DISCUSSION OF FRANCE'S DEBT TO U. S. IS ON

land. Will they ever make us believe that the America of Pershing aided France for the love of France alone?"

"A victorious Germany would have established herself in Brazil, would have joined Japan in the Pacific and aroused Mexico. Is not this the danger that America combated—not for us, but with us?"

"There are two parts to your debt, dollars loaned for a war in common fighting dollars and dollars of a commercial debt imprudently swollen after the Armistice. These latter incontestably we ought to reimburse."

The communist organ L'Humanite, in a cartoon entitled, "The morals of big nations," depicts Uncle Sam in the garb of a Parisian apache with a star-spangled sash, demanding of France, "fork over your swag," while the body of slain Germany lies under a lamp post at the corner of "Debt Alley."

INTRODUCE BILL TO ENGAGE IN POWER DEVELOPMENT

the comfort and well being of every man, woman and child. "The world today is turning to our inexhaustible water power for its light, heat and power."

Oregon, Washington and California have within their boundaries over two thirds of the potential hydro-electric energy of the United States.

"While California and Washington have both made progress in the development of all of their water power resources, Oregon with its one-third of the water power energy is thirty-third in development.

"The Columbia river had referred to as one of the greatest if not the greatest, single unit of potential hydro-electric developments in the world. The United States, Oregon and Washington own this magnificent river, but it perennially rolls away in waste to the sea."

"The government and the two states should proceed at once to construct a large hydro-electric plant on this stream which would generate cheap power far in excess of the present demand and thereby invite the consumers of power to these two states from all over the world."

From Goldray on the Roguo River, is being transmitted the power from Oregon to San Francisco, and it is high time that cheap power be developed on the Columbia river and made available for Oregon and Washington. On each side of the Columbia river is a railroad which should be operated by electric energy derived from the stream and the expense of hauling thousands of carloads of coal thousands of miles be eliminated.

NEW PROVISIONS IN INCOME TAX LAW

The normal rate of tax under the revenue act of 1924 is 2 per cent on the first $1,000 of net income in excess of the personal exemption, credit for dependents, etc. 4 per cent on the next $1,000 and 6 per cent on the balance. The surtax is a graduated tax upon the net income of any individual in excess of $10,000. The rate of tax begins at 1 per cent of the amount in excess of $10,000 but not in excess of $14,000. Upon incomes of $14,000 there is a tax of $40 with rising graduations until finally the tax is $170.920 upon net incomes of $500,000 and upon net incomes in excess of $500,000 in addition 40 per cent of such excess. Under the preceding act the normal rates were 4 per cent on the first $4,000 of net income above the exemptions and credits and 8 per cent on the remainder of net income, while the surtax rates ranged from 1 per cent on the amount by which the net income exceeded $5,000 and did not exceed $10,000 to 50 per cent of the amount by which the net income exceeded $200,000.

The revenue act of 1924 contains a special provision for reduced tax which did not exist in the previous laws. All net income up to the amount of $5,000 is deemed to be earned income. On this amount the taxpayer is entitled to a credit of 25 per cent of the amount of the tax. For example, a taxpayer, unmarried and with no dependents, whose net income for 1924 was $5,000 would pay without the reduction a tax of $50. His actual tax is $0. From his net income of $5,000 he is allowed a personal exemption of $1,000; the tax of 2 per cent on the first $4,000 is $80, one-fourth of which, or $20, may be deducted.

In no case is the earned income considered to be in excess of $10,000. As an instance, a taxpayer, married, and with two dependent children received in 1924 a salary of $12,000. His total tax, including normal and surtax, without the 25 per cent reduction on earned net income would amount to $302. However, he may deduct from $10,000, the maximum amount of earned net income, $2,500—a personal exemption of $2,500, plus a $400 credit for each dependent. On the remaining $6,750, his tax amounts to $138—2 per cent on the first $4,000 and 4 per cent on the $2,750. One-fourth of this amount, or $47, deducted from $302 leaves $255 as the amount of tax due.

Another example is that of a married man with no dependents whose salary was $23,000 and who made in a real estate transaction a profit of $4,000. On a net income of $7,000 his tax, without the benefit of the 25 per cent reduction, would amount to $100—$7,000 less a personal exemption of $2,500, equalling $4,500 on which the tax on the first $4,000 at 2 per cent is $80 and on the remaining $500 at 4 per cent is $20. But while his net income from salary was only $23,000 the act provides that $5,000 should be considered as earned income. From $5,000, therefore, is deducted his personal exemption of $2,500, the tax on the remainder at 2 per cent amounting to $50. One-fourth of this amount, or $12.50, may be deducted from $100, leaving $87.50 as the amount due.

The department of justice today it was learned that the trial of Senator Wheeler at Butte, Mont., which has long been pending has been set for March 15.

The action was taken after an hour's discussion in executive session and should the approval of the administration leaders, who have conferred with President Coolidge.

It is probable that Mr. Stone will appear before the committee to make a statement with reference to the action of the Justice department in seeking a second indictment against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, in the District of Columbia.

Friends of the Attorney General said he would reply at length to committee charges that there is an attempt to "persecute the Montana senator, or that the department is violating a fundamental principle of law by seeking to try Mr. Wheeler here instead of in Montana, where he already is under indictment.

The department is said to regard the two proceedings as entirely independent of one another, although they both relate to land questions. It is the plan to press the Montana case to trial there.

Action of the senate on recommending the nomination was by unanimous consent. After the session the leaders both republicans and democrats, refused to answer questions and it developed that the major portion of the debate was taken up with discussing how what occurred behind the doors last Saturday became public.

Some senator pointed out that a strict interpretation of the rules would prohibit leaders from informing the president of executive session action, as was done last Saturday.

the dispute centering about the move to secure a second indictment in the District of Columbia against Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana.

At the present stage, the Wheeler case presents the chief obstacle to Mr. Stone's confirmation, which the leaders had hoped to bring to a vote today. The whole situation, including the plans of the justice department in connection with the case and the outlook presented by a democratic-splinter can insurgent combination to hold up the Stone nomination was talked over yesterday by senate leaders with Mr. Stone and Assistant Attorney General Donovan who plans to present the evidence against Senator Wheeler to a grand jury here next week.

Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican floor leader and Senator Watson of Indiana, the assistant leader, also talked today with President Coolidge.

President Coolidge is presumed to have received first hand information regarding the Wheeler case from Assistant Attorney General Donovan, who accompanied the executive on an overnight cruise down the Potomac yesterday on the Mayflower.

With the Stone nomination issue the hottest awaiting into an already crowded situation in the senate, leaders there are hesitant in predicting when any of the pending matters will be disposed of. As to the matter of appropriation bills, however, the senate has kept pace with the house.

The latter body having disposed of the most important of the supply bills, is beginning to slow up its work, so as not to get time on its hands.

The justice department officials and of the justice department officials and of the justice department officials were given to the president by Senator Watson, who had been commissioned to make a report to the White House on behalf of the senate leadership. There was no indication of administration opposition to the move to refer the nomination back to committee and Senator Watson said, he expected none of the senate.

The judiciary committee today received from its subcommittee a report of Charles B. Warren of Michigan to succeed Mr. Stone as attorney general without recommendation. Members said no action was likely until the Stone nomination is out of the way.

OWNER OF STILL WILL SERVE TIME

(Associated Press Local Wire.)

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 26.—Jim Woodcock owner of a farm on the Umatilla Indian reservation and a director of the school in his district, was sentenced to four months in jail and fined $100 by Federal Judge Bean today. Woodcock pleaded guilty to running a big still, which he had built and concealed in a canyon two miles from his home. Reservation officers arrested him the night after Christmas.

Fred Silver, Umatilla county lawyer who appeared for Woodcock, said the man had been driven to law-breaking by a mortgage on his farm which became a particular menace when his wheat crop was frozen.

Judge Bean held, however, that the size of the still indicated that Woodcock intended to sell extensively, and insisted that the severity of the sentence should be made appropriate.
