Arrangements Complete for Cadman Concert

Arrangements have been completed for the artists recital at the Heinline Conservatory on Monday evening when Carles Wakefield Cadman the composer of Indian Music, and the Princess Tsaiuna (Chau-na) will be presented to the Roseburg public for the first time. Cadman's work is familiar to nearly everyone who has heard and thrilled to his beautiful Indian songs, and the Princess, who is a full-blooded Indian, has the ideal mezzo soprano voice for his music.

Mr. Cadman had what he feels is the most touching tribute paid to him by a young lady, Miss Elaine Anderson of Los Angeles, who has written a poem, dedicated to him after hearing his recent recital at the University Club, when he presented a program of his own compositions assisted by Margaret Messer Morris, soprano. The poem which was published in the Los Angeles Times is as follows: To you, within whose heart doest lie Sweet songs of Waters and Blue Sky, Of Autumn's glory, Spring's rebirth, The beauties and the joys of earth; Who thru your genius hands can bring Their message like a human thing, In rippling chords of melody Or notes of throbbing ecstasy; You speak the souls of races dumb, In living notes their stories come, And painted by your music's brush, We sense the dawn and hear the thrush.

Sing on—the world needs your song, Thru love, and joy, the heart grows strong, Your songs are those that cannot die, While hearts are young and hopes are high, Joy, sorrow, passion, pain and mirth, You touch the heart-strings of the earth.

BOULDER CRASHES THROUGH HOUSE

The boulder passed completely through five rooms of the residence and demolished furniture and everything in its path. It was a narrow escape for the sleeping occupants. The rock struck and demolished the crib occupied by the Master's baby, but in some manner the child miraculously escaped unharmed.

The woman occupants have not yet recovered from the shock.

The rock was about ten feet in diameter and after wrecking the house rolled outside and took off the corner of the garage, but missed the car and crashed into the woodshed where it came to rest.
