Issued Daily Except Sunday by The News-Review Co., Inc. B. W. BATES, President and Manager. BERT G. BATES, Secretary-Treasurer.

Entered as second class matter May 17, 1920, at the post office at Roseburg, Oregon, under the Act of March 3, 1879.

ROSEBURG, OREGON, THURSDAY, JANUARY 22, 1925.

THE HOUSEHOLD BUDGET IDEA.

Banks and educational institutions urge that families and individuals make out home and personal budgets for the year and stick to them. The majority of families have spent their money as it came along, without regard to whether the expenditure for a given object was disproportionate or not.

One of the most persistent advertisers in the history of success was Robinson Crusoe, remarks a writer. He knew what he wanted—a ship—and put up an ad for one.

There was a time some years ago when so many calendars were distributed for advertising purposes, that the recipients thereof scarcely knew what to do with them.

Many schools and colleges have adopted honor systems, by which students were allowed to take examinations without being watched every minute and were otherwise placed on their own responsibility.

The city of Medford took a step backward yesterday. At a bond election held for the purpose of voting $165,000 for the erection of a new high school building the issue was defeated by 58 votes.

Wonder what Senators McNary and Stanfield are doing with the United States district attorney appointment for this state? We know they are holding up the issue, but for what reason, we have so far been unable to determine.

BASEBALL MEETING TO BE HELD TUESDAY

A meeting of all persons interested in the formation of a city baseball team will be held at the Palace of Sweets at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. The meeting is being called by Clarence Baker, manager of last year's club.

FOREST WEALTH OF NATION SOON THING OF PAST

Association Told Country Moves Toward Timber Bankruptcy.

DENUDED LAND IDLE

Reforestation Lags Far Behind in Pace Fixed by Lumbering and Toll of Fire.

CHICAGO, Jan. 22.—Progress made by the American Forestry Association during its 50 years of existence was told to the delegates to the annual convention of the association today for the purpose of demonstrating what was still to be done and how to get the results necessary.

That the opportunity of the states lies in organizing and maintaining fire protection systems, readjusting forest land taxation and encouraging the growth of forest-loving and forest-respecting sentiment, and that if the federal government and the states will do these things, the owners of the forest lands will have and will use on a nation-wide scale the opportunity for profitable replacement of merchantable timber supplies.

There is a "measure of hostile public sentiment," against large concentration of forest land ownership, he said, adding that this sentiment does not perceive that "the nation's experience during the past century is sufficient to demonstrate the impracticability of small forest land ownerships as providing the basis for economical operation of the logging, lumber, paper and related industries."

The law passed by congress in 1881 was described by President Geo. D. Platt of the University of Minnesota as making the greatest constructive work in the history of the association, possible. This law he said, gave the president authority to establish forest reserves from the public domain.

"But we must not rest upon past records," he said. "The forest problems of today are not yet one half or even one fourth solved. Our needs in forestry are recognized but our greatest question of where our future supply of wood is to come from is not yet answered."

Chief of Police I. S. Ketch perhaps let $100 trickles through his fingers this morning. Last night Officer Bausch spotted two men whom he believed to be suspicious characters. They were inspecting a group of cars left parked in the business district, and he became convinced that they were intending to steal one of the machines.
