DAWES ON TRIP TO DAVIS' STATE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
DAWES SPECIAL, Enroute to Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 21.—Heading a general eastward movement of presidential and vice-presidential candidates, Charles G. Dawes, traveled today to Philadelphia, where tonight he will open his first and only speaking tour east of the Alleghenies.
The republican vice-presidential candidate will begin his seven-day speech making swing through the five eastern states of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey and New York with a discussion of the budget. He will speak on the basis of his experience as the first director of the federal budget bureau. The budget however, will not be his main theme for he will stress in the east as he has on his middle western campaign tours, the republican assault on the La Follette independent candidacy not only as having raised the dominant issue of the campaign in the agricultural middle west but also in the east and other sections of the country. Mr. Dawes' special train passed through Pittsburgh quietly early today, but he will return here tomorrow to speak at a noon meeting before invading West Virginia, the home state of John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee. He is to speak tomorrow night at Wheeling.

Mrs. Dawes is accompanying her husband on his eastern tour and Mrs. Melvin Eriksen, their daughter also is a member of the party.

LA FOLLETTE TO STUMP THE EAST

Demands Repeal of Transportation Act of 1920 for Lower Freight Rates.

HITS "SLUSH FUNDS"

Public Ownership of Railroads Also Favored by Candidate in Speeches In Nebraska.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LA FOLLETTE SPECIAL, Enroute to Rock Island, Ill., has Moines, Oct. 21.—As he turned eastward today with the intention of stumping the remainder of his campaign in the eastern states, Mr. La Follette declared in a statement that "all these western states have corrupt practice acts, and should it develop that this money is being used in unlawful amounts in those western states where corrupt practice acts exist, the rights of the senators and congressmen to their seats will be questioned in the next congress."
Declaring that letters already put into evidence before the senate investigating committee, "show that funds being raised in eastern states are to be used in doubtful western territory." Mr. La Follette declared in a statement that "all these western states have corrupt practice acts, and should it develop that this money is being used in unlawful amounts in those western states where corrupt practice acts exist, the rights of the senators and congressmen to their seats will be questioned in the next congress."

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 21.—Senator Robert M. La Follette, independent presidential candidate in an address here last night renewed his demand for repeal of the transportation act of 1920, declared there will be no reduced freight rates until this is done. And charged that the railroad interests are engaged actively "in a desperate effort" to defeat him and elect either Coolidge or Davis, and insisted that he did not propose, if elected, to undertake "any ill considered experiments in public ownership of railroads or along any other line."
Declaring that countless laws have been passed to deal with the proven and admitted evils of transportation system but even the best of them have not gotten to the root of the trouble. Mr. La Follette contended that the only way to take the railroad question out of politics is to settle it right.
"Every half way measure that does not establish a principle, every futile compromise merely aggravates the situation," he continued. "The progressives propose to go to the very heart of the problem and to deal with it on a scientific and constructive basis. They are not interested in patching up bad laws or in enacting new measures designed only to fool the people."
"Before the progressives can proceed with their constructive program, however, it is necessary to wipe out the statute books a law that is destructive to both business and agriculture, unjust to railroad employees, and unbearably burdensome to the entire consuming population."
"The Esch-Cummins railroad law must be repealed. This post-war charter of special privileges must be revoked. Upon this immediate issue there is a complete divergence between the progressive candidates and their opponents in the republican and democratic parties. Mr. Davis stands for the retention of this law and President Coolidge, in his first message to congress, threatened to veto any amendment of its principal provisions. He is today contending against the repeal or modification of this law, universally condemned by the American public as a law whose only friends are the railroad owners and those who serve them. He has also given his sanction to the most extravagant claims of the railroads."
Senator La Follette told his audience "that the railroads through their propaganda are spreading the statement that the election of the progressives will destroy the railroads and injure business."
"That statement is utterly false," he declared. "The progressive are not going to injure the properties of the railroads. They never have. You can go up to Wisconsin and find out how the railroads have fared under progressive control in all the years that the railroads have been regulated in Wisconsin, and they have been regulated more fairly and upon a more scientific basis than in any state in the union.

"The progressives do not believe that the government should confiscate a single dollar of the property of the railroads, but they are determined that the railroads shall no longer be permitted to confiscate the property of the people."
"If continued mismanagement and excessive costs make it necessary for the government to take over the roads and provide for their operation, it will be done under conditions that will protect every dollar honestly invested in railroad property."
"I do not believe that the people will be frightened by the babble of public ownership that has been raised by our reactionary opponents in an effort to distract from the immediate issues."
"The progressives don't propose in their platform, nor do they intend to undertake any ill-considered experiments in public ownership of railroads or along any other line. When we are ready to move forward in this direction, we shall obtain the services of the best legal and financial counsel available. Every detail of the plans will be worked out by practical men, and the matter will be laid before the country in the form of reports, so that any deficits may be exposed."
"The greatest care will be exercised to insure freedom from the evils of bureaucratic control. The progressives are the keenest critics and most outspoken opponents of bureaucracy. They have seen its evils and are determined to eliminate them from every undertaking under which they embark."

LOCAL HUNTERS STILL MISSING

No Trace of Men Lost While Hunting in the Vicinity of Cleveland.

SUPPLIES UNTOUCHED

Missing Men From This City, C. W. Stevens Being Owner of Auto Camp Restaurant.

Up to the hour of going to press this afternoon, no word had been received of C. W. Stevens and Richard Palmer, the two hunters reported missing since last Friday—at least—in the region of the old "Saliban" trail, leading to the coast range beyond Cleveland. The original belief that the men are lost was strengthened by failure to learn anything further concerning them, and it is probable that efforts to find them will be redoubled.
The missing men, it develops upon inquiry, are residents of Roseburg. Stevens is the owner of the auto camp ground restaurant, in the basement of Wetherell & Maddox's grocery, north side. Palmer has been in Stevens' employ at the restaurant for a month past. Previously he had been employed at odd work in and around Roseburg since early last summer, coming here from Long Beach, Calif.
Stevens is a member of the Odd Fellows lodge at Salt Lake, Utah, and his wife is now visiting in that city. He is also a member of the Rebekah lodge, somewhere in the state of Washington, according to Mr. Wetherell, who was able to provide what information has been obtained concerning the lost hunters. It is quite probable that the local lodge of Odd Fellows will enlist its aid in the search for the missing men if they are not located by tonight by the volunteer crew already looking for them.
The country in which the men are lost lies about four or five miles beyond the summit of Rock ridge, and is a rough, wild country where it is easy to become lost and difficult to find one's way. The packs which the men carried in with them, and the supplies packed in to them by Mr. Dixon of Elgarose, have not been touched since the men went in Friday, and it is evident that the men are either lost or have met with an accident.

ness was stagnant and in a precarious way. It was decided that the budget system was the only salvation. The amount to be raised by the tariff and the sale raised by the income taxes was limited and the remainder necessary was to be raised by the tariff and the sale of surplus war materials. We reduced the surtaxes and in the three years following, starting in 1921, the amount taken in taxes was four and one-half billions less.
"The only way to reduce taxation is to take less from the people. We did not increase the public debt. The appropriations committee, the largest of all the committees, which is composed of 35 members, told us that taxes could not be reduced, in spite of this, taxes were reduced one billion and one-half billion of the bonded indebtedness of three and one-half billion of the bonded indebtedness. At present we have no floating indebtedness, except the certificates of the treasury. There is only twenty and one-half billion of the bonded indebtedness left, which is gradually being paid off. The interest on this is nine million dollars annually. Under the budget system, the president is made responsible for every item of expense. It is the plan of the system to hammer down the amount desired by the expending departments. The budget officers reduced the amounts asked one billion dollars. Every appropriation asked must go through the budget officers and an actual accounting made of where it is to be expended and what will be the good derived from such an expense. Of course, we are bound to have disputes, but the spending officers have voluntarily reduced the amounts heretofore asked because of the action of the budget committee in the three years we have had the system. Congress has also passed bills reducing the amount six hundred millions less than the same asked for by the budget. In the three years of the budget operations, congress has appropriated one hundred and eighty millions less than the budget officers have asked for. We are the only country that uses paper money. The United States government started out on the sensible plan of letting the people do business, six billion dollars were left in the hands of the people for the reconstruction of business. As a result the business revival has been excellent. Since a new president, the government has paid back two hundred and thirty millions to the taxpayers. The theory of congress is that the money not needed for the actual expenses belongs to the people who paid it. The means and excess taxes were reduced three hundred and sixty million dollars. The government is now on a sound basis, thanks to this system of operations."

AUDIENCE CHEERS GERMAN OFFICER

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—An audience of six thousand persons cheered the playing of "Deutschland Uber Alles" last night at a local theatre where the officers and crew of the ZR-3 were guests. There was no trace of unkindliness when Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the giant dirigible on her trans-Atlantic flight, made a speech in German.
When the spotlight was turned on the box where Dr. Eckener and his staff of officers were seated, he rose and asked permission to speak in German. There was no protest. He told the huge crowd that all misunderstanding between Germany and America was a thing of the past.
W. G. Fortmann, of Portland, special adjuster for the New Zealand Insurance company, was in town today, having come down to settle up for loss sustained by Paris Friend when their farm building was burned. The loss was paid through the G. W. Young & Son.
