Canned Vegetables

At this time of the year it is hard to get good green vegetables, so we must use the canned vegetables. The best canned foods are the only ones a person should use. We recommend the Royal Club brand as the very best and the price is no higher than some grades that are not so good.

KIWANIS WILL BANQUET TONIGHT

The tenth anniversary of the founding of Kiwanis International was observed by 1360 Kiwanis clubs in the United States and Canada during the week of January 18-24, 1925. The first club was organized in Detroit.

The local Kiwanis club will hold its meeting tonight at 8:30 p. m. sharp at the K. of P. hall. An excellent program has been prepared for tonight and the wives of the Kiwanians will be the guests of honor. Following the banquet hour, cards, dancing and other entertainment will be provided.

The reason for the existence of a Kiwanis Club, said Victor M. Johnson, of Rockford, Illinois, international president, is civic and social service to a community. Because of being free from political, social, or sectarian prejudices, the club is able to bridge the gap that would otherwise exist between highly specialized social service agencies and the general public.

"In every community there exists a shortage of man power to carry out civic and social work, rather than a shortage of tasks. The general policies adopted to guide the activity of all clubs during the present year are as follows:
"To promote an intelligent, aggressive, and serviceable citizenship, including a determined effort towards a universal exercise of the franchise.
"To enlist the activity of all Kiwanis clubs in our program of service for the under-privileged child.

"To continue our effort to secure closer relations between the farmer and the city man.
"To stimulate added civic interest, cooperation and service on the part of all Kiwanians and Kiwanis clubs.

"To formulate and direct the influence of Kiwanis in matters of public interest in order that our organization may become a constructive force in the affairs of today.

"It is clearly evident that Kiwanis is built on idealism, but the great secret of Kiwanis is that this idealism is practiced by means of business-like organizations, and modern business methods.

KING GEORGE'S SUBJECTS STRIKE

(Associated Press London Wire.)
LONDON, Jan. 27.—The electric lighting, heating and other engineering services at Buckingham Palace, the houses of parliament, Hampton court, and Kew Gardens were run by volunteers today owing to a strike. Two hundred members of the engineering staff of the office of works went out because of the employment of a non-union man in the eastern division and it was expected 900 in all would be involved.

Volunteers will keep the electricity going in the royal apartments, but as King George and Queen Mary are at Sandringham, they are not likely to be affected by the discontent of their subjects unless the strike is extended.
The heating furnaces in the house of parliament will be closed down this afternoon.

NEW FLORIST GOES IN BUSINESS HERE

A new florist shop has been opened in Roseburg by W. S. Carpenter, who is connected with the County Agents office here, and who has had many years experience in work of that kind. He will call his place the Kindya Florist, and has located his greenhouses in W. Roseburg, just past the Soldiers Home. The greenhouses are modern, well built structures, heated by hot water, and contain the latest improvements for that business. For the present Mr. Carpenter will sell direct from the greenhouse, but later may open a shop in town.

Mr. Carpenter will specialize in cut flowers and design work for funerals, and will grow all his own flowers for work of that kind, importing the potted plants and ferns. He now has a large stock of cut flowers and plants in many beautiful varieties.

STONE NOMINATION IN COMMITTEE HAND

(Associated Press London Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Attorney General Stone's nomination to be a Supreme Court Justice is being held up in the quiet precincts of the senate judiciary committee where the next step will be taken in respect to the matters which have delayed confirmation.

The committee, to which the senate, by unanimous consent, referred the nomination yesterday after it had once reported it has been called to meet them and it is understood that the course of the department constitutes "persecution" of Senator Wheeler, and also a violation of a long recognized legal principle by seeking to try the Montana senator here instead of in his own state, where an indictment already is pending against him.

Although Attorney General Stone and Mr. Wheeler before favoring arranging for an early trial of the senator in his home state, the time of the proceedings remain uncertain.

One Wife on Approval

by VIOLET DARE

WHO'S WILD AND WHAT'S HAPPENED
CYNTHIA and JIM LELAND set down after their honeymoon to find that Jim's mother intends to monopolize him as she always has. Cynthia cannot accustom herself to this, or to her mother-in-law's determination to remodel her. Jim leaves town on business, and Cynthia and Madame Leland quarrel. Cynthia makes the acquaintance of NOEL GAIDNEIL, the black sheep of the town, recently returned from Paris, where his wife has divorced him. She also meets CECILE MALCOLM, a gay young widow who has designs on Gardner.

TODAY'S INSTALMENT

XXIV—CECILE GIVES WARNING
GARDNER was business himself all during dinner, to Cynthia's relief. He had brought with him the certificates for the stock which he had bought at her direction from her mother-in-law, and proceeded to transfer them to Cynthia as soon as dinner was over.

"She doesn't suspect, of course, that I bought them for you," he told Cynthia. "She couldn't quite understand my buying them back at the price she paid when the stock is quoted so much lower now, but I told her that I was interested in this new subdivision and wanted more stock. Now, here you are."
"And here you are," Cynthia answered, sitting down at her desk and writing a check for the amount that he had said the stock would come to.
"I wish you'd let me sell this stuff to you at the price it's bringing in the open market," he said, as she blotted the check. "Don't you realize that you're losing money by this transaction?"
"Yes, but there's no reason why you should lose by it, and there's a good one for my losing. As I've told you, I couldn't bear to have Madame Leland feel that if Jim had been home instead of off on a honeymoon with me, she'd never have made the investment in the first place. By buying her stock, even though she doesn't know it, I've evened things up."
"Well, the deal isn't over yet. You can't tell what may happen to that stock before long. Tell me, do you think you're going to like the apartment now that you've lived in it a while?"
"Oh, I'm going to love it," Cynthia exclaimed enthusiastically. "It's a charming place. But don't you hate dreadfully to give it up?"
"No, I feel about it as you do about your house. I suppose your house is beautiful, yet you were glad to leave it and come here, weren't you?"
Cynthia nodded. "I understand, don't you? You aren't going to be so fortunate as I have been in changing homes."
"I've been fortunate enough in having you take this apartment and let me come here sometimes," he answered.
They spent the evening by the living room fire, and Gardner proved to be so entertaining that Cynthia was genuinely sorry to have him go. He was the only person in town whom she felt that she really knew, and he could rely on.
He telephoned her the next afternoon to ask if she would go to the theater with him the following week. When she hesitated he urged her. "Come along—it's the new Barrymore play, and sure to be good," he insisted. "You've no idea how much I want to take you."
"Well—oh, very well, I'll go!" she

"I'm afraid I'm going to lose you."

—why not make it now?"
Cecile raised her voice.
"If you think I'm going to apologize for telling the truth," she began, but the pressure on her arm silenced her.
"All right. Run along back to the impatient mob at your own table now."
She went, sulky, and he resumed his seat across from Cynthia.
"She's had one cocktail too many; no use to insist now," he said. "But she'll apologize to you later."
Cynthia said nothing. She was telling herself that she would never again expose herself to such humiliation by going out with him. They left not long afterward for the theater, and Gardner was as humbly polite as if he and not Cecile had been at fault.
"Oh, I'm afraid I'll never want to go anywhere with me again," he told her, as they entered the theater. "I can't tell you how sorry I am for what happened tonight. You're the only bright spot on my horizon just now. I wouldn't have given two cents for my life before I met you. And now I'm afraid I'm going to lose you, just because Cecile—"
"Oh, let's not let that matter," she exclaimed. After all, it hadn't been his fault. "I realize that Cecile is awfully foolish, and I'll die of loneliness before Jim gets back if I just sit at home. Surely we can be friends whether people approve of our friendship or not."
The expression in his eyes was answer enough to that declaration. And Cynthia, smiling up at him, passed her sister-in-law without even seeing that very indignant young matron.

PAVING THE WAY FOR FARM RELIEF

(Associated Press London Wire.)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Coolidge sought at a White House breakfast conference to pave the way for transmission to congress of the legislative recommendations of his agricultural commission.

Those present included the ranking members of the senate and house agricultural committees, Secretary Gore and Senator Curtis of Kansas, and representative Longworth of Ohio, the republican leader of senate and house. The leaders said of the executive proposal of the committee to be made public tomorrow when they are sent to the capital might be enacted into law before adjournment of congress but that differences over the majority recommendations might prevent action on them at this session.

Chairman Norris of the senate agricultural committee did not go to the conference, although he had been invited.

BROTHERS TO SERVE 2 YRS. FOR ASSAULT

VALE, Ore., Jan. 27.—Bert Lawrence was sentenced to serve three years in the state penitentiary and his brother Mellis Lawrence, was sentenced to two years by Judge Dalton Biggs of the Circuit Court yesterday afternoon as a result of their conviction last week of assault with a dangerous weapon upon Ralph Harvey at Ironside, 30 miles north of the railroad, October 14, when they put a rope around Harvey's neck and hanged him to a cottonwood tree until he confessed to having reported bootlegging operations to the District Attorney's office. The defense set up at the trial that Harvey had annoyed Bert Lawrence's wife and that the brothers were making him leave the country in order to do away with his annoyance.

Leo Calland, freshman football coach at the University of Southern California and formerly as assistant coach at Broadway high school, Seattle, has applied for a position as football coach at the University of Oregon, he admitted yesterday.

From a preliminary boy to a main bout performer in a few months is the remarkable rise of Benny Gershe, Cleveland south-paw featherweight. Gershe scored his thirteenth knockout in sixteen bouts last night, stopping Harry (Battling) Leonard of Philadelphia in four rounds at Cleveland. On his first appearance here August 11 last, Gershe received $20 for a preliminary bout. Last night boxing his first windup on big time, he received close to $4,000. Gershe got his first knowledge of the ring while loafing around Benny Leonard's training camp.
