MRS. BILL HART PREFERS HUBBY

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 21.—William S. Hart, motion picture actor whose wife, Winifred Westover Hart, last Monday won her superior court suit to break a separation agreement prohibiting her from returning to the screen, planned to leave for New York on a vacation trip today.

One the eve of his departure he reiterated his determination to appeal the case, but a statement issued at the same time by Mrs Hart lent color to rumors that a reconciliation, rather than further litigation, might be the outcome of the couple's superior court tilt.

"I have no plans to return to pictures at present," she said. "If my husband files an appeal, it may be a long time before I would have a right to.

"But I will give up the trust fund establishe for me by my husband and agree not to return to work at any time if he will let me come back to him."

SPANIARDS TRAP MOORISH REBELS

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

MELILLA, Morocco, Jan. 21.—Abd El-Krim, commander of the Moorish rebels, is besieged with his warriors in the holy city of Auf by Kabyle tribesmen who have surrounded the place and cut off the water supply, according to private advices.

The Spaniards report a successful raid into enemy territory near here by a native column. Airplanes co-operated with the column. The rebels suffered heavy casualties and were put to flight.

LONDON, Jan. 21.—Three Spanish warships and eight airplanes are bombarding the Anjera tribal forces from the Straits of Gibraltar, off Point Alcasar and Seguer, and to the east of those positions, according to news agency dispatches received this afternoon from Tangier.

Washington Irving said: "I value this delicious home feeling as one of the choicest gifts a parent can bestow." Page Lumber & Fuel Co.

Don't Let That Cold Turn Into "Flu"

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu" Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it brings relief.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, does the work without blister.

Just rub it on with your finger-tips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

YANKEES RELY ON VETERANS IN 1925 RACE FOR PENNANT

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. — The 1925 renewal of the American league classic will see the New York Yankee's facing the barrier with veteran blood in their veins and their mite manager, Miller Huggins, as leader. Virtually the same team which faltered in the stretch during the 1924 running will take the field this year, supported by Urban Shocker, recently acquired from St. Louis; Steve O'Neil, former Cleveland and Boston catcher, and the usual amount of brush talent.

Manager Huggins said his infield would be intact again this year with Joe Dugan at third, the veteran Everett Scott at shortstop, Aaron Ward at second and Wally Pipp at first.

Babe Ruth will roam right field with Bob Meusel in left, but center field may see a shift. Earl Coombs, Louisville product who broke his ankle in sliding into home plate last year, has first call if his ankle comes around satisfactorily. Otherwise "Whitey" Witt will draw the assignment again. Wally Shang will do the bulk of the catching with O'Neill available as an alternate.

Bob Shawkey, Sam Jones, Urban Shocker, Waite Hoyt and Herb Pennock will take care of the chief twirling assignments together with such of the seven rookies as Huggins decides to retain on the payroll.

M'ELHINNY BACK FROM CONVENTION

Charles S. McElhinny, district manager of the Oregon Life Insurance company, has returned from Portland after attending the convention of agents and managers. Mr. McElhinny was presented with a fine reading chair for honors gained during the three-month contest staged by the company, and also received a fountain pen for placing as a member of the $100,000 club. He placed fourth in the entire company for volume of business. The reports, he states, show a production of six million dollars for 1924, and thirty-five and one-half million dollars of insurance in force. The company paid $138,000 in death claims last year, approximately 36 per cent of the expected loss. The company contributed $1,000 to the Oregon Tuberculosis Association to be used in fighting that disease in the state. Oregon Life managers have been given authority to write sub-standard business in the future.

SENATE DENIES WHITEWASH FOR OIL SMEARED DUO

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. — By a vote of 42 to 28 the senate today rejected a minority report signed by five republicans of its oil committee, holding that Edwin Denby and Theodore Roosevelt were blameless in connection with the lease of the naval publicans voted solidly for the minority report while the democrats and the republicans insurgents opposed it. The republicans who opposed the minority report were the Senators Borah, Brookhart, Couzens, Johnson of California; Norbeck and Norris.

After rejecting the minority report, the Senate today adopted the majority report on its oil inquiry by a vote of 49 to 30.

The report adopted was that drafted by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the prosecutor of the investigation, approved by all members of the oil committee except five republicans.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

Author of "Luxury of Love," "The Husband Tamer," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED

CYNTHIA and JIM LELAND settle down after their honeymoon, to find that Jim's mother intends to monopolize him as she always has. Cynthia cannot accustom herself to this, or to her mother-in-law's determination to remodel her. Jim leaves town on business, and Cynthia and Madame Leland quarrel. Cynthia makes the acquaintance of

NOEL GARDNER, the black sheep of the town, recently returned from Paris, where his wife has divorced him. She also meets

CECILE MALCOLM, a gay young widow who has designs on Gardner.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XIX—A DECISIVE STEP

NOEL GARDNER called for Cynthia promptly at ten o'clock the next morning. She had spent a wakeful night, too much worried over her husband's actions to sleep. It seemed so queer that Jim should go off on a long trip without even asking her to go with him.

VIOLET DARE

"Of course, when he left here he didn't know that he was going to Honolulu," she reminded herself. But she couldn't help remembering, also, that there had been plenty of time for her to join him, if he wanted her to. And he had said that his trip would be lengthened by the fact that he was to investigate some of the properties in which his mother invested—when her heaviest investments had been made right there in town!

"He's not playing fair with me," she told herself over and over again. "And if our married life doesn't go smoothly now, what hope is there for the future?"

She was glad to see Noel Gardner in the morning; glad to go out with him into the morning sunshine, and be driven through the pleasant, sunny streets in his rakish roadster.

"I ought to tell you the truth about this apartment I'm taking you to see, I suppose," he remarked. "It is the one which my wife and I took just after we were married, but we never lived in it. She was taken sick shortly after our marriage—had a very bad case of influenza, that developed into pneumonia—caught cold on our honeymoon, and it nearly turned out fatally. We had been home only a few days when she was taken sick, and as we were having trouble getting servants, she went to her mother's.

"When she was well again, she came home for a short time, and then something happened—things didn't go quite smoothly—and she went home again, and shortly after that went abroad with her parents, and hasn't been back since. I kept the apartment, believing that she would come back to me—to it, that is—but she divorced me just recently in Paris, and of course there's no need to keep a home here any longer."

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" exclaimed Cynthia. She looked up at him sympathetically. He was so good looking, so nice—how could any woman treat him so! Well, Cecile Malcolm had said that the girl's parents had objected to him—but his wife, if she cared enough for him to marry him, certainly should have stuck to him, she told herself.

"I'd be awfully glad to have you have the little place," he went on. "I've spent a good deal of time in it, and really it's a very pleasant apartment. But tell me—if I'm not too impertinent in asking—why are you giving up your house?"

"Oh, it's too big for me to stay in alone, and Jim expects to be away for some time," she answered, trying to speak casually, as if her husband's absence did not matter. "I'm really rather lost in a big house, even when he is home—there's so much responsibility about managing it, you know; I'm not accustomed to looking after things, and even with good servants it's difficult."

"Yes, of course," he replied. She looked at him quickly; there was a hint of something more than mere politeness in his voice, it seemed to her. But his face was grave; to all intents and purposes he was merely watching the road, more intent on threading his way through the traffic than on what she was saying.

She exclaimed delightedly as he unlocked the door of the apartment a few moments later, and stepped aside to let her enter. It was beautifully furnished, everything being well selected and effectively placed. There were many books about, the chairs were wide and comfortable looking, the few pictures exceptionally good. There was a hall, a large living room with an alcove that had been turned into a library, a sun porch, a dining room, two bedrooms, with adjoining baths, a tiny boudoir, and a kitchen that was a delight.

"Oh, this is lovely!" Cynthia cried, as they walked back to the living room. "It's one of the prettiest apartments I've ever seen. But I'm afraid I can't afford it—the rent must be awfully high!"

"No—not to you," he answered with a smile. "You see, I own this building, and as you'll want the apartment for just a short time, it will be a convenience to me if you will take it. I could leave a few things here—that is, if you won't mind? Really, you'll be saving me the trouble of having the place put in shape for strangers, and storing some personal belongings that I won't have room for at the club. I'll be greatly indebted to you if you'll just come here to live and not say anything about rent."

"I'll be indebted to you if you'll come here," he said.

"I couldn't do that," Cynthia answered. "You must charge me what you would anyone else, or I can't take it."

"Very well, if you insist," he replied, rather stiffly. "Shall we put it at one hundred a month?"

"But—oh, that must be far too low," protested Cynthia.

"No indeed. You're accustomed to rents in a much larger city—remember that. And, after all, I'm leaving some things here; that would make a difference if we were utter strangers. I assure you that I'm asking you quite enough."

"All right—and thanks ever and ever so much," she replied, as he locked the front door behind him and handed her the key.

"Would you mind my keeping a key, too?" he asked. "I may have to run up here sometimes to get things that I don't expect to need."

"Oh, keep a key by all means," she answered, though she knew how Madame Leland would have disapproved.

Defiance.

AID FOR TILLAMOOK.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—The expenditure of $36,000 for the further improvement of Tillamook bay and bar, Oregon, has been recommended to congress by the army engineers. Local interests should be required, the report said, to contribute 50 per cent of the first cost estimated at $180,000 and the Federal government should set aside $25,000 annually for the maintenance of the channels.

RUSSIA MOURNS ON ANNIVERSARY OF LENIN'S DEATH

(Associated Press Leased Wire.)

MOSCOW, Jan. 21.—All Soviet Russia was in mourning today, the first anniversary of the death of Nikolai Lenin, whose memory among communists is venerated as the founder of the soviet regime.

Official soviet buildings at home and abroad were ordered draped with red flags, fringed by crepe, and all stores, theatres and restaurants directed to close. The sale of liquor was forbidden. There were none of the usual street parades or outward demonstrations characteristic of bolshevik functions, silence being the dominant feature of the commemorative exercises.

Throughout the day long streams of visitors including school children filed through Lenin's wooded mausoleum in Red Square to view the wax-like features of the "father of bolshevism." A huge black and white portrait of the late premier was displayed on the Kremlin wall above the tomb flanked by the gigantic gilt numerals "1924-1925."

In the towns and villages, factory work and traffic ceased for five minutes as a mark of respect. The soviet newspapers printed long articles detailing Lenin's life and achievements, and pamphlets containing his writings were circulated among the masses.

It is a coincidence, not without interest, that on the anniversary of Lenin's death his great compartriot Trotzky, should be preparing for his own political doom. The newspapers call attention to this and forsee that, with Trotzky out of the political firmament, Lenin in death will gain all the glory which Trotzky in life has lost.

NEW YORK FAGIN HOLDS MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Jan. 21. — Several bands of thieves headed by a "Fagin" are preying on Wall street banking and brokerage houses, and at least $4,000,000 worth of stolen securities is in the hands of New York's underworld, said Alfred Tyrrill, adjuster for a large surety company today. He said the company had offered a $100,000 reward for the return of $1,000,000 worth of stolen bonds.

Youths are placed as messengers in the stock exchange and banking houses through forged references furnished by this "Fagin" said Tyrrill.
