SMUGGLE CHINESE

ON BOARD U. S. COAST GUARD CUTTER ARCATA, Jean De Luca Strait, Oct. 22.—The coast guard cutter No. 2225 late last night captured speedboat 148-M near Port Townsend with six contraband Chinese.

More important than education or recreation is the condition of the young one's teeth. The delightful fragrance of a good tooth paste invites the vigorous use of a good brush. We supply both. Lloyd Crocker.

GIRL USED AS "LURE"

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Helen Pelrose, 24, who was arrested in the Jersey City, N. J., laundry where she was employed, has confessed that she was the lure by which a Boston blackmailer lured a young man to his home. The blackmailer, according to the police, had been lured to his home by the girl, who was the daughter of a wealthy family.

NOTICE TO PRUNE GROWERS

Order of the board of directors of the South Douglas Cooperative Prune Growers Pool. The present prune pool will be closed on October 23rd at 5 p. m. on the following sizes, 80's, 90's and 100's and over.

GOING TO CONVENTION

A number of Roseburg delegates left for Corvallis yesterday to attend the state Parent-Teacher Association convention. Among those making the trip were Mrs. Warren Burt, Mrs. J. K. Fisher, Mrs. Louis Kohlhauser, Mrs. S. L. Kidder, Mrs. Christiana, Mrs. Minter, Mrs. Grove, Mrs. Hagar, Mrs. Will Brown, Mrs. F. H. Churchill, Mrs. Carl B. Neal, Mrs. C. B. Trubrod, Mrs. Hembree and several of the local teachers.

DANCE AT ARMORY TONIGHT.

The local national guard company is sponsoring a dance at the armory tonight and it is hoped that a large crowd will be in attendance. The Blue Devils orchestra from the Rainbow Gardens will provide the music for the occasion and their feature number this evening will be the "Hip Saw Blues," a novelty fox trot. Admission to the dance tonight will be one dollar and ladies will be admitted free.

FORMER POLICEMAN
INSTANTLY KILLED

CLATSkanie, Ore., Oct. 22.—Ole Nelson, former policeman in Portland, who recently won a suit from the city for which he received back pay to the extent of $6,000, was killed instantly in an automobile accident today, about six miles south of Clatskanie.

Miss Ethel Nelson, Portland, a niece, riding with Nelson, was thrown clear of the wrecked car but was seriously injured. The injured woman was brought to Clatskanie by Sheridan Miles, of St. Helens.

The body of Nelson was brought here by A. C. Henderson, coroner of Columbia, who decided that no inquest was necessary.

Nelson had received a check Monday of $6,000 as settlement of his suit with the city of Portland, in which he was ordered reinstated. He was placed on the pension list last Thursday and with his niece left Portland today for Astoria to visit his sister, Mrs. A. Danielson, and other relatives.

After having passed a Pacific Fruit and Produce truck driven by Lee C. Steiner, a front wheel of Nelson's car went over the edge of the pavement on a curve near Heaver Falls.

The machine lurched across the pavement and into a ditch on the opposite side, overturning and pinning Nelson beneath after he had been dragged about 25 feet. His body was considerably mangled. No sign was attached to the driver of the passing truck.

Miss Nelson sustained a fractured collar bone and was otherwise seriously bruised.

AIRPLANE AND PILOT
TUMBLE INTO DITCH

EUGENE, Ore., Oct. 22.—An airplane, piloted by Charles Wright, an Oregon Agricultural College freshman, tumbled out of the sky into a ditch near Goshen Saturday, according to word of the accident here today. The plane was smashed, but the youth escaped with only a few scratches and minor bruises.

Wright had received word that his father was critically ill in Fresno, California, and started to fly to his home. He had flown as far as Creswell when the airplane began giving trouble. He was returning to the Municipal Aviation Field here when the engine stopped above Canas Swale, and he was forced to nose the plane into the ditch.

The youth, only 19 years of age, had come to Oregon to earn his way through college by giving lessons in air piloting.

WHY SUFFER SO?

Get Back Your Health as Other Roseburg Folks Have Done.

Too many people suffer lame, aching backs, distressing kidney disorders and rheumatic aches and pains. Often this is due to faulty kidney action and the danger of hidden arteries, dropsy, gravel or bright's disease. Don't let weak kidneys wear you out. Use Doan's Pills before it is too late! Doan's are a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They should help you. Here is one of many Roseburg cases:

A. J. Carman, R. R. conductor, 445 S. Pine St., says: "Continual riding on the train affected my kidneys and caused dull pains in my back. Doan's Pills gave me the best of results."

SEVEN YEARS LATER, Mr. Carman said: "If I ever have any trouble with my kidneys Doan's are sure to relieve the trouble."

TWO PARTIES SUSPICIOUS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)
LONDON, Oct. 22.—Tradition of rivalry and their dread of another coalition seems to be intensifying the opposition to the "pact" between the liberals and conservatives upon the part of the most extreme members of these parties.

Distrust and suspicion find loudest voice among the liberals, notwithstanding that Mr. Asquith, their leader, has given his blessing to the reciprocal arrangement whereby liberal and conservative candidates are standing aside so as to avert three-cornered contests which might find work for the benefit of the laborites. Many members of the party find their leaders' distrust extremely distasteful and are not hesitating to say so.

Far more liberal candidates are standing aside for conservatives than the vice versa and the reciprocal arrangement will consequently thin the liberal ranks in parliament for the benefit of their enemies.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

PATRICIA CLEVE is the young wife of

ANDREW CLEVE, a rising young lawyer who makes the entertainment of his clients as important a part of his wife's life that she has no time for anything else. She rebels when:

GREGORY HEWITT, an important financier, and his wife spend the night at the Cleves', and Mrs. Hewitt, misunderstanding Patricia's courtesy to Gregory, accuses her of flirting and insists on leaving the house.

Andrew is furious, and Patricia, telling him that she has made her nothing but a tamer of other women's husbands for his benefit, decides to leave him for a time, going to visit her sister, and hoping that he will come to his senses and allow her to have a home and children, instead of being nothing but an official hostess. She takes the Twentieth Century for Chicago and on the train encounters Hewitt. Patricia arrives at the home of her sister.

CAROL WILLOUGHBY, and Carol's husband, Keith, rather slight Patricia and she maliciously repeats some of Hewitt's phrases for building a railroad in which Keith is interested. He is also interested in.

ISOBEL DRAKE, the country club widow. Patricia calls at Gregory's office to confess her blunder. She accepts an invitation to dine with him.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT
XXIII—DANCING IN THE MOON-LIGHT

It was a Hawaiian orchestra that was playing and it came not over the radio but from a higher further down the lake shore, plaintively, sweetly, yet with an insistent rhythm.

It was not jazz that was being played, but native music from the islands, music far more seductive than anything else that Patricia had ever heard.

There was a wide clear space on the veranda.

And the floor was perfect. Gregory Hewitt held her lightly but firmly; he danced as well as he did everything else. After the first moment of adaptation Patricia realized that she could yield herself completely to his guidance. His sense of rhythm came instinctive.

It was a dance that seemed part of the night, of the moonlight and the music of the night winds that came whispering across the water and murmured through the trees. And as Hewitt held her closer, and now against the beat of the music, now with it, she forgot everything but the joy of dancing.

As the music ceased she turned toward their table; he held her hand an instant longer, then released it, and took his place opposite her, with the soft golden light of the shaded candles playing over his handsome face.

"I've never known anyone else who danced as you do," he said quietly, after a moment. "That was an experience that I shall never forget. It will be a treasured memory."

Patricia remained silent, fearful of being carried away by her own enthusiasm. She had always turned such remarks aside with a little careful comment, that flattered the man who made them and did not incriminate her. But she was too strongly moved now to do that; it she spoke at all, she must reveal too much of what lay in her heart, created by those few moments of pure delight.

"Little Pat, tell me that you enjoyed it, too," he begged of her.

She nodded, her eyes on her own slim hands, that were lightly entwined in her lap.

benefit of the laborites. Many members of the party find their leaders' distrust extremely distasteful and are not hesitating to say so.

"Tell me that you like me, that you enjoy being with me, won't you, please?" he begged.

"Little Pat, if I could come to you as I'd like to, unnumbered, unmarried, and ask you to be my wife, would you marry me?"

"How could I? I'm married to Andrew," she reminded him. It was as if someone else spoke; the witchery of the moment was so strong that she seemed to have drifted into a dream, where everything was beautiful and unreal.

"But if you weren't married to Andrew?" Hewitt persisted.

The music had begun again, sobbing passionately of love. All across the water the moonlight lay soft and golden. Patricia looked up slowly, her heart beating for a long moment. They had changed; they were not the same, shrewd eyes of one of the country's cleverest financiers now, but the warm, eager eyes of a man who was desperately in love.

Patricia looked away at last, tearing her glance from his with an effort.

"There are too many 'ifs' between your question and my answer," she told him, trying hard to be calm, although her heart was beating so violently that she felt as if the trembling of her hands must result directly from that. Hewitt's ardor made her suddenly uneasy; she was afraid of him, but of the situation, which she could not control. "Wonder," she went on, refusing to meet his eager gaze again, "I wonder if I can't get together, rather, I have so far to go, you know."

"Of course, we'll leave at once," the waiter was summoned, and Hewitt's name screamed across the check without delay. Patricia's thoughts were so completely held in a spell by what had taken place between her and Hewitt that she walked down the veranda and through the restaurant without noticing anyone. And all during the drive home but a few words were spoken. Her mind was going back over Hewitt's words, summoning up his expression, wondering, speculating, if she weren't married, and if she weren't—she told herself that such thoughts were treachery to Andrew.

And yet—Andrew seemed to care so little about being married to her; evidently she must not much more to him than his excellent secretary did. She was very useful to him in helping him toward success, and that was all. He didn't care for the home that she had tried to make. Didn't want children. Perhaps, after all, they were mistaken; perhaps she'd married not Andrew as he really was, but Andrew as she imagined him to be. Then it wasn't really a marriage. Hewitt, she stared at the dark blur of the landscape, through which Hewitt was driving with such headlong haste.

Liberty Theatre.
Conrad Nagel, who is co-starred with Alma Rubens in "The Rejected Woman," will be seen at the Antlers theatre when this distinctive feature opens a two days' engagement in that house, beginning today.

Nagel is taking the position of foremost leading man in the American films. His following is now numbered in the millions. Mr. Nagel did wonderful work in the recent productions of "Name the Man" and in "Three Weeks," and now in "The Rejected Woman" he has a role which gives him acting opportunities never before afforded him, with the result that his ranking in the world of cinema actors is undisputed.

Liberty Theatre.
"Listen, Lester," the musical comedy hit that had a long run on Broadway and was taken on tour for two seasons, has been adapted to the films and will be shown at the Liberty theatre tonight and Thursday.

The producers have been unusually fortunate in being able to secure for this cast, players who have long been identified as comedy favorites on the screen. Among the principals are Harry Myers, Lee Moran, Alec Francis, George O'Hara, Eva Novak, Louise Fazenda and Dot Farley.

MEDFORD DINES WORLD FLIERS

MEDFORD, Ore., Oct. 22.—The world fliers, who arrived here yesterday afternoon from Eugene, departed at 10:15 this morning for the south.

A large crowd of people gathered at the aviation field this morning to witness the departure of the army planes which expect to spend the night at Crater field.

According to information given out before their departure this morning, the fliers expect to continue east from San Diego, California, visiting San Antonio, New Orleans and finally Dayton, Ohio.

Lowell Smith and his companion, army aviators, were special guests at a banquet last evening given by the local chamber of commerce in honor of a visiting delegation of 100 Portland business men.

Following the banquet the aviators attended the ceremonies and theatrical performances which marked the opening of the new $175,000 Craterian theatre.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness come from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are known by their olive color. 15¢ and 30¢.
