GEORGIA HARD HIT BY HEAVY FLOOD

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 20.—With the list of dead and missing standing at ten, railroad and motor truck demoralized and a heavy property loss sustained, the crest of the flood, which has been acute in several southern states since Saturday night, today was believed passing.

In southern Georgia, where the menace and damage probably has been greatest, many streams were receding.

No estimate of property damage was available.

Scores of towns throughout the southern portion of Georgia virtually were isolated.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT M. E. CHURCH DRAW CROWD

Dr. L. J. Miller spoke last night at the First M. E. Church upon "How to Get Old Time Religion." In his exposition of the scriptural account of Jesus' conversation with Nicodemus upon the news of birth, he pointed to the fact that a man's position in life is no index to the condition of his soul. Banker or hod carrier, he must be born again, or he is a sinner in the sight of God.

As proof that all is not well with America, the evangelist pointed to the fact that 65,000 girls disappeared in the United States last year, and that one boy out of every eight becomes a criminal of some sort.

Dr. Miller has preached on an average of 400 sermons every year for the past fifteen years, and last year preached 480 times. His wide experience enables him to go straight to the heart of his subject and in such an interesting manner that his audience is interested in every word he says.

The Ledford's sang an old favorite, "I'm a Little Old Fashioned." Their singing is of the sort which brings the gospel message of their songs as plainly as the spoken word, enhanced by the charm of music. They have the unusual gift of really speaking to their audiences in song.

Prayer meetings for ladies will be held at 10:30 this morning in various places over the city.

A men's prayer meeting will be held in the church at 7:00 this evening.

Dr. Miller's message tonight will be a continuation of that of last evening. Don't fail to hear this great preacher.

Gordon Cochrane, college catcher, purchased by Connie Mack for a reported price of $50,000 from Portland, of the Pacific Coast league, declares he is a holdout, but he expresses a desire to appear and do his best with the Athletics. The Boston university man seeks $5,000 of the purchase money from President Turner of the Portland team and claims that he already has received a letter informing him that his proposition meets with disfavor.

Washington state college will meet the Oregon Agricultural College basketball team at Pullman tonight in a Pacific Coast conference game, the second of the season for each team. The Beavers defeated Gonzaga University, 22 to 21, in a northwest conference game last night. The O. A. C. five will play Idaho on Thursday at Moscow.

Beginning next season, two former Notre Dame football captains will coach neighboring cities and rivals in teams in San Francisco bay regions. "Slip" Madigan has just piloted little St. Mary's college of Oakland, through a sensational season. And now Adam Walsh, captain of the notable 1924 Notre Dame eleven, has been signed to coach the University of Santa Clara, down the peninsula from San Francisco. St. Mary's and Santa Clare meet annually in San Francisco, usually Thanksgiving day. last November Madigan's men administered a thorough drubbing. In retaliation Santa Clara intends to develop a Notre Dame system of its own.

MURDER SUSPECT FREED

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Jan. 20. — After being detained for a few hours yesterday by Fred Morley, private investigator and special state agent, Charles Kimsey, suspected of having knowledge of the Lava Lake murder case in Deschutes county a year ago, was released from custody early last night.

Kimsey's brother in law is said to have told authorities that the suspected man admitted knowing all about the murder, but Morley last night said Kimsey's alibi was iron-clad, so far as he could determine. He expected to question the man again today.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

Author of "Luxury of Love," "The Husband Tamer," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA AND JIM LELAND return from their honeymoon to his home town, where his mother promptly begins to try to make Cynthia over. She has accepted the girl merely on approval. Cynthia finds it difficult to get along with her sister-in-law.

LOUELLA GRAY, also, but likes her brother-in-law, Stanley. She meets

NOEL GARDNER while her husband is out of town on business partly concerned with some bad investments that his mother has made. Cynthia finds that Gardner controls the stock which Madame Leland has bought and thinks worthless. Cynthia asks him to buy it back from Madame Leland and sell it to her, without letting anyone know.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XVIII—A STRANGE SITUATION

FOR a moment Cynthia did not know quite what to do as she faced Noel Gardner on the country club porch. Certainly it would be pleasant to play golf with him, and after his kindness of the morning, in saying that he would buy back from her mother-in-law the stock which Madame Leland was so upset about, Cynthia felt that she could hardly refuse to let him join her and Cecile Malcolm in their game.

VIOLET DARE

And yet she hesitated. Cecile had said quite frankly that she had known him well before he went abroad, but that she didn't know just how good friends they were now that he had returned. Perhaps Cecile wouldn't want to play with him. Perhaps she'd prefer to see him alone before she associated with him publicly. The dinner party of the evening before had not thrown them together enough to create any difficulty.

"I don't know—I'm waiting for Cecile," Cynthia told him, nervously.

"And you don't know whether she'll want me or not?" he asked with a smile. "I can answer for her, I think; I'm sure she won't object. But here she is now, if you'd rather put it up to her."

Cecile ran down the veranda, followed by a caddy with her clubs. She held out her hand to Noel sagerly.

"Noel—don't tell me that you're going to play with us!" she exclaimed with delight. Then to Cynthia: "Noel taught me how to play golf—as well as how to do many other things," with a sideways glance at him that was tinged with malice.

"And as in other things, you didn't need much teaching," he commented. "Shall we begin?"

Cynthia did not enjoy the game. There was another one being played by Cecile Malcolm and Gardner that she could not follow, a conversational game, filled with references to someone named "Helena," with little, malicious threats on Cecile's part, followed by what seemed almost like appeals to the man, who obviously was quite uninterested in her, and rather inclined to be annoyed at her persistent attempts to interest him.

Cynthia was glad when the game was over. Gardner drove back to town in his own car, and Cynthia went with Cecile, who sat moodily in a corner, hardly speaking. She did volunteer one bit of information, however.

"I suppose you've heard of Helena, Noel's wife?" she asked. "Oh, you haven't? Well, they were married two years ago, eloped on the eve of her wedding day—she was to have married another man. Her people simply raved, of course. They didn't like Noel; he'd never amounted to much, and the other man was one of the most influential in town. They were right about Helena and Noel—they couldn't get along at all, and last year she went to Paris with her father and mother, and later wrote Noel that she was going to get a divorce.

"He rushed over there, but couldn't make her change her mind. She divorced him, and now he's come back to try to brace up the business that he deserted when he hurried off after her. He's still in love with her, people say—oh, and they're right, too. I'm a fool!" she concluded abruptly, and turned to stare out of the window.

Cynthia was glad to leave Cecile when she arrived at home. She hurried into the house to see if there was any message from Jim. On the table in the hall was a letter; she tore it open, scanned its two pages hurriedly. He wrote to tell her what she had already heard from his mother, that he was going to be gone longer than he had expected, would probably go to Honolulu before he returned.

"It might not be a bad idea for you to close our house and stay with mother while I am away," he added. "The expense of keeping it open is considerable, and although I know that you find it hard to get along with mother, I'm sure that you will love her as I do when you know her better, and be glad that you took this opportunity to get really acquainted with her."

She was glad to have the first dance with Gardner.

Cynthia's eyes blazed. She had thought that Jim would suggest that she join him on the Honolulu trip, or at least would regret that she wasn't going to. Instead he calmly planned for her to stay with his mother!

There was to be a dance at her sister-in-law's that evening. She ran upstairs to dress for it, but first unlocked a portfolio that lay on her desk and did some rapid figuring on a desk pad.

"I could just make it," she reflected. "That is, if that stock Noel Gardner is going to sell me doesn't cost too much. And Jim certainly can't object if I use my own money!"

She was glad to have the first dance with him.

"Tell me," she began breathlessly. "Just how much will that stock cost?"

"Well—about ten thousand dollars."

"Then—then—" she thought for a moment. She could sell some of the bonds hat her father had left her, and buy the stock. She could sell the rest, and carry out the plan she had made that afternoon.

"Do you know of any nice little apartment that are for rent?" she asked Gardner. "I must have one at once—just big enough for me and a maid."

"I certainly do!" he answered. "I've been planing to rent one that I —well, that I used to be interested in. If you'll let me, I'll show it to you tomorrow morning. May I call for you at ten?"

A Decisive Step.

FRISCO WORKERS REDUCE OWN PAY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20. — Three hundred employes of the Municipal railway here reduced their monthly wage from $150 to $90 a month as a result of the passage of a charter amendment which they put before the voters and campaigned for at the last election.

The unusual situation was revealed today when the men petitioned the board of public works to hold inoperative certain provisions of the law, but that body ruled all provisions must be carried into effect.

Under the new law the men must conclude their work day within ten hours. This condition makes a re-arrangement of schedules necessary and places 300 of the men on extra or

The secret of the origin of fairies is out. "Peter Pan" gives it away at last in Herbert Brenon's production of J. M. Barrie's famous fantasy for Paramount, coming to the Antlers theatre on Thursday.

"When the first baby laughed for the first time, its laugh broke into a thousand pieces and they all went skipping about. That was the beginning of fairies," says Peter Pan.

Children who believe in fairies are the ones who keep them alive, according to Peter.

"Every time a child says 'I don't believe in fairies,' one of them suddenly dies. Fairies are nearly all dead now because so many children refuse to believe in them any more."

The adventures of the three Darling children, Wendy, John and Michael with Peter in the Never Never Land form the theme of Barrie's wonderful fantasy.

Antlers Theatre

A picture of exceptionally wide interest to fans, "Behold This Woman," will be shown at the Antlers Theatre in this city on Wednesday. A glimpse of life in Hollywood among the actors and players of screen fame will be shown in this dramatic story, which deals with the love of a young cattleman for a popular motion picture star. The picture is an adaptation of E. Phillip Oppenheim's novel and is produced by J. Stuart Blackton for Vitagraph. The story contrasts life in the open on a great ranch and the smart set of those who bask in the reflected glory of public favorites.

Liberty Theatre

Pagan Passions, with Wyndham Standing, Rosemary Theby, Tully Marshall, Sam DeGrasse, Raymond McKee, Barbara Bedford and June Elvidge, is scheduled to make its debut in Roseburg at the Liberty theatre tomorrow and Thursday.

The story which came from the versatile brain of the greatly gifted Grace Sanderson Michie, deals with the temptations which beset the white men and women who live, even if only for a short time, in the tropics. Mrs. Michie has the enviable faculty of making her characters honest-to-goodness folks with their faults and virtues so intermingled that one just can't help sympathizing with their misfortunes and rejoicing in their triumphs.
