

LATE PICTORIAL NEWS OF THE DAY

EDDY'S JUNIOR COLLEGE BILL IS PRESENTED TODAY

Municipality is proposed to be formed.

The secretary of state shall file with the governor a certificate setting forth the purpose of the petition and the governor shall by proclamation call an election within the district within sixty days.

The expense of the election within any county affected would be paid by the county in the same way that the expenses of general elections are paid.

If the proposal carries at election, it is made the duty of the governor within 30 days after his proclamation of the result to appoint a board of trustees for the municipality consisting of five members.

Municipalities created under the act would have the privilege of exercising the right of eminent domain. The trustees would have power to issue and sell bonds of the municipality.

Investigate Leaver.

STATEHOUSE, SALEM, Ore., Jan. 15.—The executive committee that will investigate the administration of the state prohibition department by George L. Cleaver will comprise ten members, five from the house and five from the senate. The committee will be appointed by the governor.

The resolution was passed by the senate unanimously late yesterday.

The investigating committee may subpoena witnesses and take their testimony under oath and may hold hearings whenever it desires. Early action will be taken so that the findings of the committee may be filed with the legislature well ahead of the final week.

Would Stop Trolling.

STATEHOUSE, SALEM, Ore., Jan. 15.—A hammering drive to have salmon trolling of the mouth of the Columbia river stopped, is scheduled for the present session of the legislature according to the opponents of such legislation.

James W. Mott, Astoria, chairman of the fisheries committee of the house will be the champion of the trolls.

The Astoria gill netters and trolls at the mouth of the Columbia river number around 3,000, according to Mott. "They take approximately half of the annual catch of about $5,000,000," he explained. "The big interests with plants, sailing equipment, traps and other fixtures, yearly take the other half of the fish caught annually. Not more than 200 persons control the fixed property business."

"From the standpoint of the prosperity of the state, it is better to have a wide distribution of the return from the fishing industry than one limited to a comparatively few persons."

To Hamper Pierce.

STATEHOUSE, SALEM, Ore., Jan. 15.—Governor Pierce would be further stripped of his appointive powers if the house bill number 34 introduced by North to change the organization of the World War veterans state aid commission becomes a law. As the commission stands, it consists of the governor, secretary of state, adjutant-general and two commissioners named by the governor. The North bill would turn the duties of the commission over to the board of control thereby eliminating the adjutant-general and the two commissioners named by the governor. North declares that the bill is in the interests of state economy.

May Close River.

STATEHOUSE, SALEM, Ore., Jan. 15.—Effort is to be made by Willamette valley sportsmen to have the big Neastuca river closed to commercial fishing, according to information received by representative Winslow, Tillamook. Sharp opposition is expected to be forthcoming from the commercial fishing interests along the river.

STATEHOUSE, Salem, Jan. 15.—The senate resolution calling for an investigation of state prohibition director Cleaver's department was adopted by the house this forenoon.

Representative Mendenhall pointed out that so long as Governor Pierce had invited an investigation earlier, it was accomplished the better.

Representative Graham of Forest Grove took the floor to oppose the resolution.

"I do not think the people want their money spent on an investigation of this sort," he declared. Representatives Woodward and Hurlburt of Multnomah argued for the resolution pointing out that various charges of misappropriation of funds and methods of operations, has been made clear against the department and a thorough investigation should be held.

An investigation will show whether the expense of conducting the department has been justified, declared Woodward.

Timber Severance Tax

STATEHOUSE, Salem, Jan. 15.—A severance tax on timber was introduced by Senator Beals today, designed to reach timber being cut from lands not taxed and not in a forest reserve. The bill is designed to reach tracts acquired from the government, but title to which still remains in the government but enable the holder to escape taxation.

ARGUMENTS ARE BEING MADE IN BISHOP'S CASE

more such blots on man's record."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 15.—Final arguments in the case which is to determine whether Right Rev. William Montgomery Brown is to continue to hold the office of Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church were made here today before the board of review. The proceedings wound up Bishop Brown's appeal from the court for trial of a bishop which May 31 found him guilty of promulgating doctrines contrary to those held by the church.

Joseph Shantz, of Dayton, Ohio, chief counsel for the bishop, summed up his case, devoting a large part of his final address to a discussion of church doctrine. How it became established.

But beyond the attorneys words were those which the white-haired defendant had promised to offer. The last fifteen minutes of the case were reserved for his personal plea.

The board of review had before it two main alternatives. It could reverse the trial court and dismiss or remain the charges, or it could uphold the lower court and pronounce sentence on Bishop Brown. Such sentence might range from reprimand to expulsion from the office of bishop. It was emphasized, however, that there was "no power of ex-communication" from the church. The extreme penalty, therefore, amounted to reducing Bishop Brown as a retired commander in the church army to the status of a retired private.

Fine points of church law involving the doctrine of apostolic succession as a corollary to the defense claim of a bishop's immunity from doctrinal trial have marked the closing arguments.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 15.—Pleading in his own behalf for a reversal of the verdict which found him guilty of heresy, Bishop William Montgomery Brown today addressed the board of review of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

Bishop Brown said he believed in God "not a being with masculinity," or one with arms and legs, but "a precious symbol of the infinite reality which has brought us all things into being as parts of itself—maker of heaven and earth."

He expressed his belief in Jesus Christ. "His only son, our Lord," he intimated but as "the symbol of the son of God—the human manifestation of all that is true and beautiful and good."

"Who was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary," he quoted, "not literally, of course. Modern biology has made the literal acceptance of this belief impossible for any of us, but in stripping us of this literal interpretation it has released the symbol for greater usefulness."

"I see in Jesus the eternal servant," continued the bishop. "I see in Him every loving, sweetening, bleeding, holy man. I see him in the uncounted, unnamed and unknown workers of the world, despoiled and disinherited and crucified—my God made manifest in suffering and flesh."

"I want you to know that I am including in that most holy of names, every victim of injustice, all the victims of un-paid labor, all the tollers whose unpaid labor has given leisure and luxury to a few; and all those millions who have been sent to war to bleed and die."

"Let us not excuse ourselves. We as a church did help to send them to their myriad crucifixions. We blessed the war. We told them that God was on our side and that they were doing a holy thing in fighting his battles for the good of the world. Their blood is upon us. As between Christ and Caesar, the church chose the state."

JUDGE HAMILTON BEFORE ROTARY CLUB

At today's Rotary luncheon Judge J. W. Hamilton was the speaker and the distinguished citizen made a splendid talk. Taking for his subject "The Courts," he reviewed their great progress during his continuous service on the bench which had covered a period of over a quarter of a century, and what he had to say carried much weight with his listeners. Reference to early methods of conducting court in this state brought forth many interesting happenings, which would today, seem almost barbarous. They have now reached a much higher degree of perfection, but there are still a few remedies that should be applied, the judge stated, to make courts more efficient. He said that a less number of laws would be appreciated by most judicial bodies, which, in his mind would be conducive to remedying many of the present ills now referred to by people generally. The supreme court is burdened with many cases that could be equitably disposed of by arbitration, and he suggested that more peaceful means should be employed in disposing of many sections now brought before the courts which would eliminate a large expense to the taxpayers. If people generally would abide by the decisions of a representative set of men, instead of taking trivial matters before the courts for adjustment it would be far better for all concerned than many cases be disposed of in this manner.

Judge Hamilton's remarks were very instructive, clear and concise, and made a lasting impression on all Rotarians present.

The program for next Thursday will be in charge of the boys' committee, at which time eighth grade pupils of this city will be entertained at luncheon.

2 MAJOR GENERALS RETIRED FROM ARMY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—By the coincidence of their birth on the same day 64 years ago, two major generals, both with long military careers, crowned by conspicuous service with the American army in the world war, passed from active service today under the age retirement law.

War department records show that Major General Robert L. Dillard, commanding the second corps area at Governor's Island, and Major General Charles G. Morton, commanding the ninth corps area at San Francisco were born January 15, 1861. The passage of 64 years since General Morton entered the military academy from Massachusetts in July, 1879, gives him a service record just two years longer than that of his comrade from Alabama, who put on the cadet uniform in July, 1881.

Letters praising the years of conspicuous service by both officers were handed them by Secretary Weeks on turning over their commands to appointed successors.

His letter to General Dillard, the war secretary recalled that it was he who led the first American division to enter the front line of battle in France, the first to fire on German forces, the first to take a German prisoner and the first to prove the hostile positions in the battle of Cantigny—the first American offensive of the war.

The achievements of General Morton as commander of the 25th division and during his detail as military observer for the American forces in France were recounted in a laudatory fashion by Secretary Weeks in his letter to the ninth corps commander.

The records of both officers, Secretary Weeks said has served to fix the high standards of their profession before the eyes of both the nation and the army.

BOTTLE OF POST-VOLSTEAD LIQUOR WAS ALL HE GOT

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—A bottle of post-Volstead whiskey was all that he and his associates got for $65,000 which they were led to believe was to have been used in bribing government officials, Samuel P. Safir, former president of the Crager system, a stock selling organization testified in Federal Court today at the trial of Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, and Thomas B. Felder, attorney on charges of conspiring to obstruct justice.

Safir, with other officers and employees of the Crager system had been indicted as mail sales defrauders of stock of the Altona Glass Casket company. Through Elmer W. Jarnecke, Means' former secretary, he and other witnesses testified, they had been induced to pay Means $65,000 on his representation that he would use it to bribe the then Attorney General, Harry M. Daugherty and other officials to prevent their prosecution. Means, it was testified, sent Safir and his friends to Felder's law offices, where the $65,000 was paid over.

"Means called on us at our hotel that night," Safir testified. "He brought a bottle of whiskey, cracked a few jokes, helped us drink the liquor and went away. That's all we ever got for our $65,000. We went to trial four days later and most of us were convicted."
