The Husband Tamer
by VIOLET DARE
AUTHOR OF "The Half-Timer Wife," "The Luxury of Love" etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

PATRICIA CLEVE is the young wife of ANDREW CLEVE, a rising young lawyer who makes the entertainment of his clients an important part of his wife's life that she has no time for anything else. She rebels when GREGORY HEWITT, an important financier, and his wife spend the night at the Cleves', and Mrs. Hewitt, misunderstanding Patricia's courtesy to Gregory, accuses her of flirting, and insists on leaving the house. Andrew is furious, and Patricia, telling him that she has made her husband's life a tamer of other women's husbands for his benefit, decides to leave him for a time, going to visit her sister, and hoping that he will come to his senses and allow her to have a home and children instead of being nothing but an official hostess. She takes the Twentieth Century for Chicago, and on the train encounters Hewitt.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XV—DEEPER AND DEEPER

"MRS. HEWITT!" Patricia exclaimed, amazed.

"Mrs. Cleve?" Hewitt was as much surprised as she was. "The gods are kind! But isn't this trip rather unexpected?"

"As unexpected as the watch that came to me from you this morning," she answered. "It's the prettiest one I ever saw, but—"

He held up a warning hand. "No 'buts' about it," he told her. "I gave me real pleasure to send you that; I had seen yours on the path a moment before, absolutely shattered to bits—I'd clumsily put my foot on it, you see. Surely you aren't going to refuse to let me replace it, when all my awkwardness is to blame for its being broken."

Patricia glanced away, her mind busy with that new problem.

"You'll make a mountain of a molehill if you insist on giving the watch back to me," he went on. "After all, it's such a very little thing, isn't it?"

She wanted to retort that platinum and diamond watches loom rather large in the average life, but said nothing; that the cost of that watch would be nothing to him. And by persisting in returning it she was giving it false significance, since he thought so little of it. Then, too, he had been responsible for the loss of her own watch.

"It's a great relief to find you on this train," he remarked, dismissing the notion of the watch as if it were a fly settled on the point of wanting to bite you to the point of wanting to murder me—I mean you!"

"Oh, but I'm so glad to see you," she told him honestly. "The trip would have been deadly if I'd taken it alone."

She dined with him that evening, and he settled beside her in her section afterward for a chat, which was rudely interrupted a few moments later by the two men across the aisle, who began a discussion of their respective golf games. The discussion became an argument, loud and distinct enough to call forth exasperated glances from everyone else in the car. A lady began to cry fretfully. The baby's older brother wandered down the aisle, shouting at the passengers, and was restrained with difficulty by his frantic nurse. Hewitt, who was his frantic nurse, a thrilling account giving Patricia a thrilling account of his experiences in the West Virginia coal mines, shrugged his shoulders helplessly.

Food for Scandal.

RICE CREEK SCHOOL NOTES

School opened in Rice Creek, September 15, 1924, under the supervision of Miss Katherine Jacoby. Fifteen pupils entered on that day and there are a total of 15 pupils in our school.

During the summer vacation the school house was repainted. A new window was also put in the building which is of great benefit and health to the pupils and teacher. With the new improvements was a fully constructed woodshed.

We have in our school a Health Inspector. Every two weeks a health inspection is chosen from our pupils. The first two weeks Eva Rice was chosen as health nurse, the second two weeks Francis Meredith was chosen. In the students meeting Friday afternoon Abner Smith was chosen for the next two weeks, as health doctor.

We were pleased and honored to have the following visitors with us this week: Mrs. W. E. Bradford on Wednesday, Mrs. J. J. Meredith, Mrs. J. O. Shoup and Miss Agnes Chester on Friday.

Examinations are over for two more weeks.

Mrs. Pearl Royer of Dillard has been visiting with her sister Mrs. E. L. Rice of Rice Creek.

Mr. William Adair and family of Roseburg, visited at the home of Earnest Bradford last Sunday.

Millard Meredith and family of Eugene, who have been visiting at the home of J. J. Meredith, left last Sunday for Medford where they expect to reside for some time.

COMMUNISTS HISS RIVAL CANDIDATES

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Republican, democratic and independent candidates for president were booed and hissed at a political rally here last night at which William Foster, communist candidate for president, and Ben Gitlow his running mate, were the principal speakers.

The independent party was roundly criticized by Mr. Foster, who said Senator La Follette, its standard bearer, was first nominated by the communist party, but was dropped only after he refused to have anything to do with it.

VIOLET DARE

Patricia glanced away, busy with a new problem.

She shook her head emphatically. "Indeed no! I have the entire section; I'll have the upper berth turned back, and be quite comfortable."

"But, please—probably the man across the aisle will snore, and that baby will cry—she's still at it! Now, be reasonable—I can sleep anywhere."

"So can I!" she insisted.

But when she returned to her section difficulties confronted her. Would she mind very much if the young mother and her baby took the upper berth? The little boy's nurse was ill—couldn't occupy the berth with him. If Patricia would be so kind?

"Yes, certainly," she murmured; "but you mustn't take the upper berth, with that baby; sleep in the lower."

"I'll sleep in the upper," contributed Hewitt, who had suddenly appeared on the scene, "and you'll take my apartment." And the porter was moving her bags before Patricia realized what was happening.

PRINCE OF WALES VISITS CHICAGO

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—The prince of Wales was greeted by a throng when he reached the environs of Chicago and descended from his train at Lake Forest to be the guest of Louis F. Swift at his Lake Forest estate. He arrived shortly after 8 a. m.

Many of the wealthy townspeople at Lake Forest hastened through their breakfasts and delayed departure for their offices in Chicago in order to obtain a glimpse of the royal heir as he arrived from Canada.

The prince will take luncheon at the University of Chicago to attend a luncheon arranged in his honor by President Ernst DeWitt Burton.

The luncheon over, the prince was to be taken about Chicago's park system, the trip ending with a visit to Field museum. The evening hours England's future king had reserved to himself, but society had planned to claim him again at dinner, at a hotel and later at a dance. Thirty minutes after midnight, his special train was scheduled to leave for Detroit.
