LEGION BANQUET AT ARMORY TONIGHT

All members of Umpqua post of the American Legion are invited to the big banquet to be served at the Armory at 6:45 this evening. The banquet is in honor of the membership team which was responsible for Roseburg taking second place in the state campaign for the number of members signed up for 1925. On a basis of members secured from the number of eligibles, Roseburg was ahead of any other place, but Salem with a great many more men eligible for membership, succeeded in securing a larger post than Roseburg. The local post, however, expects to win the prize for the greatest number of members on a percentage basis, and the largest number of new members.

Dr. Stewart, the commander of the post, has just returned from the national executive committee meeting at Indianapolis and will have a message of interest for all ex-service men.

The Ladies Auxiliary have had charge of the arrangements for the banquet and have a roast turkey feed with all necessary fixin's, and a good time is in store for all legion men.

TO FULLFILL PLEDGE.

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

BERLIN, Jan. 19.—Loyal fulfillment by Germany of the London agreement on the Dawes plan and strict enforcement of the laws dictated by it, are among the pledges contained in the program announced by the new government headed by Dr. Hans Luther as Chancellor to the Reichstag tonight.

W. C. T. U. LUNCHEON

Everyone interested in the cause of the Women's Christian Temperance Union and those who wish to help increase the budget of the Roseburg Union and at the same time partake of a splendid lunch with an attractive program of music and addresses, will remember the date Wednesday noon, January 21st, 1925.

After the luncheon a well arranged program celebrating the anniversary of the prohibition amendment will be heard at the First M. E. Church.

Prominent citizens and Dr. J. L. Miller, Evangelist of Nashville, Tennessee, who is conducting an evangelistic campaign in our city, will speak. Dr. Miller is a forceful and convincing speaker.

Come and help these ladies and in return you will be helped.

SAYS ORIENTALS DANGER TO NATION

(Associated Press Leased Wire)

CHICAGO, Ill., Jan. 19.—The awakening of the oriental races continues for this country "the day of national opportunity or it presages national chastisement if not disaster," Canon Wm. Bertel Heeney of the Episcopal Church, Winnipeg, Canada, told the Rogers Park Sunday Evening Club here last night.

"I shall not go into hysterics and talk of the yellow peril or the rising tide of color," he said. "The fact remains, however, that the day of the oriental has dawned. We have taught Japan to seize the reins of leadership in the orient. China is fighting her way through civil wars to national unity. India is throbbing with national consciousness. It is certain that the pent-up millions of these races will roll from their shores to ours."

R. R. CLERKS WILL GET PAY INCREASE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—The United States Railroad Labor Board in a decision today granted an increase in wages of approximately $3,740,000 to clerical service employes on 43 railways in all sections of the country. The employes affected do not include those clerical service employes taken care of in the decision of the board a year ago.

The increase ranged from one to two cents a nhour for the classes included, and grew out of a failure of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers and Station Employes to agree with the roads.

The railways affected by the order include the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Great Northern, Northern Pacific, Pere Marquette, Southern Pacific and Union Pacific systems.

ESCAPED CONVICT HAS BAD CAREER

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 19.—Gerald Chapman, to whom crimes ranging from robbery to murder were attributed, and who was arrested at Muncie, Ind., will be held for the warden of the Atlanta, Ga., federal prison, Alexander G. Cabins, United States District Attorney said today. Chapman escaped from the Atlanta institution in March 1923, a few months after he had been sentenced to serve 25 years in connection with the $2,400,000 mail truck robbery in New York in 1921.

MUSSOLINI SEIZES IBANEZ'S BOOKLETS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Premier Mussolini of Italy and Signor Federzoni, minister of the interior, have ordered seizure of Cicente Blasco Ibanez's brochure against King Alfonso and have commanded the prefects to hinder by all means its circulation in Italy, reports the Rome correspondent of Le Gaulois.

This action was taken, the correspondence says, after a demand made upon the Italian government by the Spanish ambassador.

Princess Tsianina will appear in the artistic costume of her race, wearing a dress of beaded buckskin, moccasins, and beaded head band. Hear her on Jan. 26, at the Conservatory.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "Luxury of Love," "The Husband Parade," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA AND JIM LELAND return from their honeymoon to his home town, where his mother promptly begins to try to make Cynthia over. She has accepted the girl merely on approval. Cynthia finds it difficult to get along with her sister-in-law.

LOUELLA GRAY, also, but likes her brother-in-law, Stanley. She meets

NOEL GARDNER while her husband is out of town on business partly concerned with some bad investments that his mother has made.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XVII—CYNTHIA'S PLAN

LOUELLA and her husband insisted on driving Cynthia home, although she would have preferred going in her own car, which had been ordered to call for her. Louella urged that she telephone her chauffeur that he need not come back.

VIOLET DARE

"In fact, you might just as well dismiss him, now that Jim is away," she told Cynthia.

"But Jim's to be back quite soon; it would be absurd to discharge Chester and then have to look for another chauffeur at once," Cynthia protested.

"Oh, but Jim's to be away for some time," Louella answered. "I was talking with mother just before I left home this evening, and she'd had a letter from him. He won't be back for several months, she says; he's gone on to the Coast, and may go to Honolulu before he returns."

"Really?" Cynthia's face fell. How would she get along without Jim all that time? "In that case, he's probably written me also—he'll want me to join him," she said, hardly realizing that she was speaking aloud.

Louella looked at her doubtfully. "Well, perhaps, though it would hardly seem likely to me," she replied.

Cynthia's face flushed, but she said nothing. Why hadn't Jim written her as promptly as he had written his mother? For a moment she was very angry. Then another thought came—probably he had planned to send her a telegram that night, or perhaps he'd call her on the long distance. "I must hurry home," she exclaimed, when she thought of that. "I'm sure Jim will call me tonight on the phone."

"If he does he's more extravagant than he used to be," her sister-in-law commented sharply.

During the drive home Louella was very quiet; it was a disapproving silence, and Cynthia made no effort to break it. Why should her husband's people be so hostile, she asked herself. It seemed impossible to please them. Well, she'd stop trying, if they continued to be so disagreeable.

Stanley escorted her up to the steps to her front door, and waited there with her until it was opened.

"Guess you and I got in wrong tonight," he confided gloomily. "Louella gave me the deuce when I saw her for a few moments alone, and she'll go on with it when we get home. Thinks I was too attentive to you at dinner—when it was all I could do to tear your attention away from Noel Gardner."

"You'd better not have anything to do with me if you want to keep peace in the family; everything I do is wrong," Cynthia retorted. She was tired and unhappy, wretched at the prospect of having Jim away for so long.

"Oh, well, it's just the old question of adapting yourself to new people and surroundings," he told her. "It was hard for me at first too. As soon as you learn their ways and settle into them you'll be all right."

Cynthia nodded, glad to get rid of him and go into the house alone. It seemed very gloomy and lonesome, but at least she could be alone. She undressed, and sat reading in her little sitting-room, near the telephone, for the next two hours, sure that Jim would call her. But at last, exhausted, she went to bed. Jim evidently hadn't thought it worth the money to call her.

She was at Gardner's office promptly at eleven the next morning, and explained that she understood that he was interested in the stock that Madame Leland had bought, and lost money on, and that she wanted him to buy it back from Madame Leland and then sell it to her.

"You see, she and I have had some difficulty about—well, about other things," she told him. "And I feel that if I could do this it would make matters easier for both of us."

He studied her quietly for a moment. Then he nodded decisively and reached for some papers that were in a drawer of his desk.

"All right; I'll do it," he told her. "As a matter of fact, that stock that Madame Leland bought is very low just now, and of course if she doesn't wish to keep it until it goes up she's at liberty to sell. It's true that I'm heavily interested in it, but things were not managed quite as I'd have chosen while I was away,

"Mind if I join you?"

and—oh, I won't explain, but I'll buy the stock back from her, and arrange later to sell it to you."

"At the price she paid for it," Cynthia insisted.

"Yes, at that same price. Now, tell me—can't we have luncheon together?"

Cynthia smiled as she shook her head.

"Sorry, but I'm lunching out at the country club with Mrs. Malcolm; we're going to play golf afterwards."

He looked up with interest. "That's a good way to spend the afternoon — congratulations. Now, I'll phone you later about this matter, and we can settle the details then."

Cynthia drove out to the country club with her thoughts in a turmoil. Her father had left her very well provided for, but if she was to buy this stock she would have to sell some of the securities that he had left her; it would take all the money that she could put her hands on swallowing up her income for some months to come.

"I don't care if it takes every cent I've got," she decided as she reached the club. "I'll do it."

Her luncheon with Cecile Malcom was a long round of gossip, and she was glad to leave the table and go out to the veranda. The first person she saw there was Noel Gardner, in golfing clothes. He hurried forward eagerly. "Mind if I join you?" he asked.

A Strange Situation

T. D. BARRY BURIED TODAY

The funeral of the late T. D. Barry, of West Fork, who passed away at St. Vincents hospital in Portland, Friday, was held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Catholic church. Mr. Barry lived at West Fork a great portion of his life, and had many friends in that vicinity, as well as being known in this city. He conducted a general merchandise store and a hotel at West Fork for a number of years. The services were read by Father Cleary, of the Catholic church, and interment followed in the Catholic cemetery. There were a number of beautiful floral offerings.

SENATE HALTS TO HONOR ITS DEAD

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Intimate memories of three of its stalwarts of former days came crowding back upon the senate as legislative machinery was brought to a halt so those who had served shoulder to shoulder with them might give a last testimonial to their lives and their work.

Senators of both sides of the chamber sought the opportunity of joining in praise of the public service rendered by Henry Cabot Lodge, Frank B. Brandegee and Lebaron B. Coult, members who died in the summer recess.

Reviews of the life of Senator Lodge carried the senate through 31 years of its history and brought recollections of the memorable controversy over the League of Nations in which the former chairman of the foreign relations committee and Woodrow Wilson were the central figures.

The retrospect of Senator Brandegee's service found almost as wide a range in the years of senate history as the veteran from Connecticut had so large a hand in fashioning.

Tributes to the fidelity of Senator Coult recalled his services as chairman of the immigration committee to which place he succeeded when his party came to control of the senate after the world war.

COMPLAINT FILED AGAINST DUNDEE

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

PARIS, Jan. 19.—Formal complaint against Johnny Dundee and his manager, Jimmy Johnston, for failure to carry out the Dundee-Brettonnel fight which was to have been held here January 27, has been lodged with the French Boxing Federation by Promoter Boyer and in addition a suit for 75,000 francs damages was filed today in the French civil courts against both the fighter and his manager. The "affaire Dundee" as it is known here, attracting much interest in sporting circles. The promoters, decided to file the suit and complaint against Dundee and his adviser only after they had received a wireless from the captain of the liner Paris, 20 hours out of Plymouth, bound for New York, saying that Dundee was aboard. There was also a message from Johnny himself saying he was sorry that illness in his family made it imperative for him to return to the United States, but that he would come back to fight Brettonnel or anybody else.

The French promoters are especially bitter because on Friday, they claim, Johnny was going through the motions of training for his Brettonnel fight and protesting that he intended to go on with the contest as arranged. While at the same time he had in his pockets the steamship tickets for New York, which according to the records of a steamship agency, had been purchased Thursday.

"Johnny will pay through the nose for his disappearing stunt," said Promoter Boyer. "I knew he was reputed for fast foot-work, but this jumping clear out of France is too much even from "Jumping Johnny." " Boyer displayed a contract which was signed December 24, by "James Johnston for Johnny Dundee," and which also bore Johnny's own signature. Boyer also showed his own receipt for 20,000 francs deposited with the French Boxing Federation, January 7, as a forfeit. The contract calls for Dundee to receive $33,250, or 30 percent of the gate.
