"THE EMPTY CRADLE"
TO BE SHOWN HERE
Burton King's famous photoplay, "The Empty Cradle," or "Cheating Wives," has been especially secured by the Liberty theatre, beginning tomorrow. This picture has as its stellar players the distinguished emotional artist, Mary Alden, and Harry T. Morey, one of the most successful male stars on the screen.

The story of "The Empty Cradle," which is a brilliant screen adaptation of Leota Morgan's novel, "Cheating Wives," is a highly dramatic study of present day social and domestic conditions. Director Burton King, according to the critics, developed his story by masterfully contrasting the domestic problems of two families—the family that lived on the top of the hill, and the family which lived in its shadow. In this picture the subject matter is handled in an effective and telling way. Director King has not forgotten to intersperse in his dramatic action many incidents which are delightfully humorous, and no matter how tense and serious the story may become, we know that within a few flickers of film we will all be lively again.

Bert Wheeler, the well known vaudeville comedian, on the Keith circuit, is responsible for much of the wholesome comedy.

ADE KEEPS WIRES BUSY
More than 500 telegrams were received and dispatched in connection with Thomas Melghan's new Paramount car vehicle, "Woman-Proof," which comes to the Antlers theatre next Sunday and Monday. While George Ade, author was writing the story at his home in Brook, Indiana, he frequently consulted Alfred E. Green, the director, and Mr. Melghan by telegram. Five wires were sent in one day when an intricate point in the plot was being settled. Mr. Ade also called Mr. Green in New York by long-distance telephone to consult him about technical details of the photodrama.

The original name of this Paramount picture was "All Must Marry," but the title was changed to "Woman-Proof." The picture is a comedy-drama of American life. Lila Lee is leading woman and heads a strong supporting cast.

WILSON'S BODY TO BE PLACED IN SARCOPHAGUS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The body of former President Wilson is soon to be removed from the crypt in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral and placed in a marble sarcophagus where it will remain in the chapel, temporarily at least.

The sarcophagus, which was designed by the Cathedral architects at the order of Mrs. Wilson and probably will be completed within a month, was said to be of simple design, with the only ornamentation a crusader's sword carved in relief on the marble slab covering. There will also be a brief inscription on it.

It is understood the body of the former president which now lies in a crypt, under the chapel floor, will be removed in the sarcophagus to repose permanently in the cathedral proper when the edifice has been completed.

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "The Luxury of Love" etc.

WHOS WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

PATRICIA CLEVE is the young wife of ANDREW CLEVE, a rising young lawyer who makes the entertainment of his clients so important a part of his wife's life that she has no time for anything else. She rebels when GREGORY HEWITT, an important financier, and his wife spend the night at the Cleves', and Mrs. Hewitt, misunderstanding Patricia's courtesy to Gregory, accuses her of flirting, and insists on leaving the house. Andrew is furious, and Patricia, telling him that he has made her nothing but a tamer of other women's husbands for his benefit, decides to leave him for a time, going to visit her sister, and hoping that he will come to his senses and allow her to have a home and children, instead of being nothing but an official hostess.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT

XIII—LINDA'S EXPERT ADVICE

PATRICIA crossed the living room and threw herself into a chair, as the sound of Andrew's footsteps died away in the corridor. She kept telling herself that she must get up and pack, but could not force herself to do it. She had not been away from Andrew since their marriage; how could she go now, with the cloud of this misunderstanding hanging over them?

Perhaps if she didn't go— She was still sitting there when Linda Boyce was announced. Linda came in slowly, looking unusually grave, even for her in a new coat and little hat whose deep coloring set off her beauty perfectly. Her keen eyes surveyed Patricia expertly.

"What have you been crying about?" she demanded. "Oh, don't deny it, Pat. I know the signs; they're on my own face, if anyone cared to look closely enough."

"I've been crying because I'm going to visit my sister," Patricia answered, reluctantly. "Oh, don't laugh! I do want to see her, and I'm glad I'm going, in a way. But I hate to leave Andrew."

"Well, I think it's a good idea, myself. All married people should separate once in awhile. Perhaps if Dick and I had done it—oh, sometimes even now, after being married five years, I swear that I'll walk straight out of the hotel and never come back. I'm so sick of my life!"

"You!" Patricia's eyes opened wide. She had known of Linda's discontent, but had not been prepared for such vehemence as this.

"Yes, me. Now, don't say, 'Why do you have everything?' I know you and you know it. I'm like the rest of the husband tamers. When Dick and I were married, I thought it was simply wonderful that he was so ambitious, so eager to make loads of money and give me everything I wanted. I was pleased to have him proud of me; we didn't have much, and I used to hunt around in those funny little shops on Sixth Avenue, and buy dresses that were cheap, and then remodel them so that they were awfully smart. I made my own hats, and when Dick took me out to help entertain his business friends, I was perfectly happy."

"But after awhile I got awfully tired of it. And about a year ago I realized that a wife can't be a man's partner as I've been Dick's. I'm not just a super-typographer. I'm part of Dick's business, not part of his home. And I'm absolutely wretched. But it's too late to

BAFFLING MURDER CASE CLEARED UP

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 10.—An alleged confession by Mrs. Winona Green, 23, given last night after more than 20 hours grilling by Major James A. Pitcock, chief of the detective department, in which she admitted killing J. R. "Bob" Green and his wife, Mrs. Lena S. Green, the parents of her husband, LeRoy R. Green, according to police, clears up a most baffling murder case.

In her alleged statement to Major Pitcock, Mrs. Winona Green, who is from Pueblo, Colo., exonerated her husband, LeRoy Green of all blame, saying he was without guilty knowledge of the fate of his parents. Green is expected to be released soon from jail here, where he is held on a technical charge.

She is said to have admitted killing her father in law here on August 15 and to have shot her mother-in-law to death near Red Fork, Okla., on September 25. Recovery of $4,000 borrowed from her by her mother-in-law without the knowledge of her husband, J. R. Green, was the reason given the police for the killing.

She is said to have admitted killing her father in law here on August 15 and to have shot her mother-in-law to death near Red Fork, Okla., on September 25. Recovery of $4,000 borrowed from her by her mother-in-law without the knowledge of her husband, J. R. Green, was the reason given the police for the killing.

Patricia threw herself into a chair. "I'm not going to!" exclaimed Patricia, suddenly moved to confidence in her. "My going to visit my sister is just a pretext, really. Andrew and I have had things out, and I've told him that I'm going away to think this over—"

She paused as the maid entered with a tray on which were a note and a jeweler's box. Patricia took them and dismissed her; probably Andy was making a peace offering, she told herself, as she opened the box.

Within was a wrist watch, an exquisite thing of platinum and diamonds, far lovelier than the one she had lost the day before. She gasped as she looked at it; Linda Boyce exclaimed over it enthusiastically.

The note was in writing strange to her; she read it at a glance, then went back over it slowly.

"Please accept this in place of the one that meant so little to you, and let it mark on some future day at least a few hours that you and I may share, as we shared yesterday morning," it read. The signature scratched beneath was Gregory Hewitt's.

"Patricia flushed. 'It's from Mr. Hewitt,' she said, slowly.

Linda Boyce gave a low whistle. "Not that I know who he is," she commented, "but from the way you blush, I should think Andrew might better pay a little more attention to his wife."

"Oh, Linda! I helped Andrew to entertain Mr. Hewitt—"

"So that was the way of it. Just a little token of appreciation; flowers and books are what I usually draw! Seems to me he must be especially grateful, to say it with diamonds!"

"I shall send it straight back to him!" Patricia declared, before she remembered that she did not know Hewitt's address. Well, she'd ask Andrew what to do about it, when she saw him that afternoon.

"Take the goods the gods provide, my dear, and ask no questions," urged Linda. "Can I help you with your packing?"

LATONIA RACES ARE ON TOMORROW

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LATONIA, Ky., Oct. 10.—Candidates for the third international special, having been given their final workouts and pronounced fit by their trainers, horsemen and racing fans today marked time, awaiting the call to the barrier tomorrow of what was freely termed the best field of thoroughbreds that has clashed in a race in many years.

Pierre Wertheimer, owner of the French champion, Epinard, will arrive today. He is more enthusiastic over the Latonia race than any in which his colt has participated in this country, according to New Yorkers who have talked with him. M. Wertheimer has planned to show his friends in France just how Epinard performed, by means of motion pictures, and with this in view, he has engaged a film camera to begin pictures of the race from beginning to end.

Louis Feustel, trainer of Ladkin, which pulled up lame after a gallop, announced that the Belmont winner of the second international had responded to treatment and might be a starter in the final of the event. The last of the international candidate to arrive on the scene were Zev and May Play, the rancous pair. Elaborate preparation is being made by the Kentucky Jockey Club of this city to provide accommodations for the largest assemblage of racing fans ever gathered at the historic Milldale course.

Cincinnati hotels today were jammed and late arrivals who had overlooked the matter of making reservations in advance were being turned away.

Have Elton Packard truck, will do all kinds of hauling, long trips a specialty. Also have old growth fir and split body oak. Phone 251-L. A. L. Hash.
