Above, COUNT & COUNTESS SALM. Below, MRS. GRACE COFFIN & F. A. VANDERLIP

Whispers from Paris bring rumors of another divorce sensation, this one, according to reports, involving the Count Salm von Hoopstraten and his bride of a year, the former Mary Millicent Rogers, heir to the Rogers millions. The Countess, it is reported, soon will go to Paris to start proceedings. Following the divorce—if it takes place—the Count may marry Mrs. Grace Coffin, now living in Paris, to whom he was reported engaged before he married Millicent Rogers, the heiress declares further. Frank A. Vanderlip, noted financier and ex-president of the National City Bank, is critically ill at his home in Scarborough-on-the-Hudson, New York, physicians have announced. He is suffering from typhoid fever.

GROWERS PLAN CROPS TO AVERT BROCCOLI LOSS

Chamber of Commerce Conducts Meeting to Discuss Situation.

WILL MEET AGAIN

Sub Committees Appointed to Obtain Additional Information Before Next Tuesday.

Tuesday afternoon a meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms for the purpose of devising ways and means enabling the broccoli growers whose crops were heavily damaged by the almost unprecedented cold snap of two weeks duration in December to retrieve their loss through other crops. In order to do this, of course, it was apparent that some crop or crops must be grown that would come on this year. Chairman Busenbark, of the raw products committee, presided over the session. Also present was Mr. G. C. McPeck, of Boise, Idaho, who represented the Denney Company, of Chicago, among the heaviest shippers and growers of raw products on this coast. Mr. McPeck gave some excellent suggestions concerning various products and their marketable value, shipping, and other data that goes along with a business of that sort.

MRS. ERNEST SCHVER'S FATAL DOG.

After a search of a week, during which army airplanes flew over the Long Island bog where he was last seen, two youthful companions of little Ernest Schver, of Richmond Hill, Long Island, N. Y., admitted they had accidentally killed the boy while "hunting," and they had concealed the body. They led police to the spot. The boy's mother was heartbroken.

THEATRES

Liberty Theatre

Al Wilson, whose thrilling exploits as an aviator, are chronicled in rather amazing fashion in his first big aviation stunt melodrama, "The Air Hawk," got his first big thrill while flying over the German lines during the world war. Wilson first served as a French ace. Later he was transferred to the Yankee lines where he quickly won high honors for his daring and skill in the skies. In his first airplane stunt melodrama "The Air Hawk," coming to the Liberty Theatre Sunday and Monday the war hero shows some new and amazingly thrilling stunts, but none so stark and ghastly as his experience with the German airmen in the world war.

MAJESTIC THEATRE

Working girls blessed with the beauty and measure of intelligence usually face the crisis, sooner or later, when they may choose to continue at their toil or wander easily down the primrose path. Those who take the lane that has no turning come to realize that "You Can't Get Away With It."

Rowland V. Lee directed the picture from the scenario by Robert N. Lee. The production will open a one-day engagement at the Majestic Theatre.

ANTLERS THEATRE

The comedy delight of the year is "Happiness," the second motion picture made by Laurette Taylor for Metro, which opens tonight at the Antlers Theatre. Miss Taylor is simply ravishing as a happy-go-lucky little shopgirl who brings the joy of living into a home made colorless by too much wealth. Her personality shines from the screen to the audience like radium, and is as gratifying to those who need treatment for the blues and other nervous ailments.

HURLS "STRANGLER" LEWIS FROM RING.

WAYNE H. ("BIG") MUNN.

An erstwhile University of Nebraska football player, who tried boxing unsuccessfully, and who is a novice at wrestling, is now world's heavyweight wrestling champion. He is Wayne H. ("Big") Munn, who, by ponderous strength, broke "Strangler" Lewis's fearful headlocks and crushed him into submission in Kansas City. Munn won the first and third falls and lost the second when he picked up the giant Lewis and threw him out of the ring. The referee disqualified him for it, but Lewis, when he re-entered the ring, was apparently badly hurt and lost the third fall in less than a minute. Munn stands six feet, seven inches in height and weighs 255 pounds. Lewis had to go to a hospital, unable to groan for a year.

another week. High freight rates, also was a drawback to this locality.

Strawberries.

Some advocated strawberries as a profitable industry. The question was discussed at length, but the information elicited would show that for canning purposes strawberries would bring only five to six cents per pound. Varieties, like Clark's Seedling, that might be shipped to foreign markets, would bring more, but could not be shipped to far eastern points, as they would not stand up. It was the consensus of opinion that certain sections of this county were peculiarly adapted to this fruit, but data was lacking as to yields, best sorts, etc., so it was thought best to get at these important matters before advising any large plantings. It will require practically two years before any revenue can be expected from the strawberries.

Celery.

This vegetable was alleged to be one of the most promising industries for the small farmer. Mr. McPeck was again called upon to state what success might be expected. He spoke highly of the industry, but said that care must be exercised in selecting varieties, as some were not desirable for marketing, although the plants might appear unexcelled. This vegetable is grown from seed sown in cold frames and transplanted to the field at the opportune time. Rows are six inches apart and the plants about six inches in the rows, which means approximately 40,000 to the acre. Under usual market conditions an acre of celery might be worth $1200. Where the plants are bought of gardeners, they can be had at around $2 per 1000. This would make the cost somewhere like $120 the acre for plants. The cheapest way by far would be for grower to cold frame their own plants. Care also, in bleaching the celery during the growing period must be exercised, and this work requires some experience.

Other Vegetables.

It was stated that the local canner would be able to handle a limited quantity of beets. This vegetable must not be too large and grown under right conditions to assure perfection. Probably around $25 per ton could be realized for beets. It was stated by County Agent Cooney that an acre would yield something like two and a half tons. Pumpkins, squash and asparagus received consideration. The latter is a very profitable crop, but three years at least are required to get the asparagus beds into producing state, was acknowledged as a drawback for the present emergency.

Fruits.

There was quite a little interest in the proposition to advise farmers with proper soils to plant peaches and pears. It was shown that the Rose pear is suited to local conditions, and that really there is a shortage in peach production in this county.

Sub-Committees Appointed.

Before adjourning to meeting next Tuesday at 3 p. m., for further discussing farmers problems, Chairman Busenbark appointed the following committees to co-operate with the Raw Products Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in this county: Sub-committees Raw Products Committee, Chamber of Commerce; Betner, chairman. Timber Committee—W. A. Bo-
