PROPOSED INCREASE IN POSTAL RATES.

For the last few weeks congress has been confronted with he looks upon life through smaked For the last few weeks congress has been contronted with a number of proposals for the increase of postal rates generally, and mixed up with these measures was the postal pay bill, initia-ted for the purpose of increasing the pay of post office em-ployes. Tuesday congress sustained President Coolidge's veto of the postal bill, which practically eliminates this measure meeting with success during the present session. Also, it is built built and appealing in particular, is the heilhole of the unverse. In point-ing out the error of our way, he lays the blame for all degradation meeting with success during the present session. Also, it is quite unlikely that postal rates will be infereased before congress adjourns. President Coolidge has maintained that in order to allow increases in the pay of post office employes that it would be necessary to find a new source of revenue in order to comply with the demand. In other words, the department is far from self sustaining and any increases in salaries would further add to the yearly deficit. So, it had been planned by the minds of congress that second-class mail matter, which includes all news papers and other publications, should receive a penalty of over 65 per cent in a number of zones, while in others the increase would be 100 per cent. Naturally, the newspaper men did not take kindly to this burdensome increase, and, the Sterling bill, take kindly to this burdensome increase, and the Sterling bill, sencewhich had been designed to "trim" newspaper publishers for a tremendous increase in their mailing rates, was made the center of attack. This bill would deprive the public of information. Only a few of the largest metropolitan newspapers can obtain and print the full texts of important public documents. If postal rates are made prohibitive, leaders of opinion in communities away from the larger cities who now subscribe for newspapers will not be able to get such information.

The senate committee might well re-read the message in which Woodrow Wilson vetoed a proposal for an increase in the deepest problems of our politics and our social life. "To make such a change now, whatever its intentions in the minds of those who propose it, would be to attack and em-barrass the free processes of opinion. Surely sober second thought will prevent any such mischievous blunder."

Instead, the loss is now written down against second class matter, and the connow written down against second class matter, and the con-clusions thus reached are used as a basis on which to increase rates. This looks like taking money out of the pockets of pub-lishers who pay the full postal rates in order to make a gift to parcel post dept. durin' the noon at Record and other franked matter in with the second class. The commission has made a gratifying showing for the department as to law overhead costs—but will the method stand inspection? The discrepancies in other sections of the report are almost as amazing. They will be fully aired before the committee and in congress. Newspaper publishers are not alone in pointing out the absurdities of the cost-findings. It would appear that the post office department in its recommendations has gone as far astray on the public policy involved as on the facts.
