in Oregon or else where. They have not forgotten their frenzied war whoops nor how to demonstrate scalping an enemy. They are fearless riders, and like a Kentuckian, love their horses and can show most people some thrills. They still own and are able to dress up in their war bonnets, and many of them can throw a tommyhawk with unerring accuracy. These glimpses of Indian life will be put into realities when these Indians meet next year to show how the country passed from their ancestors to the possession of the white man.

To get this show here, this most wonderful of all frontier exploits from the Indian side of the picture, it becomes necessary for action to be taken, and at the meeting of the board of directors of the Roseburg Chamber of Commerce last night, it was proposed to set in motion the machinery to accomplish the work. It was pointed out by speakers at the meeting that it is none too early to announce the event for next year, so President Sether, of the chamber was requested to appoint a committee to organize a corporation outside of the Chamber of Commerce, whose duty it will be to take action at once.

The committee named by Dr. Sether to look after the details of this Indian event and arrange with the Indians for the celebration, consists of O. C. Baker, chairman; A. T. Lawrence, J. E. McClintock, W. O. Clinger and Geo. H. Smith. These gentlemen will go ahead with the work and attend to underwriting the expenses of the affair.

These Indians will come here by hundreds, if Roseburg succeeds in securing the meeting. They will bring their strings of Indian ponies and race stock. They will set up their wigwams and enter into the old life of the Indians. They will put on horse races and war dances. They will show how primitive was the lives of their ancestors, they will dress in the manner of the Indian 50, 75 years ago, and their silhouettes at night will be a picture that many an artist has vainly endeavored to produce. Thousands of people will be attracted to Roseburg. These tourists from the Atlantic seaboard, the gulf states and the middle west will come prepared to stay the month that the Indians will probably be in camp, and it will be the one thing talked of among all who see the Indian once again in his primitive state. This meeting will put Roseburg on the map as no other event can possibly do, and will bring a vast amount of business to every concern in the valley.

This is not an exaggerated or fancy tale of something that may happen, but those acquainted with the Indian character, who know the possibilities wrapped up in this thing, want to impress it upon Roseburg and Douglas county that a frontier show of staggering proportions is going to be pulled off next year, and this city wants to get in on the ground floor—now.

POLITICAL CAMPAIGN WARMS UP AND MUD-SLINGING STARTS

ators long record of accomplishments in Wisconsin and that some of his early reforms were later incorporated into national platforms and subsequently became laws.

"Mr. La Follette is almost old fashioned in his worship of our institutions," she said. "Reverence for our institutions, faith in the fundamental principles of the declaration of independence and the constitution are a passion with him."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 1.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, Independent presidential candidate in a statement last night declared that "the refusal of the attorney general of Louisana to place the names of the La Follette-Wheeler electors on the ballot in that state, and the definite report that comes from Michigan that legal technicalities are to be used there by the two political machines to accomplish the same purpose, show how desperate the reactionaries in both of the old parties consider their cause."

"The legal arm of the government which would be the most potent factor in helping the people to express their will freely at the polls," continued the senators statement, "is instinctively being appealed to by the reactionary forces which dominate the two old parties to help defeat their free expression.

"But all of these efforts will eventually fail of their purpose. These attempts to deprive the people at the ballot box of the utmost freedom of choice as to who shall exercise their delegated authority will react most disastrously against those guilty of trying to prevent the fullest expression of the people's will."

In another statement issued by La Follette headquarters, Amos Pinchot, brother of the governor of Pennsylvania, assailed the followers of "Theodore Roosevelt who recently joined in voicing objection to use of the word "progressive" in connection with the La Follette move.

FREDERICK, Md., Oct. 1.—John W. Davis, in beginning his final drive for the presidency made a direct attack here today on Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury and his defense of the Aluminum Company of America.

Addressing a mass meeting of several thousand people from Frederick, and nearby cities, the democratic standard bearer said that to justify the unwarranted increase by his party friends and associates of tariff rates or aluminum and aluminum manufacturers, Mr. Mellon had quoted a letter from Bernard M. Baruch, commending the patriotic services of Mr. Mellon and his company during the war.

"I have not supposed," he said, "that patriotism during the war had any relation to personal favors when the war was closed. Indeed Mr. Mellon was foremost among those who denied that even military service gave veterans any claim to adjusted compensation."

Mr. Davis presented figures to bear out his contention that the Aluminum Company of America is supreme in its field, and it did not need the protection given under the Fordney-McCumber tariff act.

He added that "no explanation has ever been given, none can be given for the great increase in duties on aluminum and its products."

The democratic presidential nominee also attacked Mr. Mellon in connection with what he characterized "the wholly carrying" and "irreconcilable estimate" made by the treasury of probable surpluses and deficits at the time congress was considering the soldiers bonus and Mellon tax plan.

"No explanation of the conflict has yet appeared," he said.

"The result was a loss of public confidence in the information given. If Mr. Mellon wishes to regain the confidence of the people he should be more cautious in defending legislative favors enjoyed by his aluminum company. He should not claim that a company which enjoys an absolute monopoly of production in Canada and the United States and makes a profit of more than ten million dollars a year on an eighteen million dollar capital, stands in need of artificial aid."

When told that prohibition and states rights are the leading issues before the people of Maryland, asked whether he had any statement to make regarding them, Mr. Davis said:

"I don't think so. I have nothing to say on prohibition, I may touch on local self-government later, I don't know, I'll have to think it over."

The democratic nominee was then shown an open letter to him from the association against the prohibition amendment, printed in this mornings paper and calling upon him to say whether he is "wet or dry."

"I haven't read it yet," Mr. Davis said. "I'll read it and then decide whether I'll answer."

CRONKHITE CASE STARTED TODAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

TACOMA, Oct. 1.—The federal government today through James W. Osborn, special prosecutor stated the case it expects to prove against Roland Pothier on trial in federal district court here for the murder of Major Alexander Cronkhite.

"Major Cronkhite died from a bullet wound," Mr. Osborne declared in his opening statement. "We will show that it would have been physically impossible for this wound to have been self-inflicted, either by accident or design. There were only two men present at the time, Pothier and Robert Rosenbluth. One of the two, Pothier has since yesterday confessed that he did the fatal shot at the instigation of the other.

"On these grounds we will ask the jury to convict the defendant, Pothier, of murder in the first degree."

After Mr. Osborne had concluded his opening statement two witnesses were put on the stand to identify the spot at Camp Lewis where Major Cronkhite met his death on October 25, 1918. This testimony was taken in preparation for a visit of the jury to the spot.

The court was recessed at 11:30 and Judge E. E. Cushman announced that the jury would be taken to Camp Lewis at 12:30 to go over the ground of the alleged crime.

Most of the afternoon will be spent at Camp Lewis, affording the jurors an opportunity to get the lay of the ground at the scene of Major Cronkhites death.

A monument marks the spot where he expired almost immediately after receiving his fatal wound.
